ROYAL AUSTRIAN SECRETS, COURT INTRIGUES AND LOVE AFFAIRS REVEALED

Countess Von Larisch, for Years the Confidante of the Empress, Writes Frankly of Imperial Life in Vienna

How Elizabeth of Austria, Who Perished by an Assassin's Dagger, Worshipped Her Beauty.

How She Guarded Her Body From the Ravages and Encroachments of Old Age.

How She Dressed, Including Intimate Details of Her Toilette and Her Wardrobe.

How She Was a Slave of Superstition, and Believed in Spirits, Omens and Fortune Tellers.

THE Countess Marie von Larisch, favorite niece and lady-in-waiting of the murdered Empress Elizabeth of Austria, has written an extraordinarily interesting book of reminiscences, called "My Past." It is a story of life at the Austrian and Bavarian courts from the inside and has all the grip of a powerful novel.

As one reads her recital of intrigues, jealousies and love affairs, one is reminded of the various "secret affairs" that were published about royal personages of another age when nobody challenged the theory that divinity hedged kings who, therefore, could do no wrong.

The Countess writes with amazing frankness and does not hesitate to reveal imperial secrets and scandals though they involve personages still alive today.

She fell under the influence of the court life of Vienna when she was only 16 years old. Her father and mother were rather straight-laced and the Empress early set out to marry off her niece so that she could get the little lady out of the parental traces. There was of course, great competition for the hand of one so close to the throne and one suitor nearly broke the Empress' heart. He was Count Esterhazy and he proposed immediately, requesting that, while the Baroness Wallersee, her title then, was considering his offer, she should refrain from telling the Empress of the proposal.

Of course, the girl told the Empress, who after a period of perceptible annoyance had passed, informed her niece that she, the Empress, already had an affair of the heart with the Count, and did not think he was a fit person to become the girl's husband. So the Empress wed the little Baroness to respectable Count von Larisch, for whose mentality she had only contempt though she thought he had good manners and would not object if the Empress monopolized his wife's society.

The book has been heralded as a full and final explanation of the tragedy of Meyerling in which Crown Prince Rudolph and Baroness Mary Vetsera, perished. But it is not convincing on this point. The only new suggestion is that Rudolph had conspired with the knowledge and possibly the sympathy of his cousin, Archduke John of Tuscany, to split the dual monarchy of Austria-Hungary, make himself King of Hungary, that Rudolph had been detected in his part of the scheme and killed himself to avoid being shot for treason. This is almost an incredible theory in view of the fact that Rudolph by waiting would have inherited the dual throne. However, the author bridges this gulf by ascribing the condition she suggests to Rudolph's impatience to be a king. The mysterious disappearance of the Archduke John less than two years after the Meyerling tragedy is not explained, though it is suggested that he may have been in the plot and became a commoner and entered trade in order to escape exposure of his part in conspiracy. However, not a scintilla of documentary evidence is offered to support either of these theories. They appear to rest solely upon hearsay, court gossip and the Countess' familiarity with the inner secrets of the Imperial family.

But, regardless of what the reader may think of this phase of the book, he will find the narrative intensely interesting. The publishers are G. P. Putnam's Sons of New York who have given the Sunday Post-Dispatch special permission to use the accompanying excerpts.

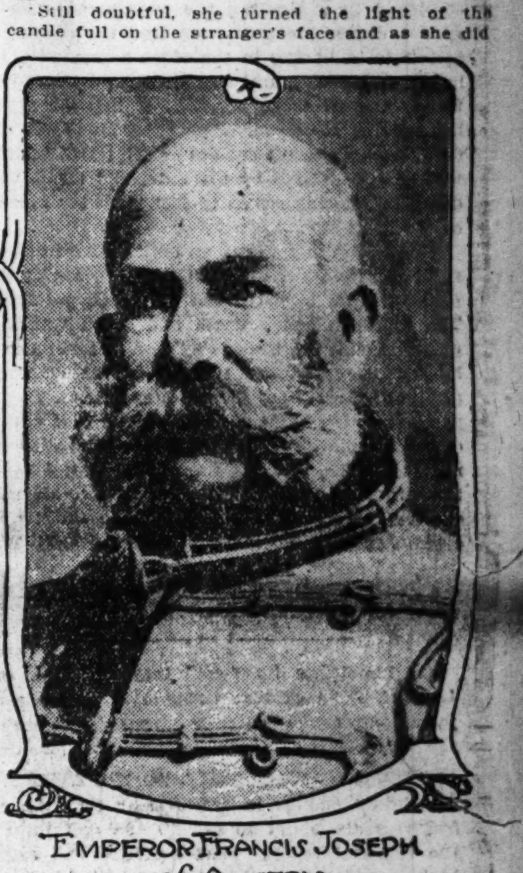
CROWN PRINCE RUDOLPH of AUSTRIA.

BARONESS MARY VETSERA

EMPRESS ELIZABETH of AUSTRIA.



EMPEROR FRANCIS JOSEPH of AUSTRIA.

COUNTESS VON LARISCH AS SHE IS TODAY.

An Empress Who Worshipped At Her Own Beauty's Shrine.

ELIZABETH was fond of her little niece from the beginning and when Marie was 16 she was taken completely into the confidence of her aunt. She says:

"At this time I did not quite understand the Empress. I loved her and she fascinated me, and gradually, as she took me into her confidence, she told me how irksome she found her life and how much she hated the pomp and circumstance which surrounded her as Empress of Austria. 'I hate the ceremonies of life,' she declared.

"One thing struck me forcibly at this real beginning of our intimacy and that was my aunt's absorbing passion for her beauty. She loved her loveliness like a pagan and she worshipped it as well. The sight of her perfect body gave her pure aesthetic delight; anything that marred its perfection was inartistic and distasteful to her.

"'Ah! the horror of growing old,' she exclaimed; 'to feel the hand of Time laid upon one's body, to watch the skin wrinkling, to awake and fear the morning light, and to know that one is no longer desirable! Life without beauty would be worthless to me.' * * *

"The Emperor occasionally came to Feldafing for a few days, but he did not like the place. Francis Joseph did not care about wearing mufti, and the Empress used to annoy him by saying that out of uniform he looked for all the world like a shoemaker in his Sunday clothes. Elizabeth never called Francis Joseph by his name, but invariably addressed him as 'Du' (thou). 'Du, come here,' she would say to the autocrat of Austria, before whose power the whole of his family trembled, and at whose command defiant archdukes went into exile. But 'Du' could sometimes hold his own with his wife."

Fantastic Dinners Given by Mad King Ludwig to Departed Guests.

THE Countess writes at length and sympathetically of her relative, the mad King Ludwig II of Bavaria, and she proudly declares (which is quite true) that but for his love of music, the world might never have had Wagner's matchless compositions. It was Ludwig who fostered and encouraged Wagner's genius when the composer was condemned by the then elect of the music world. It was Ludwig's custom to sit alone in his private opera house through performances of Wagnerian operas, (usually "Parsifal") which always began at midnight and lasted until morning.

Indeed, it was Ludwig's purpose as far as possible to turn night into day.

Another fantastic habit of the mad monarch was to give dinners at midnight at which he would invariably have, in his imagination, 13 historic personages as his guests. With the magnificent state dining room brilliantly illuminated, he would receive his imaginary guests, whose names were gravely announced by his chamberlain. He once told Empress Elizabeth of one of these dinners and described his guests as he imagined he saw them—Marie Antoinette magnificently robed in satin, but with a thin red line about her neck, marking the course of the guillotine; Mary Queen of Scots, lovely in black velvet but with the crimson kiss of death on her cheek; Catherine the Great, Julius Caesar, Hamlet, Alenader, Diogenes and Constantine, all were believed by him to be sitting at his table and breaking bread with him.

The Empress Elizabeth who was as superstitious as a peasant, once told the Countess of a visit she asserted she had received at night from the spirit of Ludwig, who in a drunken rage drowned himself and his doctor in a lake at the castle where he was confined. Said the Empress according to the chronicler:

A Wonderful Ghost Story Told by Empress of Austria

"'AS I lay awake in the lonely hours, thoughts assailed me and I fancied I heard a monotonous drip, drip of water. "It must be raining," I said to myself, "and the drops are falling on the leaves close to my window," so I took no further notice until the noise was succeeded by the unmistakable ripple of water when it kisses the shore.

"'The moon had now risen and its radiance made the room as light as day. Then I saw the door open very slowly and Ludwig came within. His clothes were heavy with water, which dripped from them and made little pools on the parquet. His damp hair lay close round his white face, but it was Ludwig much as he had looked in life. We gazed at each other in silence and then the King said slowly and sadly:

"'"Cissi, are you frightened of me?"

"'"No, Ludwig I am not frightened."

"'"Ah me!" he sighed. "Death has not brought me peace. Cissi, SHE burns in torment. The flames encircle her, the smoke suffocates her. SHE burns and I am powerless to save her."

"'"WHO burns, dear cousin?" I asked.

"'"I do not know because her face is hidden," he answered, "but I know that it is a woman who loved me and until her destiny is fulfilled, I shall not be free. But afterwards, you shall join us and we three shall be happy in Paradise together."

"'"What do you mean? When shall I follow you?"

"'"I cannot tell you when," replied Ludwig, "for in the abode of earth-bound souls time has no place."

"'"By which road shall I join you? Will it be a journey of painful old age, hampered by regrets and recollections?"

"'"No, Cissi; you will shed many tears and experience many regrets before you come to us but your journey will be swift, and you will have no warning of it."

"'"Shall I suffer?"

"'"How do I know that I am not dreaming?" I asked.

"'He smiled. "No, you will not suffer."

"'Ludwig slowly came to my bedside and oh! Marie, the coldness of death and the grave was in the air. "Give me your hand," he said.

"'I put out my hand and his wet fingers closed over mine. At that moment, all my pity sprang into life. "Ah stay," I pleaded, "do not leave the friend who loves you to return to your sufferings. Oh, Ludwig, pray with me for peace." But the figure vanished.

"'Who could he have meant by the woman who burns?" I asked.

"'I cannot imagine,' replied Aunt Cissi.

"The Empress spoke often about her strange experience and when the Duchesse d'Alencon (the Empress' sister) perished in the awful fire at the (Paris) charity bazar, I am told that Elizabeth declared to others that Ludwig's words were fulfilled, and that she must prepare for the last journey which she was destined to take a year and four months later."

And as Ludwig's spirit had prophesied, this journey was by a quick and easy road and was taken so suddenly that, as the spirit declared, there probably was no suffering. An assassin's knife, while she was on a triumphal visit to Geneva, killed her instantly.

Happy Days at Godollo and How Elizabeth Sought to Save Beauty.

AT Godollo, where our little Countess passed happy days with the Empress, quarreled with Rudolph and was pursued by a titled lover or two, came further notice of Elizabeth's beauty culture:

"The Empress and I often supped alone, and when the meal was over my aunt would have the pins removed from her lovely hair and allow it to fall over her shoulders. She would talk freely when she was happy and gay and life seemed roseate, but occasionally she was morose and moody and obsessed by the dread of advancing age.

"Elizabeth was not a believer in any special face treatment. Sometimes she only used a simple toilet cream; occasionally at night she wore a kind of mask 'lined' inside with raw veal; and in the strawberry season she smeared her face and neck with the crushed fruit.

"The Empress took warm baths of olive oil, which she believed helped to preserve the suppleness of her figure, but on one occasion the oil was nearly boiling and she narrowly escaped the horrible death associated with many Christian martyrs. She often slept with wet towels round her waist in order to keep its proportions slender and drank a horrible decoction composed of the whites of five or six eggs mixed with salt for the same purpose.

"Once a month Elizabeth's heavy chestnut tresses were washed with raw egg and brandy, and afterward rinsed with some 'disinfectant,' as she termed it. When the actual washing was over, the Empress put on a long waterproof silk wrapper and walked up and down until her hair was dry.

"The woman who acted as her coiffeuse was hardly ever seen without gloves, which she even wore during the night; her nails were cut close; rings were forbidden her; the sleeves of her white gown were quite short; and it may be almost truthfully asserted that the hairs of Aunt Cissi's head were all numbered.

Long Walks in Stockingless Feet Too Much for Ladies of Court.

"MY aunt's lingerie was beautiful and exceedingly fine in quality. She never wore petticoats, and when she took her early walks in the summer she slipped her unstockinged feet into her boots, and wore no underlinen of any description under her bodice and skirt. On these occasions Elizabeth disdained a hat, and her umbrellas, which were large, clumsy and leather-lined, were very inelegant and weighty to carry.

"A passion for walking for four or five hours winter and summer alike was part of her daily life, and Elizabeth could even do nine or ten hours at a stretch without being fatigued. This was not the case, however, with her ladies-in-waiting, of whom it might almost be said that they walked themselves out of her service; and at last this excessive exercise played havoc with the Empress's constitution, as she only took sufficient food to sustain bare existence.

"Elizabeth slept on a plain iron bedstead, which she took with her wherever she went. She scorned pillows and lay quite flat, probably because she had been told by some one that it was beneficial to her beauty. The Empress hated perfume, and her entourage were forbidden to use it. She never cared for jewels, although she displayed splendid ornaments at court ceremonies.

"Elizabeth spent hours with her tailor whenever it was necessary to fit her with her habits, for she was very difficult to please, and studied the cut and style mounted on the back of a wooden horse placed in front of a large mirror.

"'The people expect me to look beautiful and elegant,' she would frequently observe to me, 'and I often think it a pity they cannot see sovereigns trapped out in the splendor of past days, like the kings and queens of romance. So many royalties are frumps, and they imagine that their rank gilds their clothes; but it is not so, and the subjects greatly resent their dowdy appearance.

"'The Princess of Wales (Alexandra) is the only woman in Europe besides myself who makes dress a fine art, and part of her popularity is due to her knowledge of what is suitable to wear on all occasions.'"

On a visit to the Empress at Vienna, when she was 14 years old, our Countess saw Rudolph for the first time since she was a tiny child.

"The Crown Prince sat next to me and commenced to tease me unmercifully, and, boy though he then was in years, he seemed to possess the intelligence of a man. He was handsome, and for some time I racked my brains to remember what wild animal he recalled to me, for he had a curious look not altogether human. Then I knew—Rudolph reminded me of a wolf; his eyes blazed green at times, and he seemed almost ready to spring.

Warning Against a Crown Prince Who Looked Like a Cruel Wolf.

"'WAS he as cruel as a wolf?' I wondered, and then an icy chill went down my spine as I recalled the Empress' words to me before dinner when I had gone to show her my pretty gown. 'Marie,' she had said, 'tonight you will see Rudolph. I warn you against him, because he will turn on you if ever he gets the chance.'

"I glanced apprehensively at my cousin, who was mimicking his father's habit of twisting his mustache, for Francis Joseph couldn't sit for five minutes without making sure that his mustache was still on his face. The Emperor was very kind to me and told me as a huge joke that I was not a child, but just a Bavarian broomstick."

It was Elizabeth herself, according to our author, who, when she went traveling in 1885, arranged a consoling friendship between her husband and Katrina Schratt of the Burg Theater, a friendship that lasts to this day. The actress, we are told, "was and is a charming, simple minded woman, and my aunt thought very highly of her.

"Elizabeth used often to visit Frau Schratt and gave her many presents, among them being a little churn of which Katrina was inordinately proud. People rather disapproved of Elizabeth's attitude, but she was quite right in thinking well of the actress, who has since the death of my aunt proved herself to be a devoted friend to Francis Joseph.

"Frau Schratt has a beautiful villa in the Glorietstrasse at Hietzing, which is a perfect storehouse of lovely things and includes many presents from the Emperor. She also has a little cottage at Ischl, and whenever Francis Joseph is there Katrina is always at the cottage, and the Emperor invariably takes tea with her.

"There is an amusing story about an evening visit which the Emperor once paid his friend. He had remained rather late, and with his usual consideration Francis Joseph, who did not wish to disturb the sleeping household, made as little noise as possible as he walked down a passage which led to the garden entrance; but just as he reached it a door opened, and Frau Schratt's new cook came out in her nightgown, carrying a lighted candle.

"The sound of footsteps had alarmed her, and naturally when she saw the figure of a man her first impulse was to scream. Francis Joseph came forward quickly. 'Be quiet, you stupid woman; don't you know me? I'm the Emperor,' he said in a low voice. The incredulous cook was taken aback, for in her wildest flights of imagination she had never pictured herself meeting the Emperor of Austria wandering about late at night.

Still doubtful, she turned the light of the candle full on the stranger's face and as she did so she recognized the well known features of Francis Joseph. The loyal woman instantly fell on her knees and began to sing the national anthem at the top of her voice. The Emperor made a hurried exit, and I doubt whether a patriotic hymn has ever been sung under more ridiculous circumstances."

IN reading the Countess' narrative of her adventure with Archduke John after the tragedy of Meyerling, it is necessary to remember that John, who was in line for the throne after Rudolph's death, within two years, renounced his royal dignition, took the name of John Orth, married Ludmilla Stubel, an actress, went into commerce, chartered a ship, the Marguerite, loaded it with cement and sailed with his bride for Buenos Ayres. Disposing of his cargo there, he and his wife sailed for a point on the western coast of South America. They were never heard of again and the belief is that they perished in rounding Cape Horn.

It is suggested by the Countess that John's never explained disappearance may have been a natural sequence of the same events that caused Rudolph's suicide; in other words, that he not only knew of Rudolph's alleged conspiracy to divorce Hungary from Austria and make himself King of Hungary, but that he was actively in the plot and renounced his royal prerogatives to avoid the punishment that he thought would follow.

When she was in Vienna, "the Empress gave delightful little late suppers when most of the virtuous inmates of the Hofburg were wrapped in slumber. I used to have some very happy evenings on those occasions, and it was at one of these suppers that I again met Count Herbert Bismarck, who was then an attache at Vienna. Elizabeth was rather attracted by the Count, but somewhat resented his attentions to me until I explained to her that I had been the object of his youthful affection at Kissingen.

Superstitions of Elizabeth and Her Hatred of a Fawning Family.

"THE Empress was very superstitious, and occasionally, when I had exhausted the gossip of Vienna, she would make me put the white of an egg into a glass of water, and together we would try to read omens in the shapes which it took. Elizabeth invariably made three bows to a magpie whenever she saw one, and the new moon afforded her the occasion to indulge in any longed-for wish.

"The Empress firmly believed in the virtues of cold iron, and she never passed nails or cast horseshoes without picking them up; the evil eye inspired her with real dread and she feared the malign influence of those who possessed it.

"Aunt Cissi once went incognito to consult a cardwoman, but she refused to disclose anything the seeress told her except a prophecy that she would never die in her bed. 'And that is most likely to happen,' she said, 'for when Valerie is grown up I shall travel in distant parts of the world, and one day I shall never return.'

"My aunt detested people who fawned upon her, and as I was never guilty of this fault we got on very well together. The sycophantic attitude of her family always irritated her, and she often quarreled with her sisters. 'I wish I had been born in the streets and had never known my family,' she once declared. Sometimes she became a prey to an unnatural hatred for her children. 'Children are the curse of a woman, for when they come, they drive away beauty, which is the best gift of the gods," she once said to me.

An Enchanted Empress Who Was to Live Again as a Wild Sea Bird

"AGAIN my aunt would often express her contempt for her exalted position. 'What's the use of being an Empress in these days?' Elizabeth remarked bitterly. 'She is only a dressed-up doll.'

"'But the time will come for me to be free,' she continued, as if musing. 'Marie, sometimes I believe that I'm enchanted, and that after my death I shall turn into a seagull and live on the great spaces of the ocean, or shelter in the crevice of some frowning rock; then I, the fettered Elizabeth, shall be free at last, for my soul shall have known the way of escape. If ever I am destined to become old, nobody shall see my face. When once I have been kissed by Time I shall

THE HAMAN GALLOWS READY.

President Wilson is justified in his righteous anger over the continued threats of Republican manufacturers to close down their plants as part of a campaign to discredit the new tariff. It is promised that if there is an attempt to carry out these threats, the Department of Commerce and Labor will undertake investigations to show the benefits high protection in the past had for labor and the precise effect of the new revision on legitimate industry.

The standpat representatives of the interests in Congress have predicted unexampled disaster as a consequence of the Underwood competitive schedules and the threats reveal a desperate purpose on the part of the interests to make the predictions come true. The presidency is invested with large powers capable of being employed in mitigating the widespread evils of such a deplorable conspiracy and the country is fortunate in having in the office a man with the intelligence and courage to make a proper and effective use of those powers. It may be apprehended that the power of publicity alone will suffice. With the graft cut out of the tariff, nothing will be less desired by the industrial trusts than damaging disclosures as to just what the amount of the graft was.

The Steel Trust wants no authoritative and official confirmation of Mr. Carnegie's declaration that the iron industry has outgrown protection. The textile industry north and south wants no chapters added to the one written at Lawrence on labor's inconsequential share of the enormous profits of prohibitory custom-house taxes. To propose searching analysis of the claim that our industrial evolution does not permit competition in near-by home markets having incidental tariff-for-revenue protection is to raise an alarming specter before manufacturers who are already competing with the world in far off foreign markets and paying freight.

BRINGING JOHN BULL TO HIS KNEES.

Britain trembles in mortal fear that the suffragettes are about to despoil the golf links of the imperial realm. Here suffrage will assault higher prerogatives than those which Blackstone revered.

What is blowing up churches compared to rumpling up fair greens and cluttering up putting greens? Any peer, any premier, any member of Commons could stand to have his church blown to smithereens, but what true Englishman would not rather yield the vote to the meanest of his sisters than have her go out in the dead of night and sow the velvet putting greens with tares, wild oats or creeping Jenny?

We believe the sisters have hit upon the right track at last. If they will assault not only his golf, but his Scotch highball, his B. and S., his five o'clock tea, his marmalade and even his briar pipe, they will promptly bring John Bull to his knees.

APPROACH OF IRISH HOME RULE.

Within a year from this date the Irish Home Rule bill—the first great measure of reform passed by the Liberal coalition under the Parliament act—will become law automatically over the veto of the House of Lords. It will be followed by the enactment under the same rule of the Welsh Disestablishment bill.

When that day has passed and Ireland, after 110 years, has again her own Parliament, there will be a wholesale readjustment in the politics of the United Kingdom. The 42 Representatives of Ireland in the Imperial Parliament will, it is believed, except for a few Tories, formally join the Liberal party. Significant of this coming change is the fact that the last member of Parliament elected in Ireland—the Home Ruler recently chosen for Londonderry—was elected not as a Nationalist, but as a Liberal. He is the first Liberal elected in Ireland for many years.

Even in Ireland the Nationalist party will go out of existence, the object for which it was formed having been achieved. New parties local to Ireland will be formed in the Irish Legislature, the main line of cleavage being between conservatives and progressives. The strong labor party in Belfast is hoping that the Orange irreconcilables will carry out their threat of refusing to take part in the Irish elections. That would give the Ulster Tory representation to the Laborites, who are eagerly pushing an economic campaign that ignores the old racial, religious and national issues and advocates a kind of modified Socialism.

Membership in the Imperial Parliament at Westminster will be more attractive, it is expected, to ambitious Irish politicians than seats in the Dublin Parliament. Discussions in the latter will be local to Ireland, whereas the Imperial Parliament making laws for 500,000,000 people will be world-wide in its scope. Cabinet positions, important Government posts and peerages will also be open to Irish politicians for the first time in many years.

TO THE HOUSE OF DELEGATES.

Before voting the increase of taxes for the completion of the upper deck of the municipal bridge we ask you—members of the House of Delegates—to settle a vital question connected with the use of the bridge by trolley lines—the terminal loop issue.

The question of providing money for the completion of the upper deck is a question of ways and means. The upper deck may be regarded as a great viaduct, a thoroughfare continuing a St. Louis street into East St. Louis and more closely connecting the growing East Side population with St. Louis. It differs from other viaducts, which are paid for out of the general revenue, only in size and costliness. Part of it would be paid for out of the bond surplus.

The bridge has been authorized by the people of St. Louis. It is not now hampered by any franchise. It is free from any controversy on approaches. The bridge is costing St. Louis $350 a day and should be put to work to pay for the investment. The completion of the thoroughfare is most desirable.

The terminal loop, for which a franchise is held by the Southern Traction Co., is essential to the use of the bridge by trolley lines. The franchise is non-exclusive and is good in all respects except that it provides a 50-year-term, binding the city for half a century. The 50-year term should be changed to an indeterminate or at least a 20-year term, with an option to purchase, so that the city can own the loop when it has the power and ownership is advantageous.

Jeptha Howe and his associates in the Southern Traction Co. are eager to have the upper deck of the bridge completed. They should accept an amendment which will assure them their investment, protect St. Louis and satisfy the people who insist upon a municipal loop at the earliest possible moment. The amendment is in the spirit of the franchise contract. The company loses nothing by accepting it. But the company might refuse an amendment unless it were a condition of bridge completion. Now is the time for an amicable adjustment.

We urge you to amend the loop franchise and thus remove every objection to the completion of the upper deck. Do it before voting the tax increase or submitting the bond issue.

"ULTRA EXCLUSIVE."

In pure good humor may we point to an alarming tendency among the society editors of some of our esteemed? It is a tendency to wear out their favorite label, "ultra exclusive," and cheapen the very quality which they seem to admire above all others.

To read that "the wedding guests consisted of the ultra exclusive set" is not so impressive as it once was. In the next item it appears that the ultra exclusive set was somewhere else at the same time; and so on down the column—it was in seven places at once. Now this cannot be, for the ultra exclusiveness of the ultra exclusive is becoming more exclusively ultra, more excruciatingly and ulteriorly ultra, day by day; it flocks all by itself and is by no means ubiquitous or all over the place.

Likewise, it almost detracts from the solemnity of the nuptials to read that the millionaire bridegroom "owns an apartment in an ultra exclusive co-operative plan building," or that his socks are of ultra exclusive pattern with neckties to match. Has he an automobile of ultra exclusive design, and maybe an ultra exclusive bulldog?

It seems there are ultra exclusive teas, ultra exclusive neighborhoods, riding habits, golf tournaments, milliners, bathing resorts, cafes, dancing masters, debutantes, and what not. Even the cigarette makers, whisky distillers and ready-made clothing manufacturers have borrowed the ultra exclusive vocabulary of the society reporters. In a word, everything is exclusive nowadays—and nothing is.

Yet we are far from deploring this free usage—or shall we say abuse?—in this exclusively democratic country. In point of fact one thing is about as exclusive as another. Literally the Bottom's Gang is as exclusive, as ultra exclusive, if you please, as the worried Westmorelands. Nothing is distinctive because of exclusiveness. The sands of the sea are quite as exclusive as the American bison. Quality is the distinctive thing.

FRENCH BANDIT "PHILOSOPHY."

A Parisian news bureau has been kind enough to send the Post-Dispatch a photograph of the guillotine and one of the heads of two of the automobile bandits recently executed. It also sends what is supposed to be a synopsis of the "philosophy" of the ultra-individualists of whom Monier, Callemin, Barre and Soudier, the guillotined men, were exponents by act.

These men, it is said, vaunted themselves as the possessors of new social ideas. They acknowledged no law, but argued their right to take whatever money, arms, automobiles or other property they desired. Callemin, designated the "thinker" of the band, affirmed that his doctrine was the logical outcome of Darwin's philosophy of the survival of the fittest; that force regulates and should regulate men's relations with each other; that as kings powerful enough spoil other kings and nations other nations, so should individuals. Finally, that law is only a cunning means employed by the rich to defend themselves against the attacks of the poor.

The modern French bandit probably has derived his smattering of philosophy from such writers as Georges Sorel, the Syndicalist dreamer. For what is the program of Syndicalism but a scheme to do, on a universal scale, what Monier, Callemin and his companions tried as individuals?

The Syndicalist says: Let us take possession of the factories and "expropriate" their present owners? But can this be done without civil war and bloodshed? Is it not a repudiation of property rights and of social order? Is it not an invitation to spoliation and violence? For it is not proposed to be done through the ballot or any form of peaceful political action.

It is significant that the heads of Monier, Barre and Soudier, who were executed the same hour, got mixed in the basket so that there was trouble in identifying them. Was this prophetic of the fate of those who wish to overthrow existing institutions, no matter at what cost of world-order or regard for the rights of others?

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Day of Rest.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In response to several letters I noted in your columns recently as regards the Sunday closing law. I would like to state that any legitimate merchant who can not make a living on the six business days of the week ought to go out of business. Every human being is entitled to a day of rest; it is just mere greed and selfishness on the part of those who are eager to have the Sunday closing law defeated. The class of people who purchase wearing apparel on Sunday would not be lost to the small merchant as they know they can not drive hard bargains in the big stores, as they can in the small stores. Closing would be a blessing to those merchants if they were compelled to close their shops on Sunday, as then they would know and learn that they too are human beings, and after a few Sundays at home with their families they would commence to appreciate and realize how long they have been money fools, practically slaves to the almighty dollar. Wake up, men; consider yourselves among a civilized community; throw off the yoke you are wearing and begin to live. Money is not everything. An entire Sunday with your family at home is worth all the money in the world.

Brain-Workers Long-Lived.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It may interest your readers to learn the following facts, which I extract from the "Practical Guide to Health," by Frederick M. Rositer, B. S., M. D. M. Rositer says: "Years are added to life by earnest mental exertion." George Elliot was 35 years old before she began the first of her great works. Carlyle began the study of Greek at 50 and made an excellent translation of Homer. Michael Angelo designed the rebuilding of St. Peters at 71 and had charge of the work until he was 89. He produced his masterpiece, "The Communion of St. Paul," at 75. He died at 90, still working. Titian lived to be 100 years old; at 87 he produced his masterpiece, "The Last Supper." Lord Brougham lived to be 89 years old, Lord Lyndhorst failed at 91. Epimenides, the seventh of the Wise Men, lived to be 184 years old. Pythagoras was 80 when he was married. Dr. Franklin lived to the age of 76. Sidney Smith lived to be 76. Sir Isaac Newton lived to be 82. Socrates was murdered at 70. Plato died at 81. Herodotus lived to be 100 years old.

All these men were brain workers. Most of them owed their long lives to mental activity. They all enjoyed their work as do all brain workers. If brain work prolongs life, how long will that man live whose brain enabled him to invent a machine that sings and talks like a human being? Mr. Thomas Edison need not be surprised if he lives to be 100 or even 200 years old.

Defeat of Suffrage Bill in England.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Yes the suffragists of England have lost in their fight for the franchise, but it was not the British M. P.'s that killed the bill. Look over today's papers Mr. Canadian and see if it wasn't rather the 50 Irish Nationalists that defeated the bill. According to the figures we read 266 against, 219 for. Reports don't tell us how many British, Scotch or Welsh voted against the bill, but they do tell us that 50 Irish Nationalists voted against it. Why mention this fact and not the rest? Don't be too hasty in laying the blame all on John Bull. Nobody ever got anything unless they fought for it. The American Revolution was militant action and the Americans won. The Suffragists of England are using the same kind of action and voting or no voting by Parliament they will win. Keep your eyes on the militant suffragists of England. They'll soon be bulling John Bull again, and when they get through with John Bull his bulling days will be over, or any other element that gets it into his head that the women of England are going to stand for bull any longer.

AN ANGLO.

STUART, THE CAVALRY LEADER.

Gmaliel Bradford Jr. in the Atlantic.

Women liked J. E. B. Stuart. It was a grand thing to be the first officer in the Confederate Cavalry, with a blue eye and a fair beard, and all gold, like Horace's Pyrrha, from hat to spurs. When he rode singing and laughing into a little town, by river or seashore, they flocked to meet him, young and old, and touched his garments and begged his buttons and kissed his gloved hands, until he suggested that his cheeks were available and then they kissed those, young and old alike. They showered him with flowers, buried him under nosegays and garlands, till he rode like old God Bacchus or the Queen of May. What an odd fashion of making war! And the best I have met with is, that one day Stuart described one of these occurrences to his great chieftain. "I had to wear her garland until I was out of sight," apologized the young cavalier. "Why aren't you wearing it now?" retorted Lee. Isn't that admirable? I verily believe that if any young woman had the unimaginable audacity to throw a garland over Lee he would have worn it through the streets of Richmond itself.

RUSHING THE SEASON

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the Post-Dispatch by Clark McAdams.

IN THE SPLENDOR OF SPRING.

WHO has looked out upon the fresh green grass
And not felt the cool breath of spring in his heart,
Or lain in the field when the shadow-clouds pass
And not known the magic and depth of her art?
The spirit of tenderness stirs in the air,
The sweet silver notes of the wood thrushes ring,
And the face of the earth is bewitchingly fair
In the splendor of Spring.

WHO has looked out upon the bright waving fields
And not made a song in the keeps of his heart
For joy of the beauty the season reveals
In the scheme of creation of which he is part?
We, too, like the flowers, are but for a day,
A moment uplifting the songs that we sing,
But the vision of God is forever and aye,
In the splendor of Spring.

MOTOR CYCLES.

There is a speed limit for automobiles in St. Louis. If they exceed it too flagrantly in the sight of one of the 12 motor cycle policemen who keep watch upon them, they are pursued with all speed and sometimes captured. This same speed limit applies to motor cycles, but one never hears of a motor cyclist being arrested for speeding, and the presumption is that the police cannot catch them or else leave them to break their own necks. At any rate, they dart in and out among other vehicles at terrific speed. The public peril by reason of their apparent immunity from restraint is illustrated by the story of the farmer who, having permitted an automobile to pass, stepped into the city street only to be bowled over by a motor cycle. He scrambled to his feet and ran back to the curb, where he looked after the two machines whizzing away as he dusted himself off.

"Dern me, if I thought that thing had a colt!" he said.

There are a great many such colts in the city these days. They shoot through the residence districts at a blinding pace. They make a din like a Gatling gun. They leave behind them dust and smoke, the stench of gasoline, and gasping pedestrians who had the good fortune to make the curb. They are a plague. If it is impossible for a motorist to drive without occasionally speeding, it seems doubly impossible for a motor cyclist to ride without going around through town like a nigger-shooter. Now and then one of them hits something. The man and the motor cycle, in that case, almost never see each other again. The machine goes its way, and the man goes his. Reunions are few.

The city is very enthusiastic about the motor cycle. There isn't as much enthusiasm in California over Japanese strawberries.

And we'll have one joyride, anyway;

"Well, I dare say they are about as enthusiastic about them as rich American girls are about untitled foreigners."

"How do you keep your children from playing on the street in front of the house?"

"We forbid them to play in the back yard."

"Don't you want to buy our automobile?"

"No, we are thinking of going away this summer ourselves."

"What lodge is your husband a member of?"

"The 8 o'clock lodge, whichever one that is."

"Do you like summer?"

"Yes, my wife's dresses haven't half as many hooks on them in summer."

"Do you believe that flies carry disease?"

PENNSYLVANIA'S STATE SONG.

From the Baltimore News.

The Senate at Harrisburg has authorized a competition between two songs, both called "Pennsylvania," which have been backed for the honor of being the only genuine State anthem, and will ask critics—of whom we hope not all will be elected on political grounds—to sit in judgment.

One of the authors, Mr. Barrell of Scranton, brings into his verses the Declaration of Independence, the Liberty Bell, Valley Forge and Gettysburg. The other, Mr. Dilley of Philadelphia, "handles" all these and goes his rival a few better by adding coal mining, the steel industry and shipbuilding. But such appropriate subjects as the Molly Maguires, apfelschnitzel, Standard Oil and Mayor Blankenburg are lying around loose, and so the competition may be considered as only beginning.

The Philadelphia Ledger comes forward with the suggestion "How about 'Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here'?" Thus the task before the committee increases. In line with the customary procedure at Harrisburg the next thing will be to vote salaries to the members, have a scandal and then forget it.

MR. SOUSA ON A MARCH.

From the Washington Post.

John Philip Sousa, former leader of the United States Marine Band, is at the Willard after a horseback ride of 300 miles from Hot Springs, Va.

"It is not a test ride, for it is the fifth time I have made the trip," said Mr. Sousa. 'My companion and I made the trip in less than eight days. I can appreciate, after such a journey, how important it is for the officers of the Army to make periodical rides of a like nature. There is nothing that can put a man in such good physical condition, and I can understand how it is that the men of the western prairies ahe always fine specimens of manhood. The outing has done me great good. The roads as a rule were in fine condition, though we had all kinds of weather. Perhaps I may get an inspiration from my journey and write a horseman's march, but at present I am busy with my operas. The trip made me realize that there is much music in the very stillness of nature.

PASSENGER PIGEONS' RETURN.

From the Philadelphia North American.

J. Mark Mauser, former president of the Lehigh Valley Motor Club, reports that a pair of wild pigeons are inhabiting a stretch of woodland along the bank of the Lehigh River near his home.

Mr. Mauser gives credit for the discovery to Moses Newhard, a neighbor, who for many years was an enthusiastic woodsman. Mr. Newhard, in his younger days, trapped and shot tho- region in the palmy days of the wild sands of these birds. The distinguishing characteristic, according to these two lovers of nature, of the wild pigeon is a beautiful bluish bronze. The pigeon was the breeding place of myriads of these birds.

DATES.

13297.—Hudson-Fulton eight days' celebration, New York, began Sept. 25, 1909. There were facsimiles of the Fulton and Hudson boats, a military parade, etc. There was no "regatta of foreign warships." Dr. Cook was welcomed in New York Sept. 21, 1909.

DANIEL BOONE.

C. M. F.—Daniel Boone was born in Bucks County, Pa., Nov. 2, 1735, according to James A. Boone of Indianapolis, his grandson. He died Sept. 20, 1820. He came to Missouri in 1795. Boone and his wife died near what is now Marthasville, in Warren County, Mo., and were buried about one mile a little south of east of Marthasville, in the old Bryan graveyard. By an act of the Legislature of Missouri, Kentucky was given the privilege of removing the remains of both Boone and his wife to Kentucky. Their bodies now rest in one of the State institutions in Frankfort, Ky., where they have a place of high honor. In the old graveyard where they were buried the excavations made to remove their bodies were very plainly to be seen, and the old headstones and footstones that marked their burial place were still there. The headstone slab, about 1½ feet wide, with the initials of both cut into the stone with an ordinary cold chisel. The Ohio State Journal of Sept. 24, 1818, says: As he lived so he died, with his gun in his hand. We are informed by a gentleman direct from Boone's settlement, on the Missouri, that early in last month Col. Boone rode to the deer lick and seated himself within a blind raised to conceal him from the game; that while sitting thus concealed with his old, trusty rifle in his hands pointed toward the lick, the muzzle resting on a leg, his face to the breech of his gun, his rifle cocked, his finger on the trigger, one eye shut, the other looking along the barrel through the sights—in this position without a struggle or motion, and, of course, without pain, he breathed out his last so gently that when he was found next day by his friends, although stiff and cold, he looked as if alive, with his gun in hand, just in the act of firing. It is not altogether certain if a buck had come into range of his gun, which had been the death of thousands, but it might have obeyed its old employer's mind and discharged itself. This hypothesis, being novel, we leave to the solution of the curious.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

MARY'S MOTHER.—To freshen the color of a carpet: After thoroughly freeing it from dust by means of shaking and sweeping, put down the carpet as usual, and then proceed to rub it with a flannel wrung out in soapsuds to which turpentine has been added. The right proportion is a tablespoonful of turpentine to a gallon of suds. Wash only a small portion at a time, and rub it as dry as possible with a clean cloth before proceeding to the next spot. Keep the windows open or a fire burning till the carpet is perfectly dry.

ANXIOUS INQUIRER.—Whitewash for damp walls: Take half peck well-burned quicklime, fresh from kiln, slake with hot water sufficient to reduce it to a paste; pass it through fine sieve; add gallon clean white salt which has been dissolved in a small quantity of boiling water, and a thin, smooth paste, also hot, made from 1 lb. fine rice flour; also ¼ lb. best white glue, made in the water bath. Mix; stir well; add ¼ lb. best Spanish whiting in 5 quarts boiling water; stir, cover to retain heat and exclude dust; let stand a week. Heat to boiling, stir and apply hot. These proportions cover 40 square yards. (Phone Building Commissioner.)

MISCELLANEOUS.

UNINFORMED.—The term "mortgage banker" is no doubt a local one, and by inquiring among the real estate fraternity in your city they may enlighten you. We doubt whether the same applies to banking.

READER.—John Adams was not "connected with the presidency" before Washington. He was the second President. He detested Washington, and once said of him, "If that woolen-headed man had not kept his mouth shut he would have been found out."

ARCHER.—Archery was known to all the ancient peoples. In the Holy Land 300 archers and 17 knights sustained the charge of the whole Turkish and Saracen army. There are archery clubs in England and we occasionally read of archery at lawn parties in this country. The American Indian was a skillful archer.

MRS. H. C. G.—Roseleaf beads: Fresh rose leaves are thrown, handful by handful, into the hopper of an ordinary kitchen meat-chopper. A dish is placed beneath to catch the flood of juices that pours from them as they are ground. These juices are poured back upon the pulp; and the wet mass is then spread on an iron baking pan. It is the contact of the iron that results in the jet-black color which is eventually seen in the beads. For 24 hours the mass remains on the pan, being occasionally turned and stirred with a knife in order that every portion of the mass may be brought in contact with the iron. When this is accomplished, the mass is run through the hopper again and put back upon the pan, an operation which is repeated nine times. Then the mass has taken on the appearance of a coal-black dough, with absolutely no resemblance to rose leaves, but, curiously enough, retaining all their scent. At the end of the ninth day the paste is generally rolled, but only experience can determine whether it is ready or whether further drying is necessary. If too dry, it may be moistened with a little water. When the paste is ready to roll, it will retain any form into which it is molded. If too hard, it will crack. For beads a sufficient quantity of pulp is pinched out to make a bead as large again as is required. It is manipulated until the desired spherical form is obtained, and is then left on a flat surface to harden. Twenty-four hours later it is rolled again, smoothed and compressed, and left to harden for another day. A wire or a hatpin may be used to pierce the beads through the center, and the beads may be left upon the wire or the pin to harden.

SWON.—Chicken mites: Shave or chop one 10-cent cake of laundry soap into one pint of soft water. Heat or allow to stand until a soap paste is formed. Stir in one pound of commercial cresol and heat or allow to stand until soap paste is dissolved. Stir in one gallon of kerosene. For use dilute with 50 parts of water, which will make a milky colored liquid. Commercial cresol may be obtained from the druggist for about 30 cents a pound. Be careful not to get any of it on the hands or face, as it will cause intense smarting. Clean out the house thoroughly, remove and burn contents of nest boxes. Apply thoroughly with a brush or a good hand sprayer, preferably the latter, being sure to get it into all cracks and crevices where mites can hide. Make two applications in the forenoon. The next forenoon make a careful examination, and if any mites are found alive, spray again. This may not kill all the eggs, so in one week spray again. To keep them out, keep the house clean and spray occasionally.

MILITANCY DEFEATS SUFFRAGE BILL IN BRITISH PARLIAMENT

Rejection on second reading in the Commons is attributed to violent acts of those who advocate votes for women—Defeat of amendment in Michigan said to be due to the acts of British militants.

MILITANCY on the part of suffragists—the burning of buildings, window smashing, etc.—is said to have alienated so many votes that it caused the defeat, on the second reading in the British House of Commons, of the bill granting the vote to women. Evidently the militants do not believe this is the reason for their defeat and signalized the action of the House by an attempt to blow up St. Paul's Church. At least a bomb was found wrapped in suffragist newspapers back of the altar.

Michigan has rejected a woman's suffrage amendment by a large majority and newspapers attribute this to the reaction caused by British outrages.

Reflex of Militancy Here.

Pittsburg Dispatch: The rejection of woman suffrage by the House of Commons last night can be set down by the supporters of the movement to the outrageous acts of the militants. This is made plain by the debate and even more conclusively shown by the vote. The bill received the votes of less than a third of the full membership of the House, 219 out of 670, yet only a few more, or 266, voted against it. There were 185 others, a majority of whom presumably not opposed to the principle and probably enough, if they had voted with the 219, to have carried the measure through, but these non-voters, disgusted with the course of the militants and anxious to avoid the odium of association in any degree, preferred to stay away.

The same repulsion had been observed in Michigan, where an election so close that the result was in doubt was followed a few months later by an adverse majority of nearly 100,000. Thus the militants are not only destroying hope of gaining their end at home but they are putting back the movement in other countries.

The Eloquent Vote.

New York World: There is but one surprising thing about the division of 266 to 219 in the House of Commons against the woman's suffrage bill! This is the size of the affirmative vote. No parliamentary body representing a civilized society can afford to appear as under the duress of organized lawlessness and such would have been the appearance of the Commons had it voted to forward this bill. That so many as 219 still supported the measure speaks eloquently and regretfully of what might have been but for the crazy Pankhurst crusade of violence.

Arousing the British Bull Dog.

New York Press: The House of Commons has rejected the woman's suffrage bill which at one time the best political judgment of Great Britain thought would become law when the matter was at last acted upon by parliament; but that time was before Great Britain had gone through a carnival of disorder, lawlessness and crime, all done in the name of British suffragettes. The women of Great Britain, asking for votes, have declared that the only way they could make progress with their cause would be for them to hammer it into the British men; but men of Great Britain for that matter of any race, do not in arguments like to be convinced with clubs, shotguns and dynamite.

Delay Due to Militants

New York Tribune: Analysis of Tuesday's vote in Parliament suggests that the bill enfranchising the majority of English women might have passed the House had it not been for the revulsion and disgust caused by the current campaign of malicious mischief. Women who burn churches, poison dogs and race horses and imperil human lives wholesale, in the name of justice and humanity, are doing injustice to the majority of their sex and are inflicting upon humanity an unspeakable wrong. They are also delaying the very end which they profess to seek.

Militants' Political Error.

New York Post: If even the mild concession to suffragist sentiment of a second reading was refused it is probably right to ascribe it to resentment at the antics of the militant suffragists. Sir Edward Grey, an outspoken friend of the enfranchisement of women, referred to the Pankhurst propaganda as the inconsiderate criminal conduct of a small minority; but the outstanding fact is that just one occupant of the opposition front bench voted for the bill, and altogether only 22 votes out of the 219 cast in its favor came from the Unionist side. This means that Mrs. Pankhurst and her followers are trying to oust a government which is much more favorable to woman suffrage than any Government that could be put up in its stead.

Frantic Zealotry.

New York Evening Sun: The non-militant woman suffragists feel strongly that Pankhurstism has lost them the franchise again. It is scorcely possible that Mrs. Pankhurst herself has been actuated by selfish motives; but her advocacy has long since passed into a frantic zealotry which seems to have driven out all pretension of fair-mindedness. As to her followers, the guerilla corps always attracts the mercenaries.

A Home Boycott.

New Orleans Times-Democrat: Disregarding for the time international antagonisms and dislikes, a German suffragette—Frau Duerrin of Nuremburg—has written a letter of advice to her militant British sisters. She urges them to drop "militancy" of the window-smashing, theater-burning, train-wrecking type, and substitute therefor what she terms the "household boycott." "A burned dinner," she writes, "has far more value in convincing Englishmen that something is wrong than merely a burned villa. * * * By a household boycott you would enforce on men that division of labor between the sexes which we care so much about. In Frau Duerrin's own home-land we do not suppose the suggestion would be considered. In England the suffragettes will reject it, we prophesy, for two reasons. The first is because the German housewife's plan, while cruel and abhorrent in the masculine view, is sane, practical and logical—and England's "wild women" in their present state of mind, are disposed neither to listen nor appeal to reason.

Severity Breeds Sympathy.

Chicago Journal: As government gets more severe, suffrage gets more sympathy. The militants are playing for martyrdom; and the British Government has not cruelty enough to set them trials from which they will shrink. Yet it is not so dissociated from other facts in English life as American observers may think. The English husband not only has a monopoly of voting for the family, but also has a legal right to thrash his wife into obedience to his will.

In Liverpool last year, two men beat their wives a little too hard, and the women died; but these husbands were not treated as murderers. They were punished only by short terms of imprisonment.

Dr. Abbott Ousted

AT the last session of the American Peace Society's Congress in St. Louis Rev. Lyman Abbott, editor of "The Outlook," was unanimously condemned and ousted from a Vice-Presidency because he advocated a strong navy. This was held to be inimical to the objects of the society.

He Sheared a Lion.

Philadelphia Ledger: What does the American Peace Society mean by excising from the list of its vice-presidents the name of the venerable Dr. Lyman Abbott? Is it because he has been a leading protagonist of the cause in this country for so many long years? The fact that he urged larger appropriations for the navy is not in itself a sufficient excuse for this radical action. There are more ways than one of accomplishing an object. Doctor Abbott, for instance, took into his bosom the champion of the "big stick," that warlike Lycurgus who himself was the winner of a Nobel prize because he was so expert in terminating hostilities in Manchuria. That was the most practical move for peace made in this country in years, the absorption, as it were, of the lion by the lamb.

The Wicked Partner.

New York World: Amazement crowds upon chagrin as the American public, at first incredulous, is forced to believe that Dr. Lyman Abbott of the esteemed Outlook has been pitched out of the American Peace Society unanimously, with no more ceremony than attends the divorce of a tramp from a free lunch spread.

The doctor's undoing is partly the work of a strenuous partner; a wicked partner, the peace men say. The contributing editor himself the society could not expel, because he never was and never wished to be a member of any group of undesirables, weaklings and mollycoddles who put "Peace" into their title.

This sad experience seems to teach that to avoid offense in a cynical world even the most blameless old man should walk wary of wicked partners and read every petition, to see that he isn't signing a disguised promissory note.

Arbitration as a Fetich.

Washington Post: No patriotic American could find it possible to applaud the action of the American Peace Society in putting a stigma on Dr. Lyman Abbott, a vice-president of that body, for having signed the appeal of the American Navy League for larger appropriations for the American navy. No clear-headed advocate of peace would care to deny that a full complement of American warships would afford a better guarantee of peace right at this moment than the lame and halting no-battleship policy indorsed by the men who condemned Dr. Abbott. No class of Americans but such as have come to agitate arbitration, not as the square deal, but as a fetich, could support a resolution urging the American Government to submit the canal controversy to The Hague Court for arbitration.

The Effect of Evil Associations.

Detroit Free Press: In the case of Dr. Lyman Abbott, editor of the Outlook, we see once more how evil associations can corrupt the most guileless of minds. The good doctor has been dropped from membership in the American Peace Society. Yes, actually kicked out of the organization of which he once was a shining light and an honorary vice-president. Love of peace and friendship with the belligerent associate editor assimilate no more successfully than the service of God and mammon.

Yes, it is sad to think of Dr. Abbott as a horrible example.

A Militarist Oliver Twist.

Chicago Tribune: The mark of blood is on the venerable and gentle Abbott, and the wail of the widow and orphans echoes about him. The sapient society of piffling peace saw this monster within the precise precincts of its well ordered corporation and, conquering a palsy of shudders and a vertigo of fear, fired him.

He asked for battleships—this menacing Oliver Twist of militarism; he wanted more. Let him go out and howl in the night like a hungry wolf in the deep forest. He wants to see stricken fields and wreckage floating on the waters. He wants doom, that's what he wants.

Peace [illegible] its victories and peace societies their invertebrates.

The Real Work for Peace.

Baltimore News: The press has inevitably turned to the humorous side of the question and seen in the rejection of Dr. Abbott the results of the contributing editor's corrupting influence upon him. Mr. Roosevelt, it so happens, is the one man in this country, and one of the very few in the world, whose activities for peace have received international recognition. The bestowal upon him of the Nobel Peace prize was in token of practical and successful efforts to meet and overcome existing conditions of war. And for all his belief in big navies, he did more for peace than could the American Peace Society in a half century of academic discussion.

Nicholas Yields

RUSSIA having abandoned Montenegro, King Nicholas was compelled to yield and abandon Scutari. His cabinet resigned and there are rumors that he will abdicate to appease his people, who were willing to fight all Europe and believe they could win.

Nicholas' Prudent Act.

Boston Herald: It is to be hoped that King Nicholas will not lose by his prudent resolve to retire from the captured city. He loses his cabinet—until he appoints another; but it is not at all likely that he will lose his crown, as at one time he seemed to fear that he would. Indeed, his abdication is out of the question—unless it be his own wish to see Prince Danilo crowned; because his people love him so well, as patriot, hero and life-long champion of the national liberty, that he cannot lose their affection or confidence. And from the victor of Scutari no atom of the glory of victory can be taken through his mere relinquishment of the spoils. The old King is wisely and worthily rounding out an honorable career.

Russia Declined to Aid.

Cleveland Leader: The "concert of the powers" is supreme in this crisis because of the universal dread of a general European war. It prevailed in Montenegro because that little kingdom could not hope to resist Austria-Hungary if unaided, and it became evident that Russia, the chief backer of the Balkan nations, was not willing to take the chances of a war which might engulf the continent. And Austria-Hungary, in turn, was fearful of the consequences of bringing on hostilities, unless the other great powers approved the course of the dual monarchy.

Cynical Selfishness.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: From American viewpoints the conduct of the great powers in this matter exhibits the depth of cynical and sordid selfishness. The "concert of the powers" has upheld Turkish misrule ever since 1878, when Germany, Austria France and England united to restrain Russia from making a final end of the Turk in Europe.

Ever since the beginning of the war the cultures of European dynastic intrigue have been seeking a chance to grab some of the spoils without risking anything in a fight. Bulgaria was menaced through Roumania. The Bulgarians set their jaws and virtually invited the Roumanians to "come on."

However, the "concert" has finally found a Balkan state small enough to bully with safety. That is why Montenegro has to yield her hard earned prize of war, purchased with the blood of her people.

ROME, May 10.—One of the most artistic figures at the fancy dress ball at the British Embassy was Mrs. Post Wheeler(Hallie Erminie Rives of Hopkinsville, Ky., the wife of the secretary of the American Embassy. She appeared in a costume representing "Springtime" as portrayed by Botticelli. Mr. Wheeler went as a Japanese warrior of the famous Samurai clan, the costume being one that came into his possession while he was second secretary of the American Embassy in Tokio. That ball was the talk of Rome for months before it took place. It will fill the gossips' talk for many a day to come at "teas" and evening receptions.

Rome society will look back on it as the most important social function that has ever taken place in the Eternal City.

Lady Rodd is an ambitious hostess, Sir Rennell is a man of parts, an enthusiastic student of classical and mediaeval lore. He lives to please his wife first, and to serve the British Empire second. With ample residential quarters, unlimited means and the materials of a cosmopolitan society unequaled in any other European city, the Ambassador and his wife were in a privileged position to do the thing on a big scale.

The guests numbered over 500; the jewels worn were roughly valued at $20,000,000. The leading European capitals were ransacked for special details in dress that Rome shopkeepers could not supply.

Italy is famed for her beautiful women and beauty experts would have had a difficult task to award the prize. It would be hard to imagine a more entrancing Venus than Princess Potengiani or a more voluptuous houri than Princess Del Drago. But these are only two taken at random from hundreds. Princess Teano, with eyes which outshine the stars, and the Duchess of Paterno, the former representing an ancestress in a gown of priceless value, the latter daintily dressed in Chinese costume with jewels valued at $100,000, would have been difficult to match outside the embassy ball room.

Dorothy Deacon Sparkled With Jewels.

Princess Dolly Radziwill (Dorothy Deacon), peerless among the members of the Persian group, was conspicuous. Diamonds, rubies, pearls, the whole jewel case of the great princely family of which she is one of the youngest reigning members seemed to be collected about her persons.

"The Americans always beat us," laughingly remarked the Donna Franca Florio, a member of the same group. Yet her own jewels, chiefly pearls sewn on a Persian costume, blue silk of exquisite texture, were worth $400,000. The ball opened with the groups of goddesses from Mt. Olympus, headed by Lady Rodd as Juno. Several goddesses took part in the pageant, dressed chiefly as Amazons, including Mrs. Courtenay Stewart (Miss Waldo Story), Miss Parrish and the Misses Pourtales. These formed a guard of honor to the chief deities, which included the Venus aforesaid, Mars, Minerva (Marchioness Guiccioli), Ulysses, Penelope, Bacchus and others.

A magnificent group was that of Louis the Moor, in which the Marquis Di Bagno as Betrice D'Este was the most prominent womanly figure. All eyes were turned to the Vittora Colonna group when it entered the ball room headed by the Prince in ancestral splendor surrounded by his knights and pages. But the most beautiful figure among them was Princess Teano, who seemed to have stepped out of one of Van Dyck's pictures of contemporary court life.

The Queen of Sheba (Marchioness Cassati) with her gold fingernails, gold flowers and wonderful jewels, looked as thoroughly regal sun divinity as the light flashed upon her tiara and multiplied the sparkles of the countless gems which studded her queenly robes.

Baroness Carried a Live Snake.

The younger Baroness Blanc carried in her hand a live snake, which humanlike, was charmed with his mistress' beauty and offered no other sign of life than coiling and uncoiling itself about her arm.

Luncheons and dinners which the American Ambassador and Mrs. O'Brien are giving in Barberini palace during the Rome season serve to bring together many prominent Americans who would not otherwise have a chance of meeting and the geniality of host and hostess, the charm of the beautiful reception rooms, and not least, the cultinary attainments of the Ambassador's famous chef, combine to make those among the pleasantests social functions of the season.

Princess Abamelek, famous for her dancing, her priceless jewels and the lavish entertainments given at her villa on the Janiculum Hill, recently gave a ball at which many American women were among the guests. Mrs. Nelson Gay wore a white satin and gold brocade trimmed with gold lace and her train was entirely of lace lined with gold gauze. Donna Elsie Tortonia (Mary Moore of New York) was resplendent in white and silver brocade with a train of cloth of silver adorned with sprays of tiny roses. Duchess Lante Della Rovere (Anita Allen of St. Louis) had a magnificent gown of white chiffon embroidered with diamonds and a train of black satin lined with white chiffon.

Laya Machat has just signed a contract with the International Dramatic Company to appear in various towns in Italy as a full-fledged prima donna. She left Rome with Countess Galli to make her debut at Cosenca, a flourishing city in Calabria, where she appeared in star roles in "Don Pasquale" and "Pagliacci." Her life since landing at Naples eighteen months ago has been a veritable romance. Countess Galli, Italian aristocrat, whose sister is lady in waiting to Queen Margherita, was so taken with the American girl that she virtually adopted her, assisted her with her studies and has been the fairy godmother who has helped her to fame.

"I shall not let her go all that way alone," said the Countess to the Post-Dispatch correspondent, "and I mean to take her to Cosenca myself and be present at the triumph which I know awaits her there."

Cosenca suffered severely by the great earthquake that destroyed Messina four years ago. Now it is an industrial, aristocratic and musical center of southern Italy.

Sacchetto Wins New Dancing Laurels.

Rita Sacchetto, the famous Italian dancer and one of the most admired impersonators of her art, is now winning fresh laurels in Rome. Audiences crowd nightly to see her latest dances at the Apollo Theater. She is known in half the capitals of Europe and appeared in America about three years ago, performing in the Metropolitan Opera House in New York.

Senorita Sacchetto is 26 years old and has been on the stage nearly six years, but her name has never been coupled with that of one of the opposite sex. A dancing girl, especially one of particular beauty, is supposed to have scores of admirers. The handsome daughter of Eve herself is more prone to accept homage than her homely sister, yet public gossip has never weaved for Rita Sacchetto the slightest romance, much less anything approaching incorrect conduct.

"Do you dislike men that you keep them so much at a distance?" the Post-Dispatch correspondent ventured to ask at an interview granted as a special favor, for she hates to be "interviewed."

"Not in the least" she answered laughing. "I find male companionship just as interesting in its way as that of my own sex. But you must understand me. I won't admit that the attraction of beauty, such as I am supposed to have, shall enter in any way into the question. I understand spiritual love; the rest is a riddle to me."

That, in a nutshell, is Signora Sacchetto's interpretation of life. She is an "intellectual" and had she not taken up dancing as a profession she would have shone in the world of letters and made her name as a writer. She has raised her art to the level of a classic, and makes it the medium for interpreting all the great musical composers; she "dances" Wagner and Brahms and Chopin, marking their separate individualities with a grace and subtlety which reveal carefully thought out plans of expressing music by the rhythm of bodily motion..

Some little time ago a German Prince of the house of Luxembourg—whose further identity is not revealed—gave Rita Sacchetto to understand that his admiration for her pointed to the matrimonial altar and he would sacrifice all to make her his wife. The lady smiled but wrote back that above all her liberty and her art were here first aim in life and she had made up her mind to remain single.

The ball given by Count and Countess Dentice di Fraszo at their palatial suite on Via Abruzzi will rank as one of the most brilliant functions of an unusually brilliant year among society entertainers. The Countess (formerly Georgina Wilde of St. Louis) has just completed her seventh year as a Roman matron and she shines not only as a hostess, but as a brilliant linguist, musician, horse woman and is equally at home in politics and literature. She unites American dash and brilliancy with old-world culture and distinction of manner, and being yet well under 30, is looked upon as one of the rising hostesses who have made Rome famous as a cosmopolitan center, perhaps unequaled in any other European capital.

ALL NIGHT FUNCTIONS THE FAD IN LONDON SMART SET

LONDON, May 10.—The latest fad among smart English and Anglo-American hostesses is to break their evening functions up into short entertainments.

A dinner begins the evening, followed by a 45-minute musical entertainment with some clever humorist. This lasts till about 11:30 as a rule, and light buffet refreshments are then served. Then comes dancing till about 1 or later, and afterward a regular "sit down" supper. The party then divides; those wishing to leave do so, while those remaining either dance or have games, which generally end in a regular romp among the young people. The entertainment closes with a breakfast of eggs and bacon, Pilsener ale, dumplings made with beer and various other wholesome and unwholesome eatables.

Coffee is the general beverage for girls and women. Some make up parties for escorting each other home. These "scrap parties," as they are called, are coming more and more into favor. The Duchess of Marlborough started something of the sort last season and it has since developed.

MRS. DUKE "CATCHES ON" IN LONDON'S HIGHEST SOCIETY.

LONDON, May 10.—James B. Duke, American tobacco magnate, who has come to London to live, has taken No. 32 Grosvenor Square on lease from Mrs. James Henry Smith, for the season. Mr. and Mrs. Duke will give a series of big dinner parties in June and their present intention is to take a house for the Ascot races and have a house party.

Mrs. Duke has become very popular, not only among her own country women, but with the King Edward's old "set." She has been a guest of Lord and Lady Farquahar, who are very exclusive. She is a friend of the Duchess of Portland, the Duchess of Sutherland and the Duchess of Wellington, each of the three having her own set.

She is in the diplomatic set, too, and has given a luncheon party since her arrival, at which Count Albert Mensdorff, the Austrian-Hungarian Ambassador; Marquis de Soveral, formerly Portuguese Minister, and other diplomats, were present. For her luncheon party the dining room was a bower of orange roses, while the Italian drawing room on the opposite side of the marble hall was filled with flowers to match the old tapestries which adorn the walls, the old vestments used as screens and the chair backs.

MINISTER MARBURG GIVES BALL FOR BRUSSELS GIRLS

BRUSSELS, Belgium, May 10.—American Minister Marburg and his wife gave a ball to which were invited all the young ladies in Brussels society. Only a few married couples attended. The whole first floor of the great palace King Albert occupied before he was crowned was given up to dancing.

ALL LONDON IS QUOTING AN AMERICAN GIRL'S SONG.

LONDON, May 10.—Shirley Kellogg, American comedienne, is giving London a new catch phrase in "Who are you with tonight?" the principal line from her new song in "Hullo Ragtime" at the Hippodrome. Miss Kellogg, in the play, is discovered in the royal box and answers the invitation to come to the stage with this song. It has "caught on" immensely.

BATTLES OF ROYAL MOTHERS-IN-LAW ANNOY MADRID

Spanish Capital Scents Trouble in the News That Princess Henry of Battenberg Is Going There to Live.

MADRID, Spain, May 10.—Queen Victoria's mother, Princess Henry of Battenberg, expects to come to Madrid to take up her permanent abode, having sold her English residence, Osborne cottage, on the Isle of Wight.

The news has been received at the royal palace with mingled emotions, and there are already signs of a brewing storm, as the King's mother has always strongly objected to the masterful tactics of her son's mother-in-law. It has been a considerable time since Princess Henry has made a long visit to her daughter on that account. The King and Queen have gone yearly to the Isle of Wight instead. But these visits will of course cease.

King George has signified his desire to place Frogmore House, near Windsor, at the disposal of his aunt after Prince and Princess Christian leave it for their own country place, Cumberland lodge which is going through alterations. Princess Henry has, however, informed everybody that she expects to spend most of her time in the future with her only daughter.

Dowager Queen Greatly Beloved.

Queen Maria Christine, who is greatly loved in Spain for her devotion to her son through his minority and the conciliatory attitude toward the people during her rule as regent, is receiving a good deal of sympathy at the prospect of having to fight for her position at her son's court with Princess Henry. The latter was the favorite daughter of old Queen Victoria of England and anyone familiar with the inner story of the English Queen's last years knows what a terror Princess Henry was to cabinet ministers, ambassadors and courtiers. She ruled the aged Queen and her word, placed in the Queen's mouth, was law, not only at Windsor Castle and Buckingham Palace, but in the most important affairs of State.

She made herself so obnoxious that her brother, King Edward, would not make the slightest move to place a royal residence near London at her disposal. She was kept away, on the Isle of Wight, as far from state affairs as possible. King George appeals to feel a little kinder toward his aunt in this respect. But she apparently intends to place the Madrid court under her rule.

Strong-Minded Princess Henry.

Princess Heny and Queen Maria Christina have already had their preliminary skirmishes and the Dowager Queen of Spain, an imperial Archduchess of Austria, has not the slightest intention of allowing the English princess to usurp he position as counsellor-in-chief to her son, the King, and special guardian in the education of the small grandsons, Crown Prince Alfonso and Prince Jaime.

It is over the control of the children that the two grandmothers will clash first. Princess Henry is determined that they shall be brought up in the English way, trained at first to be good at sport, with books and manners as secondary; Queen Christina is equally determined that they shall be educated in the Spanish way, with a certain amount of etiquette and ceremony even from the beginning to accustom them to the great amount of it they will always have to endure in their native country when they are grown and with a severe training in literature and history, accomplishment of every Spanish gentleman.

The English grandmother has so far been unable to force her plans in Madrid from the Isle of Wight. But she is apparently now taking the bull by the horns in coming to Madrid.

The King and Queen are said to have asked Helen Keller to visit the Madrid court as their guest to try to help Don Jaime, their deaf-mute child. It is reported that their attention was called to Miss Keller by Georgette Leblanc, Maeterlinck's wife, who visited her in Boston last year. Maeterlinck lately referred to Miss Keller in his writings, saying "She has conquered silence and darkness."

Baroness Fiddling in Berlin Cafe.

BERLIN, May 10.—Baroness Melissa Tomory, once a much admired beauty in Viennese high society, has been discovered playing the violin at $1.50 a night in a low night cafe. She ran away from home at the age of 19 and in the subsequent 16 years has led an adventurous life. She is said to be a niece of an Austrian Ambassador.

MANUEL'S BRIDE TO HAVE NEW TITLE WHILE EXILED

She Will Be Known as Duchess of Saxony Until Her Husband Is Restored to Portuguese Throne.

BERLIN, May 10.—"Royal Highness Duchess of Saxony," is the title that will be first borne by Princess Augustine Victoria of the Hohenzollerns as the bride of ex-King Manuel of Portugal. She hopes equally to be recognized Queen of Portugal, but she will not be known as such unless there is a formal restoration.

They first met about a year ago in Munich when Manuel was paying a visit to a kinswoman, the widow of Duke Charles Theodore of Bavaria, who was Infanta Maria Joseph of Portugal. They were betrothed in the latter part of last month with the consent of Emperor William. The marriage probably will take place soon.

Manuel was born on Nov. 15, 1889, the day his father's great uncle, Dom Pedro II, was deposed from the throne of Brazil. He succeeded his father and elder brother on the throne of Portugal after their assassination in Lisbon, Feb. 1, 1908. The revolution, in October, 1910, put an end to the monarchy and Manuel escaped to Gibraltar. From there he went to England and for some time was the guest of his mother's eldest brother. Duke d'Orleans, at Wood Norton. He subsequently took the lease of Sir Harry McLean's house, "Abercorn," Richmond, where he has since resided with his mother, Queen Amelie.

The bride-elect, the only daughter of Prince William, the head of the non-reigning line of Hohenzollerns, was born in Potsdam, Aug. 19, 1890, and is nine months younger than her fiance. Manuel is second cousin to his future bride through her paternal grandmother, Princess Antonia, who was a daughter of Queen Maria Da Gloria of Portugal and so is the aunt of King Carlos, Manuel's father.

The Bride's senior uncle is the crown prince of Roumania who married the Duke of Edinburg's daughter, Princess Marie, and Prince Charles and Princess Elizabeth of Roumania are her first cousins, while her great-aunt, the Countess of Flanders, was the mother of the King of the Belgians, of Princess Josephine, the wife of Prince Charles of Hohenzollern, the bride's junior uncle and of Princess Henriette, Duchess of Vendome.

MILITANCY DEFEATS SUFFRAGE BILL IN BRITISH PARLIAMENT

Rejection on second reading in the Commons is attributed to violent acts of those who advocate votes for women—Defeat of amendment in Michigan said to be due to the acts of British militants.

MILITANCY on the part of suffragists—the burning of buildings, window smashing, etc.—is said to have alienated so many votes that it caused the defeat, on the second reading in the British House of Commons, of the bill granting the vote to women. Evidently the militants do not believe this is the reason for their defeat and signalized the action of the House by an attempt to blow up St. Paul's Church. At least a bomb was found wrapped in suffragist newspapers back of the altar.

Michigan has rejected a woman's suffrage amendment by a large majority and newspapers attribute this to the reaction caused by British outrages.

Reflex of Militancy Here.

Pittsburg Dispatch: The rejection of woman suffrage by the House of Commons last night can be set down by the supporters of the movement to the outrageous acts of the militants. This is made plain by the debate and even more conclusively shown by the vote. The bill received the votes of less than a third of the full membership of the House, 219 out of 670, yet only a few more, or 266, voted against it. There were 185 others, a majority of whom presumably not opposed to the principle and probably enough, if they had voted with the 219, to have carried the measure through, but these non-voters, disgusted with the course of the militants and anxious to avoid the odium of association in any degree, preferred to stay away.

The same repulsion had been observed in Michigan, where an election so close that the result was in doubt was followed a few months later by an adverse majority of nearly 100,000. Thus the militants are not only destroying hope of gaining their end at home but they are putting back the movement in other countries.

The Eloquent Vote.

New York World: There is but one surprising thing about the division of 266 to 219 in the House of Commons against the woman's suffrage bill! This is the size of the affirmative vote. No parliamentary body representing a civilized society can afford to appear as under the duress of organized lawlessness and such would have been the appearance of the Commons had it voted to forward this bill. That so many as 219 still supported the measure speaks eloquently and regretfully of what might have been but for the crazy Pankhurst crusade of violence.

Arousing the British Bull Dog.

New York Press: The House of Commons has rejected the woman's suffrage bill which at one time the best political judgment of Great Britain thought would become law when the matter was at last acted upon by parliament; but that time was before Great Britain had gone through a carnival of disorder, lawlessness and crime, all done in the name of British suffragettes. The women of Great Britain, asking for votes, have declared that the only way they could make progress with their cause would be for them to hammer it into the British men; but men of Great Britain for that matter of any race, do not in arguments like to be convinced with clubs, shotguns and dynamite.

Delay Due to Militants.

New York Tribune: Analysis of Tuesday's vote in Parliament suggests that the bill enfranchising the majority of English women might have passed the House had it not been for the revulsion and disgust caused by the current campaign of malicious mischief. Women who burn churches, poison dogs and race horses and imperil human lives wholesale, in the name of justice and humanity, are doing injustice to the majority of their sex and are inflicting upon humanity an unspeakable wrong. They are also delaying the very end which they profess to seek.

Militants' Political Error.

New York Post: If even the mild concession to suffragist sentiment of a second reading was refused it is probably right to ascribe it to resentment at the antics of the militant suffragists. Sir Edward Grey, an outspoken friend of the enfranchisement of women, referred to the Pankhurst propaganda as the inconsiderate criminal conduct of a small minority; but the outstanding fact is that just one occupant of the opposition front bench voted for the bill, and altogether only 22 votes out of the 219 cast in its favor came from the Unionist side. This means that Mrs. Pankhurst and her followers are trying to oust a government which is much more favorable to woman suffrage than any Government that could be put up in its stead.

Frantic Zealotry.

New York Evening Sun: The non-militant woman suffragists feel strongly that Pankhurstism has lost them the franchise again. It is scarcely possible that Mrs. Pankhurst herself has been actuated by selfish motives; but her advocacy has long since passed into a frantic zealotry which seems to have driven out all pretension of fair-mindedness. As to her followers, the guerilla corps always attracts the mercenaries.

A Home Boycott.

New Orleans Times-Democrat: Disregarding for the time international antagonisms and dislikes, a German suffragette—Frau Duerrin of Nuremburg—has written a letter of advice to her militant British sisters. She urges them to drop "militancy" of the window-smashing, theater-burning, train-wrecking type, and substitute therefor what she terms the "household boycott." "A burned dinner," she writes, "has far more value in convincing Englishmen that something is wrong than merely a burned villa. * * * By a household boycott you would enforce on men that division of labor between the sexes which we care so much about. In Frau Duerrin's own home-land we do not suppose the suggestion would be considered. In England the suffragettes will reject it, we prophesy, for two reasons. The first is because the German housewife's plan, while cruel and abhorrent in the masculine view, is sane, practical and logical—and England's "wild women" in their present state of mind, are disposed neither to listen nor appeal to reason.

Severity Breeds Sympathy.

Chicago Journal: As government gets more severe, suffrage gets more sympathy. The militants are playing for martyrdom; and the British Government has not cruelty enough to set them trials from which they will shrink. Yet it is not so dissociated from other facts in English life as American observers may think. The English husband not only has a monopoly of voting for the family, but also has a legal right to thrash his wife into obedience to his will.

In Liverpool last year, two men beat their wives a little too hard, and the women died; but these husbands were not treated as murderers. They were punished only by short terms of imprisonment.

Dr. Abbott Ousted

AT the last session of the American Peace Society's Congress in St. Louis Rev. Lyman Abbott, editor of "The Outlook," was unanimously condemned and ousted from a Vice-Presidency because he advocated a strong navy. This was held to be inimical to the objects of the society.

He Sheared a Lion.

Philadelphia Ledger: What does the American Peace Society mean by excising from the list of its vice-presidents the name of the venerable Dr. Lyman Abbott? Is it because he has been a leading protagonist of the cause in this country for so many long years? The fact that he urged larger appropriations for the navy is not in itself a sufficient excuse for this radical action. There are more ways than one of accomplishing an object. Doctor Abbott, for instance, took into his bosom the champion of the "big stick," that warlike Lycurgus who himself was the winner of a Nobel prize because he was so expert in terminating hostilities in Manchuria. That was the most practical move for peace made in this country in years, the absorption, as it were, of the lion by the lamb.

The Wicked Partner.

New York World: Amazement crowds upon chagrin as the American public, at first incredulous, is forced to believe that Dr. Lyman Abbott of the esteemed Outlook has been pitched out of the American Peace Society unanimously, with no more ceremony than attends the divorce of a tramp from a free lunch spread.

The doctor's undoing is partly the work of a strenuous partner; a wicked partner, the peace men say. The contributing editor himself the society could not expel, because he never was and never wished to be a member of any group of undesirables, weaklings and mollycoddles who put "Peace" into their title.

This sad experience seems to teach that to avoid offense in a cynical world even the most blameless old man should walk wary of wicked partners and read every petition, to see that he isn't signing a disguised promissory note.

Arbitration as a Fetich.

Washington Post: No patriotic American could find it possible to applaud the action of the American Peace Society in putting a stigma on Dr. Lyman Abbott, a vice-president of that body, for having signed the appeal of the American Navy League for larger appropriations for the American navy. No clear-headed advocate of peace would care to deny that a full complement of American warships would afford a better guarantee of peace right at this moment than the lame and halting no-battleship policy indorsed by the men who condemned Dr. Abbott. No class of Americans but such as have come to agitate arbitration, not as the square deal, but as a fetich, could support a resolution urging the American Government to submit the canal controversy to The Hague Court for arbitration.

The Effect of Evil Associations.

Detroit Free Press: In the case of Dr. Lyman Abbott, editor of the Outlook, we see once more how evil associations can corrupt the most guileless of minds. The good doctor has been dropped from membership in the American Peace Society. Yes, actually kicked out of the organization of which he once was a shining light and an honorary vice-president. Love of peace and friendship with the belligerent associate editor assimilate no more successfully than the service of God and mammon.

Yes, it is sad to think of Dr. Abbott as a horrible example.

A Militarist Oliver Twist.

Chicago Tribune: The mark of blood is on the venerable and gentle Abbott, and the wail of the widow and orphans echoes about him. The sapient society of piffling peace saw this monster within the precise precincts of its well ordered corporation and, conquering a palsy of shudders and a vertigo of fear, fired him.

He asked for battleships—this menacing Oliver Twist of militarism; he wanted more. Let him go out and howl in the night like a hungry wolf in the deep forest. He wants to see stricken fields and wreckage floating on the waters. He wants doom, that's what he wants.

Peace has its victories and peace societies their invertebrates.

The Real Work for Peace.

Baltimore News: The press has inevitably turned to the humorous side of the question and seen in the rejection of Dr. Abbott the results of the contributing editor's corrupting influence upon him. Mr. Roosevelt, it so happens, is the one man in this country, and one of the very few in the world, whose activities for peace have received international recognition. The bestowal upon him of the Nobel Peace prize was in token of practical and successful efforts to meet and overcome existing conditions of war. And for all his belief in big navies, he did more for peace than could the American Peace Society in a half century of academic discussion.

Nicholas Yields

RUSSIA having abandoned Montenegro, King Nicholas was compelled to yield and abandon Scutari. His cabinet resigned and there are rumors that he will abdicate to appease his people, who were willing to fight all Europe and believe they could win.

Nicholas' Prudent Act.

Boston Herald: It is to be hoped that King Nicholas will not lose by his prudent resolve to retire from the captured city. He loses his cabinet—until he appoints another; but it is not at all likely that he will lose his crown, as at one time he seemed to fear that he would. Indeed, his abdication is out of the question—unless it be his own wish to see Prince Danilo crowned; because his people love him so well, as patriot, hero and life-long champion of the national liberty, that he cannot lose their affection or confidence. And from the victor of Scutari no atom of the glory of victory can be taken through his mere relinquishment of the spoils. The old King is wisely and worthily rounding out an honorable career.

Russia Declined to Aid.

Cleveland Leader: The "concert of the powers" is supreme in this crisis because of the universal dread of a general European war. It prevailed in Montenegro because that little kingdom could not hope to resist Austria-Hungary if unaided, and it became evident that Russia, the chief backer of the Balkan nations, was not willing to take the chances of a war which might engulf the continent. And Austria-Hungary, in turn, was fearful of the consequences of bringing on hostilities, unless the other great powers approved the course of the dual monarchy.

Cynical Selfishness.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: From American viewpoints the conduct of the great powers in this matter exhibits the depth of cynical and sordid selfishness. The "concert of the powers" has upheld Turkish misrule ever since 1878, when Germany, Austria France and England united to restrain Russia from making a final end of the Turk in Europe.

Ever since the beginning of the war the cultures of European dynastic intrigue have been seeking a chance to grab some of the spoils without risking anything in a fight. Bulgaria was menaced through Roumania. The Bulgarians set their jaws and virtually invited the Roumanians to "come on."

However, the "concert" has finally found a Balkan state small enough to bully with safety. That is why Montenegro has to yield her hard earned prize of war, purchased with the blood of her people.

SOCIETY

Circus Party Tomorrow Night Hailed as Society's Last Big Gathering of the Year—" 'Op-o'-Me-Thump" Will Be Repeated as a Trinity Church Benefit.

By FRANCES CABANNE SCOVEL.

HOW history does repeat itself! ! ! !

Here is St. Louis' 500—or thereabouts—all excitement about the big circus party that is being got up for the tent show tomorrow evening.

The idea is at least two decades old and some of the members of the fashionable set in looking around for something new in the way of entertainments suddenly remembered the circus parties that Lil McNair, the late Sid Francis and Lew Perry—and maybe somebody else, I forget—used to give each year.

Of course, everyone was invited, just as they are for a ball or any other society function and as they have been for tomorrow night, but while the parties of long ago were given by the three or four hosts, that for tomorrow evening has been arranged by a committee, at the head of which are Walter Taylor and Bob Keiser.

In the old days everybody met at the Beers and went from there in 'buses herdicks and a couple of once glorious tallyhos to the circus and afterwards to some place for supper, once to the Jockey Clubhouse way out in the Fair Grounds, another time to a big beer garden that used to be over beyond the railroad tracks on Grand avenue, where the supper tables, for several hundred guests were spread under the trees with flickering gas jets and kerosene lights all around.

At the Jockey Club there was a dance, such a demure affair it was, so different from that which will follow the show tomorrow night at the Union Club.

Then there was nothing more exciting than twostep and a waltz—it wasn't good form even to hop the least bit then—but now, oh how different!

It will be about the last time this season that all the "social set" will be together and everyone is talking about it and predicting a glorious good time.

Because, from now on, there will be only the weddings, the graduations, then the going away for the summer.

The acceptances are pouring in so fast that all of the 500 seats reserved by the committee probably will be occupied.

There will be peanuts and popcorn and pink lemonade and everything that makes children of grown-ups the minute their feet kick up sawdust and they get under the "big top."

There will be plenty of chaperons. Mrs. Goltra, Mrs. Tom Maffitt, Mrs. Tower, Mrs. Markham and a number of the young matrons will be in the party.

Among the engagements of last week were several of more than passing interest; Miss Fanny Wickham Bryan's to Bruce Seddon, which was announced Friday; Miss Olive Rae's to Charles Burnham Squier of New York, and Miss Florence Crecelius' to William Eugene Wittrig.

Miss Bryan is the daughter of Francis T. Bryan Jr., and lives with her aunt, Miss Blanche Wickham at Montrose, the old Wickham country home at Kinloch, Mo. She is the granddaughter of the late Judge Wickham and is related to nearly all of the most prominent old families in St. Louis and through the Wickhams to the Carters, Fitzhughs, Lees, Grahams and a number of Virginia families that are identified with the colonial history of this country.

Mr. Seddon is the son of former Judge James A. Seddon and a nephew of Walter Scott. Judge Seddon married a second time, Miss Ann Carter Wickham, the bride-elect's aunt.

Mr. Seddon is a graduate of the Washington and Lee University of Lexington, Va. The marriage will be in October.

Miss Rae's engagement was announced at a bridge party given by Mrs. William J. Steinwender of 6186 Kingsbury boulevard, Tuesday afternoon. Miss Rae is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Day Rae of Bartmer avenue. She is considered very pretty and is a Latin type with dark hair and eyes. She has traveled a great deal and has spent part of each winter in New York and Palm Beach, where she has been very much entertained and admired. The wedding has been set for Saturday, June 14, but the details have not yet been arranged. The Countess Herbert von Frankenberg of New York will be matron of honor.

Mr. Squier and his bride will sail for Europe June 19 to spend their honeymoon.

His touring car will be sent on ahead and they will make a motor tour on the continent.

Miss Crecelius is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Crecelius of 2110 Dillon street. She is a graduate of Washington University and a member of the College Club. Mr. Wittrig came to St. L[illegible] from Iowa several years ag[illegible] bride and bridegroom-elect are [illegible]rs of the Union and Liederkranz Club sets.

Mrs. Charles Blake of 434 Lake avenue and her daughter, Miss Edith Blake, who have been abroad since midwinter, arrived in New York last Monday and will remain there for a 10-days' visit before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Boehnken of 5063 Washington boulevard and their daughters, Misses Olga and Sue Boehnken, are going abroad to stay until September, and will sail next Saturday from Boston on the Cretic.

Mrs. Bessie Stone Freemon, formerly of St. Louis, who has been visiting Mrs. W. G. Thomas of 322 North Newstead avenue, will return to her home in Grenada, Miss., about the middle of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Carlos Van Duzen have come here from Atlanta, Ga., to live and have taken apartments at the Devon.

On the social calendar for Wednesday is an entertainment for the benefit of Trinity Church, at the Knights of Columbus Hall, which Miss May Thompson has arranged. The program includes " 'Op-o'-Me-Thumb," a little play by J. M. Barrie, which was given by the Player's Club not long ago and which will be presented by the same cast except that William D. Crowell will appear in the place of Robert Minor Jr.

Mrs. Charles Cummings Collins and George W. Simmons will sing "On Jhelum River," a Kashmiri love story.

The cast of characters will be:

Dancing has taken such a hold upon the world in general this year that it is with much interest that the announcements of the finishing exercises of the year of the dancing schools are received. A play written around the story of the Pied Piper of Hamlin has been announced by Jacob Mahler for May 23 and 24 at the Victoria Theater. About 100 children will take part and Miss Anita Gaebler will be the Piper. She has learned really to pipe for the occasion.

Friday evening at the Victoria Theater the pupils of Miss Alice Martin gave "La Rigodale du Printemps." It was the annual entertainment which ends the season. There were tiny tots—one George Springmeier, who was not more than 4 years old, a very Mordkin, whose pastorale dance in the scene, "A Spring Day in Greece," was delightful. The pupils varied in age up to girls who have already made their debuts into society, and took part in the final ballroom scene and demonstrated the dances of the past winter, which have been the source of so much comment.

Miss Agnes Cady was "The Spirit of Spring" and danced beautifully. There are few amateur dancers who compare with her for natural grace and technique. She dances not only with her feet but to the ends of her fingers, her head and every movement is part of the dance.

Miss Marie Akins in a brown tunic, bright green silk tights, two young leopard skins, a wreath on her head made a very realistic Pan.

Miss Corinne Tobin was a barefooted Diana, clad in a soft tunic and leopard skins, a crescent in her hair, her bow, and even her hound, which remained on the stage long enough to follow her gracefully about during half the dance.

TO CURE CORNS, CALLOUSES, BUNIONS AND ACHING FEET

The following is said to be the surest and quickest cure known to science for all foot ailments: "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet in this for fully fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." The effect is really wonderful. All soreness goes instantly; the feet feel delightful. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. It gives immediate relief for sore bunions, sweaty, smelly and aching feet. A twenty-five cent box of Calocide is said to be sufficient to cure the worst feet. It works through the pores and removes the cause of the trouble. Don't waste time on uncertain remedies. Any druggist has Calocide compound in stock or he can get it in a few hours from his wholesale house.—ADV.

Actress Tells Secret

A Well-Known Actress Tells How She Darkened Her Gray Hair and Promoted Its Growth With a Simple Homemade Mixture.

Miss Blanche Rose, a well-known actress, who darkened her gray hair with a simple preparation which she mixed at home, in a recent interview at Chicago, Ill., made the following statement. "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray hair and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the required shade. This will make a gray haired person look 20 years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of hair, relieves itching and scalp humors and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."—ADV.

If Hair's Your Pride Use HERPICIDE

Persons who use Newbro's Herpicide and use it intelligently are satisfied. The results are frequently of such surprising nature as to be almost past belief.

READ SOME EXPERIENCES OF THOSE WHO KNOW.

I have been using Herpicide for about four years and consider it the most delightful hair dressing in the world. I have a fine head of hair five feet long and feel sure that its healthy condition depends largely upon the frequent application of Newbro's Herpicide.
MRS. C. W. BLAISDELL,
Concord, N. H. 15 Green St.

I have tried almost every known remedy in the last ten years for loss of hair. Herpicide is the only one that ever cured the dandruff and the loss of hair.
C. O. HOUSTON,
Lewisburg, Tenn.

Your Herpicide has proved a treasure. My daughter three years old was afflicted very badly with dandruff, but Herpicide has entirely eliminated the trouble and her hair is growing so fast. I use it constantly and have found it very beneficial for all ailments of the scalp.
MRS. A. W. CLAXON,
Walla Walla, Wash. 1212 University St.

Eradicating the dandruff, checking the loss of hair, stopping the itching and keeping the scalp clean and sanitary are the rewards that come to users of this well-known scalp prophylactic. The hair becomes light, fluffy and luxuriant. It radiates health and beauty, adds charm and attractiveness and an appearance of youthfulness.

But that isn't all. After an application of Newbro's Herpicide there is a sense of cleanliness, a feeling of comfort and satisfaction that makes one wonder why the care of the hair is so often neglected.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE in its astonishing efficiency, is both a surprise and a pleasure.
Try it and see. Two Sizes, 50c and $1.00.

TENTH ANNIVERSARY
Nemo TRIPLE-STRIP WEEK CONTINUED UNTIL MAY 17

The Overwhelming Success of Nemo Week Demonstrates Two Interesting Facts of Vital Importance to the Trade and to all Women!

Fact 1 INTERESTING TO THE TRADE: Nemo Week—the greatest trade event this country knows from one year's end to another—was established and has grown to international importance as a sale at REGULAR PRICES. This upsets the theory of some merchants that "cut prices" alone can make a special sale; and it supports the belief of other (and wiser) merchants that QUALITY is remembered long after price is forgotten. It is a victory for higher standards in storekeeping.

Fact 2 INTERESTING TO ALL WOMEN: Nemo Week each year adds tens of thousands to the contented hosts of Nemo wearers; for it brings home most forcibly the unique usefulness, the superb style and the unequaled comfort which have made the Nemo the world's standard of corset excellence—the most widely popular corset in existence.

NEMO WEEK IS BIGGEST THIS YEAR BECAUSE MORE WOMEN KNOW THAT NEMO CORSETS ARE BEST

Everybody wants this popular event to run another week. Very well—we'll continue it until—

Knightlets for Nerves

Nerves That Are Worn Out Through Worry or Work Renewed by Knightlets.

"I Feel So Happy Since My Headache Has Gone Away."

You tired women and men who have headaches, neuralgia, body pains, sleeplessness and all the kindred troubles should try a little Knightlet if you want peace from pain.

They go into your body like food. You can chew them like candy, but when they reach your nerves they at once become gentle, soothing little nurses.

The nerves lack nutrition when you are afflicted with headaches, neuralgia, sour stomach, etc., and Knightlets give these nerves just what they need.

Knightlets are the rage—the latest things—that are sweeping our country like wildfire. They do their work quickly and well. They are harmless. They contain no opium, morphine, bromides, etc. Just try one if you want relief. They are without an equal in all cases of "that morning after feeling." Eat and drink what you will; Knightlets will straighten you up in the morning.

Don't use bromos, seltzers, powders, pills, potions, tablets, massage, etc., to cure that big head and birdcage mouth.

Take a little Knightlet. The work will be done quickly and you will do as thousands of people are doing—become a booster for Knightlets. This is why every drug store sells them. They have positively created the sensation of the year among all nerve sufferers and nerve-weak men and women. Buy a box from any druggist. DUNNE APPEALS FOR REFERENDUM SUPPORT

Illinois Governor Asks People to Demand Passage of the Pending Measure.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 10.—Gov. Dunne this afternoon issued a final appeal for support of the initiative and referendum resolution which is set as a special order for consideration in the House next Tuesday morning. He said:

"From all advices I have received I am confident that the measure will receive more than the constitutional majority required for passage, that is 102 votes.

"The initiative and referendum was the main plank in the Democratic platform last fall. I believe it was because of my strong advocacy of that measure that I received such a tremendous plurality.

"Likewise, it was the main plank in the platform for the Progressive party. Indeed it was a plank in the platform of all the parties which presented candidates to the people at the last election.

"The people on three distinct occasions voted in favor of the enactment of the initiative and referendum into law, it having carried in every district in the State by huge majority. All that remains is for the House of Representatives to do its duty next Tuesday and pass the resolution now pending before it. The people will then be given an opportunity to say the final word as to whether or not they want the initiative and referendum, but the House of Representatives must pass it before such opportunity can be given to the people.

"It is simply a question of submitting the matter to the people. If they want it, as I believe they do, they will adopt it by popular vote at the next election.

"If they do not want it opportunity will be given them to beat the measure."

JAHN MONUMENT FOR FOREST PARK NEARS COMPLETION

Dedication to Be Feature of Centenary of German War of Liberation Oct. 9.

The monument of Turnvater Friedrich Ludwig Jahn, which will be dedicated to the city Oct. 12 as the climax of the centennial celebration of the German war of liberation, is nearing completion under the hands of Robert Cauer in Darmstadt, Germany. The exact location in Forest Park has not yet been determined.

Cauer is the sculptor who modeled the Gen. Franz Sigel statue in Forest Park. He sojourned in St. Louis several months last year to get the atmosphere after his plans had been approved by the Monument Committee. Jahn is hailed as the father of modern German physical culture.

Otto F. Stifel, chairman of the committee, received a letter from Cauer recently and announces that both heroic figures which flank the monument proper have been completed. These are the figures of an athlete putting the shot and a young girl in a graceful wand exercise pose, symbolic of turning. They are done in bronze in the same manner as the bust of Turnvater Jahn, which crowns the center of the semicircular base and rests on a pedestal embellished by turner emblems.

The base of the monument will be in marble, granite and blue Bedford granite, and will be made in the United States. The figures only will be the work of the German sculptor, who will have the honor to be employed on the first Jahn monument erected in the United States. The cost of the monument is estimated at $12,000. The Monument Committee consists of Otto Stifel, chairman; Edward L. Preetorius, treasurer; Rembert von Muenchausen, secretary; Otto Teichmann, Otto Kallmeyer, E. C. Buechel, F. Widman, Ed. Koeln, F. W. Clemens, Charles Happel, H. H. Hoster, August Klassing, Charles Kloeris, Leo Osthaus, G. Rueckoldt, Carl Schmoll, W. S. Wittler and G. Thirolf.

A German-American demonstration in the form of a torchlight parade Oct. 9 will be another feature of the centenary. It is estimated that 30,000 men will march. There will be 12 divisions, each of which will be accompanied by a band of 50 pieces. A military division, as honorary escort, will consist of regulars from Jefferson Barracks, National Guards, Spanish-American War Veterans, members of the G. A. R. in automobiles and a cadet corps. The procession will move through the principal downtown streets and all German societies will participate, with their banners.

Health and Beauty Advice

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN

Annette: (1) Sometimes a druggist endeavors to discourage the making of home remedies because he thinks it interferes with his business. I never suggest the use of anything that is not sold in first-class drug stores. (2) To make kardene, spring blood tonic and liver remedy, get 1 ounce of kardene, mix it with ½ cupful of sugar and add ½ pint of alcohol and 1½ pints of hot water. This formula makes a full quart of tonic, of which you should take 1 tablespoonful 5 minutes before each meal and before retiring. As an allround tonic, this has no superior. It will restore your lost appetite and tend to strengthen and build you up. It purifies blood and your pimples and ugly blotches will soon disappear.

Virginia: A good "liquid powder" or face wash which when on seems a part of the skin is made by dissolving 4 ounces of spurmax in ½ pint of hot water or witch hazel and adding 2 teaspoonfuls of glycerine. This homemade complexion beautifier whitens the skin without the use of powder and is particularly recommended for the use of anyone who has a sallow, dark or oily skin.

Constance: To remove dandruff and stop falling hair, apply once a week a quinine hair tonic, made by dissolving 1 ounce of quinzoin in ½ pint of alcohol, adding ½ pint of cold water. Rub into the scalp and hair with the finger tips until absorbed. This treatment will promote the growth of hair and tend to make it luxuriant and glossy. (See answer to Molly.)

Molly: It is not necessary to shampoo the hair oftener than twice a month if you use a shampoo that will thoroughly cleanse the hair and scalp. An inexpensive shampoo that makes the head feel good and helps the hair is made by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cupful of hot water. Pour on the hair and rub well. You will find that this makes a good lather—and plenty of it—thoroughly cleanses the hair and scalp and relieves irritation and stimulates roots to helpful action.

Viola: Yes, healthy eyes are clear and sparkling. If yours are dull, red and inflamed you need an eye tonic. Get an ounce of crystos from your druggist and dissolve it in a pint of water. One or two drops in each eye every day is all that is required. This eye tonic will not smart or burn and will give relief when the eyes are tired, inflamed or sore. It strengthens the eyes and will benefit you if you wear glasses.

Laura: Your friend is right in saying that I know a certain wrinkle-remover which can be made at home at very little expense. It is a vegetable product and is unlike creams containing oils or animal fat, as it neither grows hair nor makes the flesh loose and flabby. Just dissolve an ounce of almozoin, which you can get from any druggist, in one-half pint cold water and add 2 teaspoonfuls of glycerine. Stir and let stand for one day. To remove wrinkles apply a thick coat of this cream jelly and leave on over night. This protects the skin and allows all the blood action to be used in constructing new texture. Then wash it out of the pores and massage thoroughly with more of the cream. It makes the skin soft and velvety, while it is unequaled in reducing large pores.

Student: It will be good news to you to learn that what you eat is now thought to have little to do with obesity and that if enough exercise is taken, even a fleshy woman may eat what she wants. To half starve oneself means to look haggard and altogether unlovely. Don't drink while eating, even water, and don't drink alcoholic beverages at any time. The best flesh-reducer I know of is parnotis. Get from your druggist an original 4-ounce package of parnotis, take it home and dissolve it in 1½ pints hot water. Take one tablespoonful 3 times a day, before meals.

O. T.: Your eyelashes will grow long and have a pretty curl if you apply pyroxin at lash roots with thumb and forefinger. Thin eyebrows can be made to come in thick and glossy by putting pyroxin on them frequently with the finger. You can buy pyroxin in a small, original package, but be careful and don't get any where hair is not wanted.

Olga N.: The disfiguring hairy growth can be permanently banished by using a delatone paste. Get a small, original package of delatone and mix enough of the powder with water to cover the objectionable hairs. Let remain 2 or 3 minutes, then remove and wash the skin. This simple treatment dissolves the hairs and leaves the skin free from blemish.

HOW TO DEVELOP THE BUST

Wonderful as it may seem, we have found a simple way to develop the bust. It is Sorose, the discovery of a well-known woman physician who used it with remarkable success in enlarging her own bosom and then won the gratitude of scores of her patients.

If Sorose does not enlarge the bust measurements from three to seven inches, we guarantee to return the money paid for it. Do not think you must stay flat-chested and with unattractive form. Use Sorose and get beautiful development just where you need it. This treatment is not recommended for anything but developing the bust, but is guaranteed to do this or money back. Full three weeks' treatment costs only $1.00 at the local agents, Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., or by mail postpaid from the Embee Toilet Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Interesting features of the Violinists' convention in June will be the contest of violins and the public performance of original compositions.

It is desired by the Guild of Violinists that contesting violin makers and composers communicate at once with Victor Lichenstein, Musical Art Building, St. Louis.

Composers may submit works in sonatas, trios, quartets, and quintets.

The compositions most likely to secure a hearing are those distinguished for their purely American style and content.

The Guild of Violinists is an outgrowth of the new nationalism which is making itself felt in America. One of the purposes of the Guild is to bring to view and foster originality in American music.

The Morning Etude will hold its last meeting of the season at Aeolian Hall, at 10:15, Friday morning.

SIMPLIFIED INNOVATION

FACTS!! PURE ANDSIMPLE

In common justice to a public being constantly deceived & in fairness to ourselves, we state the facts that follow, that some mayhap may be saved from the curse of our times & the humiliation that comes from having been imposed upon.

The INNOVATION trunk was the FIRST trunk in the world that perfectly carried clothes hanging. It is to-day the only one that DOES. The NAME INNOVATION was truly applied, because the pendent principle of carrying garments was an INNOVATION in every sense of, at the time, an almost unused word.

The common law of every land accords to the originator of a term of expression a moral return, not, unfortunately, a legal redress. Therefore, the word INNOVATION is and can only be applied, in honesty, to the products of the INNOVATION Trunk Company which owns and operates the business under the many patents of the original inventor, Mr. Seymour W. Bonsall, a man of family who had traveled much and knew the inconveniences of baggage used at the time, some sixteen years ago. The invention, really in the form of a dream, grew out of almost nothing, and the inspiration developed a latent bent for mechanics to the end that the inventor retired from a banking career, and has given his time to one of the most romantic and successful enterprises of the WHOLE WORLD, and one which has made itself by honorable conduct, without advertising, and has reached its wonderful proportions purely by the good words of purchasers. Every owner of is our friend and while we have no book accounts—doing a cash business all over the world, both wholesale as well as retail—we do register the names and addresses of our patrons, and they have the same treatment in our stores in London, Paris, Chicago, Philadelphia, New York, as they will have, shortly in Berlin, Vienna and St. Petersburg.

Elements sold from our stores have the INNOVATION trademark plate. Those sold through other mediums may be marked "Made by the Innovation Trunk Company." They are exactly the same, and just as good. The grades are numbered 1, 3 and 5, but in our own stores we find a number 6 in great demand, so we supply it. The general public has been educated, by unscrupulous imitators and illegal infringers, to the belief that INNOVATION Wardrobe Trunks, cost much, and we feel it due to the purchasing people and their friends, who have really made our wonderful business, to tell them the facts, and to send this message as far as the printed word will carry, that we sell trunks at $25, which should, and from our experience unquestionably will, last a lifetime.

We find that in certain localities people insist on the $45, $65 and $75 grades, but we cannot be fairer in our intent than to tell everybody that the inventor, who is PRESIDENT OF OUR company, will not allow his personal friends to buy else than the grade Number One, at $25. If HIS sense of value cannot be respected, whose can!

What great philosopher said
"'Tis great to do well alone,
'Tis more generous to share an honor;
'Tis glorious when all work together?"

Yet in these days 'tis hard to get people to work together for the good of even a few, unless there be a monetary inducement. The successful people in this age are CREATORS OF THINGS, not so much the middlemen or the vendors of other's wares, and our particular province in the business world is to create for the consumer direct.

St. Louis' ONE Big Want Medium

WOMAN LAWYER IS BIG ROLE IN "HER FIRST DIVORCE"

New Play's Story Tells How Modern Portia Suddenly Lost Her Sense of Justice.

DOMESTIC MENACE CAUSE

Feminine Attorney Feared She Was Freeing Another Woman to Marry Her Husband.

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS.

In "Her First Divorce," a play by C. W. Bell which received its premiere production at the Comedy Theater in New York City last Monday evening, a woman lawyer is the principal character and the play's teaching seems to be that such a lawyer has little regard for the law or the administration of justice in a case where her own domestic happiness appears to be imperiled.

Ethel Willmott, the feminine disciple of Blackstone in this instance, has undertaken to obtain a divorce for a friend who is married to a profligate husband. This husband has given a scandalous dinner-dance at his home during his wife's absence, and Olga, the housemaid, is to be the chief witness against him. The woman lawyer so coaches Olga that her story of the "high jinks" at the dinner-dance threatens to give a terrific notoriety to the trial of the divorce suit. The husband of the woman lawyer, himself of the same learned profession, tries to take the case from her, not wishing her to be "spotlighted" as bringing out such a story on the witness stand. When she refuses to withdraw, he instantly pretends to be desperately in love with the plaintiff in the case, wooing her so arduously that his wife fears he will himself get a divorce and marry the woman whom she, his present better half, is helping to set free for his winning. Whereupon the lawyer-wife promptly changes her tactics, betraying her client by bribing the maid to testify in favor, instead of against, the client's husband, and in other ways doing her utmost to lose the case. The situations developed from this story are said to be both mystifying and highly amusing.

Laura Hope Crews is featured as the woman lawyer, with Julian L'Estrange as her husband, Ruth Holt Boucicault as her divorce-seeking client and Allan Pollock as the profligate defendant in the suit. The play's presentation was of especial interest as marking the debut of Margaret Mayo, author of "Baby Mine" and other comedies, as a theatrical producer.

Because George C Tyler of the Liebler Company was much impressed by the work of the Angelini-Gattini Opera Company of Milan during his most recent visit to Italy, that organization was heard for the first time in New York City a few nights ago, appearing in "La Cicala" at the Century Theater under Mr. Tyler's management.

The opera itself, under the title of "La Cigale," was first heard in this country 12 years ago, when it was presented in English with Lillian Russell in its prima donna soprano role. Its story concerns one Teresa, the lovely and self-willed niece of the old cook, at the Golden Lion Inn in Bruges, who runs away from home and becomes a world-famous singer, ultimately loving and marrying the handsome and dashing Chevalier Franzi de Berheim after many thrilling and romantic adventures. The spirit of its latest New York presentation is said to have been admirable and the scenic settings and costumes most picturesque. Mme. Gattini, who sang the prima donna role, is pronounced a capital actress, with a naturally excellent soprano which, however, she fails to use effectively. The leading tenor, Baldi, who sang the Chevalier score, also proved to be a better actor than singer. The orchestra, unfortunately, was limited in numbers and of only mediocre quality.

Nevertheless, owing to the fine sincerity of all taking part in the performance, the new organization made a distinctly favorable impression, and this is said to have been heightened by its later performances with a larger and better orchestral force.

Henry W. Savage will return from Europe next month with several new operettas that have scored foreign successes and which he will produce in this country next season

Most notable of the number is "The King of the Mountains," by Franz Lehar, composer of "The Merry Widow," whose great hit of some years ago the new work is now said to be duplicating at the Johann Strauss Theater in Vienna. The picturesque story of "The King of the Mountains" was told in the Post-Dispatch at the time of its European premiere production. Col. Savage also has bought the American producing rights of "The Gypsy Chief," an operetta by Emerich Kahlmann, composer of "The Gay Hussars," which has enjoyed long runs in Budapest and Vienna, and its American presentation will be made early next fall.

New Company Will Appear in Frances Hodgson Burnett's "The Dawn of a Tomorrow."

"THE DAWN OF A TOMORROW." Suburban Garden. The St. Louis home of dramatic summer stock will open its season next Saturday evening with Frances Hodgson Burnett's beautiful play, "The Dawn of a Tomorrow," as its first week's offering, presented by the new Suburban Stock Company.

This company has as its leading man Arthur Behrens, a handsome six-footer, who comes to St. Louis with a long record of successful stock engagements. The new leading woman is Miss Diana Storm, formerly leading woman with Forbes-Robertson in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," and under contract with Belasco for "The Governor's Lady" next season.

Morris McHugh, already a prime favorite with Suburban audiences, is a member of the new company, and his quiet comedy and wistful pathos will doubtless appeal as in past seasons. Alice Gale, another Suburban favorite, is this season's character-woman, and Philip Sheffield, a third favorite of earlier seasons, who plays with Broadway successes during the winter, also returns.

Florence Vincent, the new ingenue, is from the "Joseph and His Brethren" New York success. Daniel Hall, another newcomer, played the title role in "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" during the winter. Joseph Gillew, who closed his season in "Little Women" at Washington last night, now comes to Suburban. Joseph O'Meara returns as stage director.

"The Dawn of a Tomorrow" tells the beautiful story of a little girl who saved two lives by her unfaltering trust in the protecting goodness of a Higher Power. It will be followed, the second week by the James K. Hackett success, "A Grain of Dust," and, for the third week, the sparkling comedy, "Catching Up with Her Husband," will be presented. Matinees on Tuesdays. Thursdays and Saturdays. Seats go on sale at Bollman's and the Grand-Leader tomorrow.

COURT TO HAND DOWN NEW MINING DECISION

Rights to Shallow Coal Deposits in Oklahoma Involved in Suit.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., May 10.—A new definition of "mining rights" is to be handed down by the Federal Courts as a result of evidence heard here in the case of the J. R. Crowe Coal and Mining Co., against William P. Daugherty and William Humble, farmers, of Crerokee County.

The Crowe company bought the mining rights of certain land for which surface rights already had been sold to Daugherty and Humble. It was learned that the coal vein was so near the surface that it could not be mined except by steamshovel methods, which would, for a time at least, destroy the farming value. Daugherty and Humble refused consent for this and the Crowe company brought suit. Each side claims full rights, regardless of the other's interest.

While the rights on only 120 acres are involved in this suit, the decision will affect 1500 acres and $750,000 worth of coal. Judge Dean of Topeka heard the evidence as commissioner and will report to Judge Pollock.

The manifesto is signed by Charles Jonnart, a former Foreign Minister, and numerous other ex-ministers, as well as a large number of deputies and senators.

MAJ. M'CLAUGHREY TO LEAVE "CLEAN HOUSE" AT PRISON

Veteran Warden at Leavenworth Will Retire Voluntarily June 30, Fiscal Year End.

IN SERVICE FOR 40 YEARS

Believer in Humane Methods, but Thinks Punishment of Convicts Is Necessary.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., May 10.—When Maj. R. W. McClaughry retires June 30 next as Warden of the Federal Prison here, he will have concluded a service of 40 years in prison administration. Fourteen of these have been passed as Warden of this prison. The Attorney-General has accepted his resignation, effective on the date selected by himself because it marks the close of the fiscal year.

"I want to leave a clean house, a clean set of books and a new year for my successor," said the Warden.

"I am nearly 74 years of age, and, although in good health still, I find that 74 is a big handicap, especially if one tries to hold to a job with a change of administrations, when so many want the place. When I leave this prison I shall have rounded out 40 years in prison work and that is a task which will make any man feel like retiring and taking a rest.

Tries to Forget Thrills.

"The sometimes thrilling and sometimes tragic happenings connected with my career I have tried to forget, with all their unpleasant recollections, and in cases of prisoners who were notorious at times, I have never sought to keep their notoriety in the public mind, whenever they were willing to abandon it. The service has hard and sad features enough connected with it, in spite of all we can do to aid those who desire to forget that phase of their life, consequently I do not remember, and if I did, I would be slow to bring into publicity, a great many of the events and circumstances that would do no good, even though they might arouse a great deal of interest.

"I am glad to know and to believe that what some people call 'penology' has grown better and more helpful to the unwise youths, who were to some extent the unhappy subjects of it during the last century. It is steadily growing in its methods more humane and helpful and at the same time is more preventive of crime than it has ever been.

"I can say only hastily and in a cursory way at this time that education, moral and intellectual, of the young, when they have been found in wandering ways, has done far more than mere punishment to turn their lives into better channels and make them lose taste and inclination for the ways of error and antagonism to law and order.

"When punishment, which is sometimes necessary, has failed in its course, education, the training of both brain and hand, teaching the ignorant offender how to earn his living by honest labor, at the same time influencing on his part a taste for so earning it, and distaste for idleness and meanness and untruthfulness has cured its thousands, and the wisdom of the legislators has been shown best by the growing custom of awarding to this class of workers better remuneration, protecting them by legislation from the viciousness and selfishness and precariousness of mere politics, and continuing to support and encourage their earnestness, zeal and loyalty. This is doing more today to check and counteract what is called crime, and reduce the tendencies of what is called the criminal class, than all the courts and Sheriffs and jailers of Christendom, honest as their intentions and valuable and necessary as their services are.

Many Reforms in His Lifetime.

"There have been many reforms in prison management and discipline since I first entered the work. When I took charge of the Illinois State Penitentiary at Joliet, the common method of punishment was to stand the offender up against the wall, with his hands fastened above his head and his weight resting on his toes. He was left in this position during the entire working day and it was a fearful punishment. I immediately abolished this, substituting the fastening of the man's hands to the door of his cell.

"I have also seen that prisoners had more and better food and more of a variety than they had been getting and I find that this will do more to keep discipline in a prison than any of the harsh methods formerly in vogue. I have given to the men under my charge more liberty than they had formerly been getting, allowing them to have plenty of exercise, to counteract the effect of sedentary work in shops or cells and this, I find, is another way to keep discipline in a penitentiary, and aid in the reformation of the offender, especially if it is his first offense.

"In the formation of healthful and helpful habits among prisoners, nothing can take the place of steady, cheerful, intelligent, productive labor; drudgery, such as the shop drill of old, can never work reformation.

"A great many excellent people of the present day insist that 'reformation' is a late discovery, and has been developed only by those who are in favor of abandoning all system or methods for penalizing crime, and depending solely upon a 'goody goody system' which shall furnish prisoners with every luxury or pleasure they may desire, and reform them by convincing them that the public thinks the criminal has merely made a mistake."

May Print His Experiences.

The warden was asked if he contemplated the preparation of a record of his forty years of prison service, and said:

"I have often been asked to do so and have thought of the subject, but that all lies in the future. Of course, I have a vast amount of notes covering my experience in prison work and it is possible that these may be published, although I have taken no steps looking to that end. I have no plans for my future after my work here is completed, but expect to take a rest. As yet I have not decided where I shall make my home, but having lived here so long, I may decide to remain here."

Maj. McClaughry has always taken an active interest in all things pertaining to criminology and is looked upon as a leader in that branch of the public service. He has been a member of the American Prison Congress for more than 35 years and twice has been president of that body. He has frequently been consulted by officials of other states on questions relating to prisons and criminals.

He has been warden of the Illinois State Penitentiary at Joliet twice, was general superintendent of the Chicago police for three years, superintendent of the industrial reformatory of Pennsylvania and also superintendent of the Illinois State Reformatory, at Pontiac.

Has Handled 70,000 Criminals.

During his career as a prison official, nearly 70,000 criminals, many of them desperadoes, have passed under his jurisdiction.

Twice he has been appointed by Presidents of the United States to represent this country at meetings of the International Prison Congress in Paris and Brussels.

For Sallow, Wrinkled, Freckled, Pimpled Skin

(From Woman's Home Journal.)

If you have any cutaneous blemish, don't use paint, powder or anything else to cover it up. Too often this only emphasizes the defect. Besides, it's much easier to remove the disfigurement with ordinary mercolized wax. Applied nightly, the wax will gradually remove freckles, pimples, blackheads, moth-patches, sallowness, red or yellow blotches or any surface eruptions. The affected cuticle is absorbed, a little each day, until the clear, soft, youthful and beautiful skin beneath is brought wholly to view. Ask the druggist for an ounce of mercolized wax and use this like you use cold cream. Remove in morning with soap and water. Many who have tried this simple and harmless treatment report astonishing results.

If bothered with wrinkles or crow's feet, a wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel will prove remarkably effectual.—ADV.

An Empress Who Worshiped Her Own Great Beauty

veil myself and people will speak of me as "The Woman who was."

It was while partaking of an informal luncheon at the Vetsera Palace that Countess Larisch learned of Mary's interest in the Crown Prince, for it was openly talked of at the table.

Later Mary Vetsera confined in the Countess.

Rudolph, in attaching the little Baroness to himself, did not dream of the depth of her infatuation and he was amazed when he could not shake her off as he had dozens of other pretty women who had been his favorites before. However unsatisfactory the Countess' narrative may be on the point of what actually occurred in the castle at Meyerling on the morning of the tragedy, she makes it perfectly plain that there was nothing to the theory that Rudolph killed Mary and himself by mutual agreement because of the hopelessness of their love. He was tired of her undoubtedly and he inveigled the Countess into aiding him in enticing her from her home so that he could take her to Meyerling. Her part in this escapade, undoubtedly innocent, cost her the Empress' favor and drove her into exile.

Rudolph and Mary spent three days at Meyerling, part of the time in the midst of a drunken hunting party, though the couple kept to their own apartments. On Jan. 31, 1889, Rudolph's valet went to his master's room to call him. Rudolph told him to return in half an hour. When the valet returned he could get no response from the occupants and the door was broken open. There lay Rudolph across the bed and under the cover was Mary. Both were dead, shot through the head. Even the Countess does not presume to hazard a guess as to what occurred in the death chamber and this will always remain a mystery.

A grave had been prepared and into this Mary's body was lowered without a religious service of any kind. "Marie Vetsera, whose only crime was love, was buried like a dog and her uncles, who knelt beside the grave, were allowed to pray only a few seconds." And so, under strict orders, Mary's grave was levelled with the earth that none might ever know where she lay awaiting the Judgment Day.

Mysterious R. I. O. U. Turns Out to Be Archduke John.

JUST before the Countess parted from Rudolph at their last painful meeting, he gave her a box of papers, telling her to hold them till a person giving the initials "R. I. U. O." should call for them.

The next day the Countess received a note containing the letters "R. I. U. O." The note appointed a meeting place for that evening, and the Countess, carrying the box, kept the appointment.

The writer of the note was the Archduke John of Tuscany. "You could not save a coward like Rudolph, but you've saved my life," he said to her. She began to cry, and the Archduke, taking her hand, said:

"'Don't regret Rudolph. If the Emperor had found these papers matters would have been infinitely worse. The Crown Prince has killed hismelf, but if the Emperor had known all it would have been his duty to have him tried by military law and shot as a traitor.'

"'Do you think that Rudolph's plans miscarried?' I asked, 'and that he received information to this effect while he was at Meyerling?'

"The Archduke was silent. 'It may be,' he answered evasively. "'But do you understand what the fear of discovery must have meant to Rudolph, with his nervous constitution undermined by drugs and brandy? Fear alone might have made him commit suicide. It is a pity he was so weak. He broke his word to me, and I trusted him. But a bottle of brandy seems to have turned him into a contemptible coward. However, we must not stand here any longer; there are police spies all over Vienna. Good-by, Countess Marie; you may never see me again, but I shall always remember what you have done for me.'

"I was greatly puzzled. 'Imperial Highness,' I asked, 'are you going away from Austria?'

"He smiled. 'Yes, I'm going to die without dying, for I am tired of the hollow things of life, and I intend to begin a new career—and now farewell. Don't forget me.'"

Fantastic Burial of Girl Whose Only Crime Was Love.

IT was given out that Rudolph had been killed in a hunting accident, but the truth could not be suppressed. Despite the scandal attending his death, the Crown Prince was buried in great state, but read how poor, little Mary Vetsera's body was treated:

"The uncles of the Baroness Vetsera were told that the orders were that the corpse of the Baroness Mary was to be fully dressed and taken to the carriage which was waiting. 'And,' said the policeman, 'you are to support the body between you in such a way as to make it appear that the Baroness still lives.'

"Then began the dreadful task of dressing the dead. Mary's hair was smoothed and pinned up in one heavy twist, and the uncles, who loved her tenderly, washed away the fresh stains on the once beautiful face. Then a ghastly thing occurred. Wiederhofer's lawn bandage broke. * * * But much endurance was mercifully given to the two gentlemen, and Count Stockau bound up the wound with his black silk cravat.

"Mary was dressed in her underlinen and corsets; her silk stockings and dainty boots were put on, and then came the pretty gown she had worn on that disastrous day at the Hofburg. Her hat and veil were next placed on her head, and the body was set in a chair until her uncles could nerve themselves to wrap her in her sealskin coat.

"It must have been an awful experience for those who assisted at this last toilette of Mary Vetsera, for as her uncles were preparing to put on the coat her head dropped heavily on her breast and she could not, of course, be taken out like that.

"The police officer at once thought of an expedient, and he slipped a walking stick down the dead girl's back and bound her neck to the stick with a handkerchief. Count Stockau and Alexandre Baltazi then put on the fur coat and lifted the corpse off the chair.

"The two men supported their niece's body between them and half carried it and half dragged it out of the room, along the dimly lit corridor and down the principal staircase to the waiting carriage.

"The dead girl was placed on the back seat and her uncles sat opposite. Count Stockau told me that occasionally the jolting threw Mary almost upon them, and he said that her close contact during this sinister journey was almost more than they could bear."

The grewsome drive continued until the carriage pulled up in front of a monastery and two monks helped the uncles to lift the girl's body and carry it into a store room which was lighted but dimly by one lantern. There stood a plain coffin of white wood. Our author continues:

Her Crushed Hat Her Only Pillow in Her Unlined Coffin.

"There was no shroud in which to wrap the dead, and the beautiful young body was somewhat roughly placed inside the unlined burial chest. Poor Mary! What an awful ending to a life which had seemed so full of promise! Rudolph lay honored in state, but his victim's only requiem was sung by the mournful wind as it sighed among the graves—better far to have laid her uncoffined in the kindly earth than to have pushed her inside the rough box, which in itself was an outrage on decency.

"Count Stockau doubled Mary's hat into a pillow and rested the sleeper's head upon it; he then took off a gold cross which she wore around her neck and placed the symbol of love and forgiveness between the stiff fingers."

The Countess concludes the elucidation of her theory of the tragedy of Meyerling by advancing the suggestion that Rudolph tired of awaiting his father's death to make him a king, had plotted to seize the throne of Hungary and that fear of detection in his disordered mental and physical state due to excesses had driven him mad. He had found the execution of the plot a much greater task than he had imagined and his collapse followed. Whether Archduke John was in the plot or not is not made clear, but the suggestion that he knew all about it is definite. Less than two years later, Archduke John vanished from the earth completely, after having first renounced his royal dignity, become plain John Orth and "gone into trade."

FAMOUS IN A DAY FOR THE BEAUTY OF HER HANDS AND ARMS

A Free Prescription That Does Its Work Over Night—You Can Prepare It at Your Own Home.

"It's my own discovery and it takes just one night to get such marvelous results," answers Camille de Verlac when her friends ask her about the marvelous change in the appearance of her hands and arms. "You can do the same thing if you take my advice," she says. "I feel it my duty to tell every woman what this wonderful prescription did for me. Just think of it! It did all this in one night.

It affords me a world of pleasure to tell anyone else just how such remarkable results were brought about. I give you, absolutely free, the identical prescription which has made me so happy by beautifying my hands and arms. You can form no idea of the marvelous change it will make in just one application. The prescription, which can be prepared at your own home, is as follows:

Go to any drug store and get an ounce bottle of Kulux Compound. Pour the entire contents into a two-ounce bottle, add a quarter ounce of witch hazel and fill with water. Mix this at home. Apply night and morning. The first application will delight you. It gives the skin a velvety softness, obliterates all discolorations such as tan, sun spots, freckles and coarse pores, roughness, and, in fact, every blemish the skin is heir to. It also produces a marvelous effect on the face, neck and shoulders. It is deliciously cool and soothing and is not affected by perspiration. It will not rub off.

If the neck is discolored from being exposed to the sun or from wearing high collars, this prescription will immediately relieve that condition. No matter how rough and ungainly the hands and arms, or what abuses they have had through hard work; no matter what exposure the skin has had to sun and wind, this prescription will work a wonderful transformation. Thousands of women are using this prescription with just the same results that I have had."—ADV.

PRESBYTERIANISM SANE AND SOUND, SAYS MODERATOR

Dr. Matthews Foresees Harmony in Atlanta Conference Between Three Church Wings.

ORGANIC UNION VISION

Seattle Divine Says $1,250,000 Has Been Paid Out Yearly in Home Mission Work.

The Rev. Dr. Mark Matthews of Seattle, moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, who stopped over in St. Louis Friday and yesterday on his way to Atlanta, was optimistic over the outlook for the joint meeting of the three principal branches of the Presbyterian Church, which begins in Atlanta, Thursday, May 15. The Southern Presbyterian Assembly, the United Presbyterian Assembly and the General Assembly, over which Mr. Matthews will preside, comprise the three branches which will make up the conference.

One of the most important questions to be considered by the General Assembly will be the Home Mission Board's alleged "usurpation of authority." Regarding this question the moderator states:

"The Home Mission Board is now 80 years old. During these eight decades of its existence not a single case of misappropriation has been discovered, not a penny has been lost, notwithstanding the fact that $1,250,000 is paid out yearly. Ninety-four cents of every dollar reach the mark for which they are intended. The remaining 6 cents are used to pay the missionaries. The assets of the Home Mission Board are $25,000,000.

"The board is controlled by men of sound business judgment and administrative ability. If the Home Mission Board objects to three churches in a town where one would suffice, on the grounds of unnecessary expenditure, in spite of the Presbytery's refusal to comply, this is not usurpation of authority, but discretion. In the same way the board desires that the salaries of the presbyterial pastor, the presbyterial evangelist, the synodical superintendent and the district secretary be transferred from the administrative to the missionary expense. This discretion has been mistaken for usurpation of authority.

"The old church is peaceful, sane, sound, sober and orthodox. The meeting at Atlanta will intensify missionary spirit, magnify evangelistic work, bring about closer co-operation and present a desirable vision of organic union which will increase as the years go by."

Dr. Matthews expects an amicable adjustment of relations between the Home Board and the New York Presbytery and Union Theological Seminary.

At a banquet Friday evening at King's Highway Presbyterian Church the moderator spoke to 200 elders and deacons on "The Duties of Church Officers." A short time later he addressed a large audience at a mass meeting on "The Duties and Definitions of Church Membership."

Dr. Matthews departed for Chattanooga at noon yesterday. He will preach the opening sermon before the General Assembly in the Baptist Tabernacle, Atlanta, at 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning.

STATE QUARANTINES A TOWN FOR TONSILITIS

One in Every 10 Persons Ill, 13 Have Died and Local Officials Did Not Act.

CANTON, Mass., May 10.—The State Board of Health today took full control of this city in an attempt to check an epidemic of tonsilitis, the peculiar manifestations of which have puzzled the authorities.

Within a few days 375 persons, or about one to every 10 of the population, have been stricken and 13 cases have proven fatal. The deaths all have been sudden. Two patients died today. Schools and all other places of public assembly have been closed and public funerals are prohibited.

The action of the State board in superseding the local authorities was due to the failure of the Canton health officers to adopt recommendations made by the State inspectors. The board cut off the local milk supply today until it has been certified by the inspectors.

PHONOGRAPH TELLS OF HOSTESS' BETROTHAL

Formal Announcement Is Made by Machine Between Songs.

Miss Amelia A. Bernard, daughter of Mrs. C. E. Rector of 1450 St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis, gave a phonograph party at her home Friday night. Among the 20 guests was Miss Bernard's reputed fiance, Dr. W. C. Stewart of St. Louis.

Right at the start the phonograph advised the guests to "Hurry Up, There's Wedding Bells." Then it wanted somebody to "Take Me to That Little Bungalow."

"Somebody must be going to get married around here," exclaimed one of the guests. And the phonograph answered:

"Mr. and Mrs. Rector announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Amelia A. Bernard, to Dr. W. C. Stewart of St. Louis. The wedding will be in June."

Stella Bernard, a sister of the bride-to-be, said Friday that it was she who had conceived the idea of an announcement by phonograph.

SEE THIS MASSIVE TURKISH ROCKER

It's exactly as shown in the illustration—a great, big comfortable rocker that is fit to grace any home—and an exceptional value at the price we name this week.

$1.00 Cash

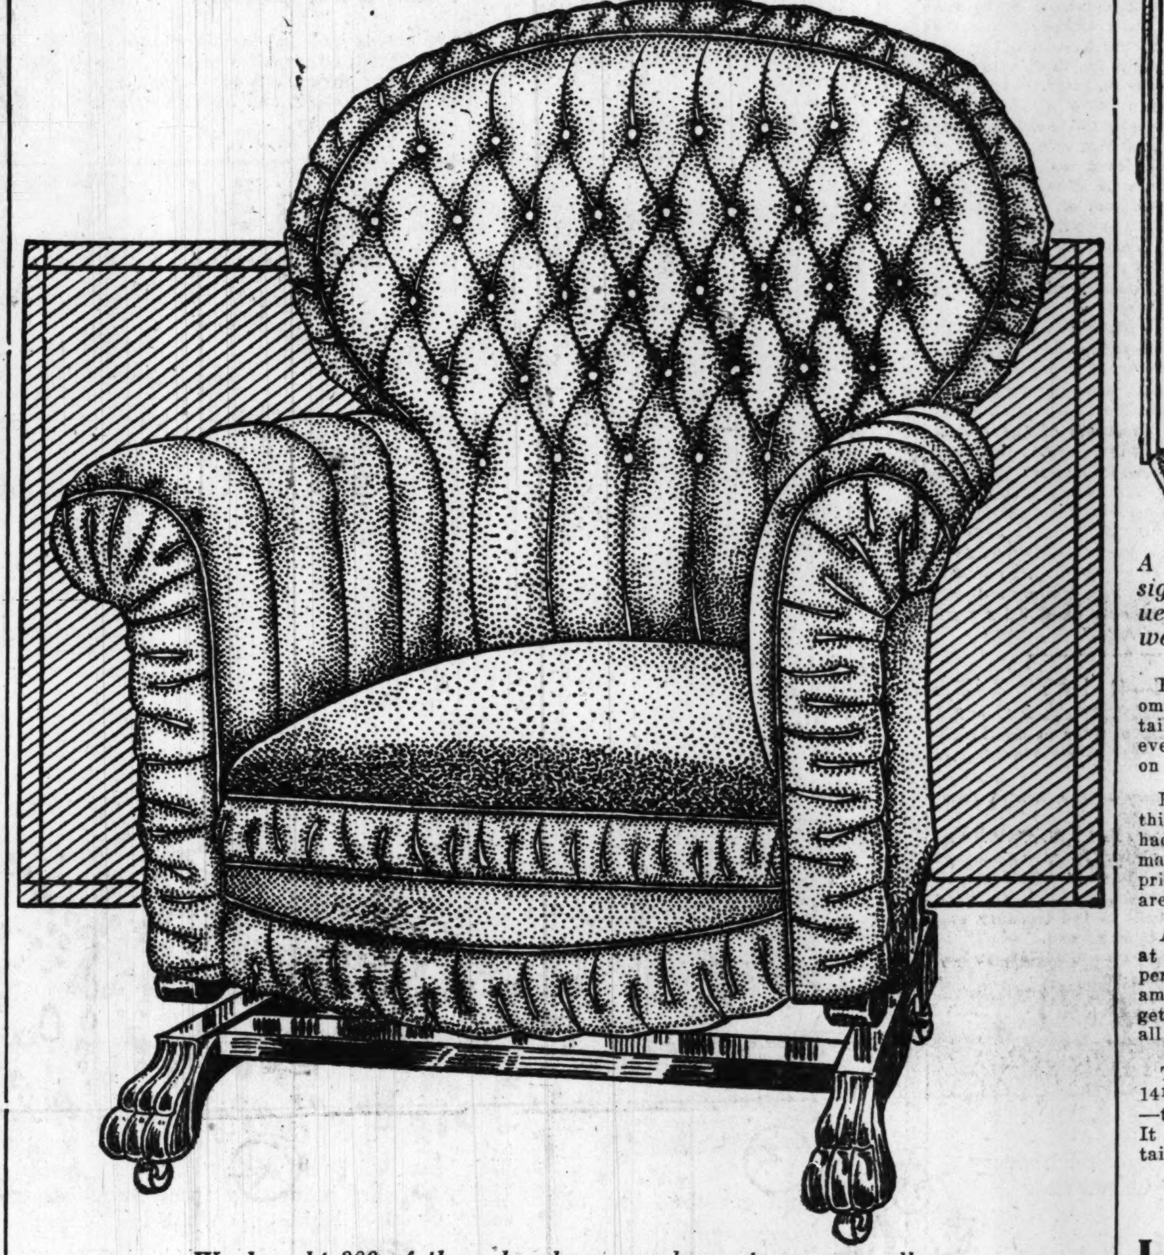
$1.00 A Month



We bought 300 of these handsome rockers at an unusually low price and this week we give you the benefit of the saving.

A Wonderful Value Indeed

You have only to glance at the picture to appreciate what an unusual value this Rocker must be at $9.85—in style, quality and workmanship it is equal to the finest you will see elsewhere at $14.00 or $15.00 and would be a good value even at those prices.

Our Buying Facilities

The advantages this store enjoys in the Furniture markets is clearly illustrated in this instance—we buy in immense quantities for our various stores—our trade is sought after—and whenever one of the makers has a particular bargain to offer, we are the first one he comes to.

Study the Picture

This illustration was drawn by our artist and shows this rocker exactly as it is in every detail—and you can come here with the confidence that you will find it exactly as shown and described—and the best value you have seen in many a day.

It's Really Fine

This rocker is big, broad and comfortable—in full over-stuffed Turkish design—with heavy roll arms, tufted back, broad seat and ruffled edges—as attractive a rocker as you could select for your home.

The Upholstering

Special care has been given to the upholstering of this rocker—it is covered with a superior quality of imitation leather that looks for all the world like genuine leather and will wear almost as well when put to the test of actual use, as it will not crack or peel, as genuine leather sometimes does.

The Construction

If you could cut this rocker open, you would be surprised to see how thoroughly well made it is throughout—the cabinet work, while it does not show from the outside, is first-class in every way—the base is strong, in rich mahogany finish and ornamented with carved claw feet— the tufting and ruffling is all done in the most careful manner—and the seat is strongly supported with tempered steel springs.

You Need This in Your Home

A rocker like this should find a welcome in every sitting room—it is the picture of comfort and it is just as comfortable as it looks—an ideal rocker that will appeal to the men folks after their hard day's work—and equally pleasing to the ladies when sewing or reading.

The Price—Only $9.85

You will probably remember that only a few years back a rocker like this was to be seen in only the richest homes—it would be made of genuine leather and priced at $60.00 or $75.00—the makers have duplicated the exact style of these expensive rockers, upholstered them in imitation leather and we offer them at a price that brings them within reach of almost everyone.

Note the Terms

If it is just the same to you, we would prefer not to sell these rockers for cash—we want to open a great many new accounts—we would like to number you among our charge customers—and as a special inducement to you to favor us with your account, we offer these rockers at this low price of $9.85—and on terms of $1.00 cash and $1.00 a month.

Now Don't Put This Off

These special offers this season have proved immensely successful—the demand has been extraordinary—we think we have enough of these rockers on hand to last all week—but it is barely possible that they will all be sold in the next two or three days—and to avoid disappointment, we urge you to make your selection tomorrow, if you can.

REARING A BIG FAMILY IN ST. LOUIS ON A WORKING MAN'S PAY

Marguerite Martyn Interviews a Mother Whose Tenth Son Has Just Arrived—Incidentally They Have Bought the Home They Live In and Never Have Missed a Payment on It

BY MARGUERITE MARTYN.

HALT! you alarmists with your wholesale allegations of race suicide, your fears that a reign of femininism is impending and your warnings that marriage cannot be undertaken on $12 a week, $15, $25 and even greater sums. Cease your lamentations over the disappearance of the old-fashioned virtues of family life. Pause at least until I have told you all about the family of William Cool. His case is a direct refutation and reproof to many of your theories.

After you've heard the story you may tell me it is the rare exception that proves the rule of your statistics, if you like. In that event I offer the story as one possessing a novelty warranting its place in the day's news ahead of the tales about dukes and duchesses, American heiresses and foreign titles, the latest suffragette explosion and all those other themes which are supposed to make good headlines.

Ten children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Cool during the 24 years of their married life. Residents out in the neighborhood where the Cools live at 3340 Emerson avenue, beyond Calvary Cemetery and just across the street from St. Mary's Orphan Home, may smile at the idea of a family of 10 being worthy of special notice. One has to thread one's way carefully to avoid stepping on babies swarming over the narrow sidewalks that border little grass plots before a row of one-story cottages.

RUDOLPH COOL, BABY, IS THE TENTH SON.

Rudolph is not only the tenth child to bless the Cool household, but he is the tenth son.

Each successive time the stork has arrived on his visits, timed irregularly two-and-a-half years apart, his precious burden has turned out to be more precious still, a boy. Each time a fine, strapping son arrived Papa Cool found it more and more difficult to contain his pride. It is not surprising that the tenth time pride simply burst all bounds. His latest explosion of paternal pride occurred out at the Dorris automobile factories, where he is a mechanician. He puffed and blew about his tenth son until his companions took up the refrain and echoes of it reached us at the Post-Dispatch.

"Go out and see for yourself," said Mr. Cool, when I approached him at his work. As if somebody doubted the wonder of it all!

"My wife is always at home," Mr. Cool had assured me, and so I found her in dust cap and apron getting midday luncheon for her sons returning from school.

The tenth son weighed nine pounds when he was born. How much he weighs today is not known. You can readily see how weighing the baby, so absorbing a ceremony in most nurseries, might have lost its novelty and importance by the time the tenth baby's turn came.

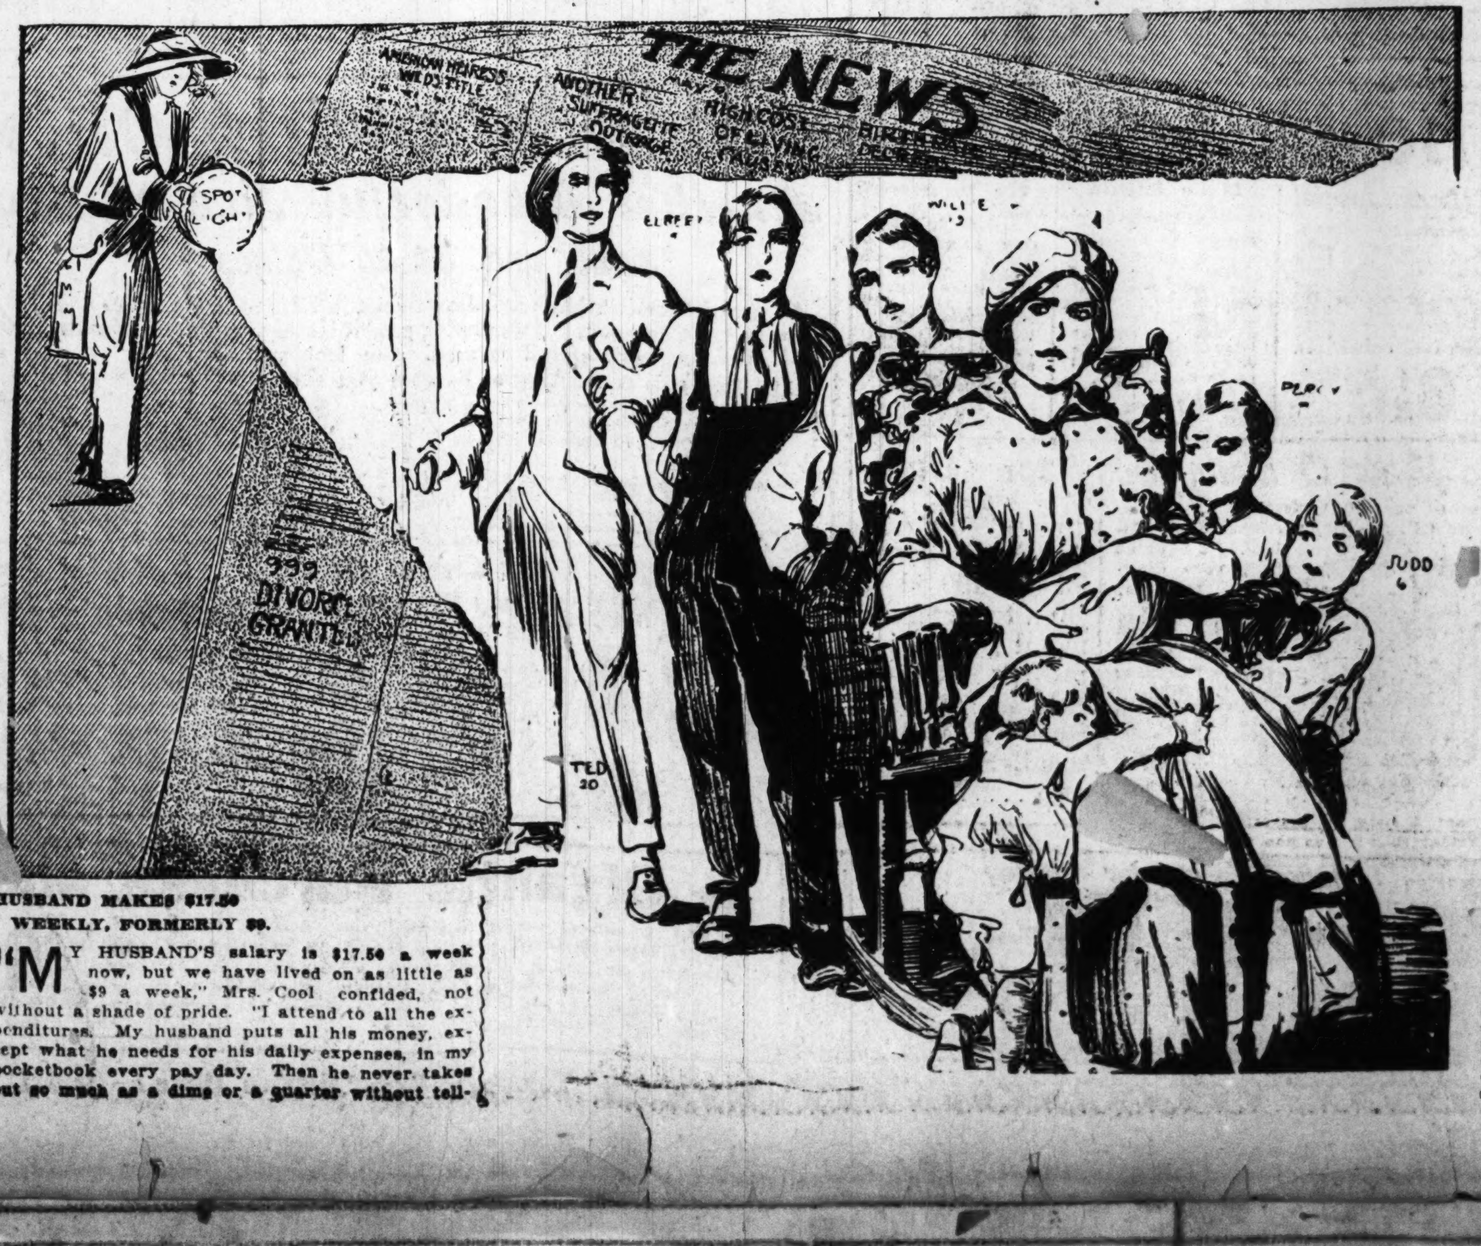
But, whatever he weighs, I can testify that Rudolph is just the biggest, most beautiful, best behaved month-old baby you'd ever care to see.

THE COOL BOYS IN LINE LOOK LIKE STAIRSTEPS

SOME of the other boys were pointed out to me as the little ones played in the yard and the older ones did their noonday shift hoeing the garden and painting the fence. Brown-cheeked, intelligent-looking and tall for their age they are, and they range downward like stairsteps standing in line. Theodore is 20, Elbert is 15, Miller 12, Percy 9, Judy 6, Lester 3 and the baby one month. There is an uneven gap between Theodore and Elbert and there should be another step above Theodore, for the Cools lost their f[illegible] baby and their third and fourth one.

The coincidence of 10 sons in succession is not explained by any reason of heredity. Mr. Cool was one of three brothers and one sister and Mrs. Cool came of a small family, wherein sex was similarly distributed.

Mrs. Cool herself is a singularly placid, self-possessed, even-toned sort of woman in voice, manner and appearance. There is a world of tenderness in her eyes, and a certain philosophy of contentment never fails her. She is 45 years old. Her husband is four years older.



HUSBAND MAKES $17.50 WEEKLY, FORMERLY $9.

"MY HUSBAND'S salary is $17.50 a week now, but we have lived on as little as $9 a week," Mrs. Cool confided, not without a shade of pride. "I attend to all the expenditures. My husband puts all his money, except what he needs for his daily expenses, in my pocketbook every pay day. Then he never takes out so much as a dime or a quarter without telling me what it is for. He has always done this of his own accord. I never have to suggest it to him.

"Sometimes when there was another baby coming I have wondered how we were going to stretch our income to cover the additional expense, but somehow we've always managed it, and, more than that, kept a little ahead.

"We started with nothing at all. Then after the first boy was born the river receded alongside a farm that had belonged to my father-in-law. My husband, as one of the heirs reclaimed this property and sold it. But this was the only real estate we ever owned until we commenced buying this place. Fate sort of took a hand in this, too. I was fearful to risk buying anything on the installment plan, but whenever we would try to rent a place to live we were always refused. 'Too many boys,' the landlords would say. We just had to buy a place. But we've never regretted it. We've never missed paying a note when it is due, and sometimes I scrape together a hundred and pay before it is due."

Mrs. Cool seemed as bewildered when I asked her how she did it as some other people may be at being told that she does feed and house and clothe seven healthy growing youngsters on a trifle more than $70 a month.

"I never keep any account. I couldn't tell you at all how I systematize it. I don't suppose I could do it if I didn't do my own work, washing and ironing and sewing, making even the boys' shirts and pants while they are little. We don't notice the pressure of economy. You see we are all very happy together.

MRS. COOL USED TO LONG FOR A DAUGHTER.

"I USED to long for a daughter. When the seventh was born I must have made an awful face when they told me it was another boy. Mother said she couldn't believe it was me. But I don't believe any daughter could be as thoughtful and helpful to me as my boys. Yes, they help me with the housework. They know they have it to do before they can get out and play ball. And they really love to take care of the baby. They quarrel for that privilege.

"Next time you come I'll try and have some actual figures to show how we do manage to eat three good meals a day," said Mrs. Cool when I was departing, still perplexed. Not that I doubted her statements at all. There was too much evidence of thrift in the clean little house and too many rosy cheeks testifying to her words.

CLEAN-UP DAY IS TO BE NAMED AS CITY FUNCTION

Mayor, Municipal Departments and Individuals All Expected to Remove Rubbish.

St. Louis is to have a housecleaning late in May. The Civic League, which likes to be considered a public servant, is the first to come forward and announce its willingness to be one of the "help." Mayor Kiel is to be the housekeeper, and he is anxious to have various organizations tender their services as special domestics.

For several years nearly all the big cities in the country have had clean-up days in the spring, just as the individual housekeeper cleans house. These city clean-ups have been successful in other cities, the Civic League finds because of the co-operation of newspapers, householders, civic organizations and city departments.

The idea is to rid the city of rubbish and waste. The plan proposed is to divide the city into clean-up districts and make collections in only one district at a time. The forces of the health and street departments will aid in the clean-up, and it has been suggested that Boy Scouts and other school children distribute circulars among householders, instructing them how to help in the clean-up.

Milwaukee has had a clean-up day in the spring for several years. The first year so much rubbish was gathered up that it took the city teams a week to remove it. The next year householders were instructed to burn combustible rubbish and the amount was reduced 75 per cent.

New York city is conducting a big clean-up campaign this spring under the direction of its health board. Cleveland has had success with spring clean-ups for several years.

ENGAGED TO BRITISHER, EASES UP ON SUFFRAGE

Vermont Women Who Met English Army Officer 6 Weeks Ago Yields to His Views.

RUTLAND, Vt., May 10.—The engagement is announced of Miss Margaret Goodwin Clement, daughter of Percival W. Clement, formerly president of the Rutland Railroad, and Maj. William Wilfred Rhodes, third son of the late J. W. Rhodes of Hennerton, Berks, England. Miss Clement is an ardent woman suffragist and has been in New York several months in the interests of the cause. It is reported here that Miss Clement has known the English army officer only about six weeks and that because of his disapproval of the suffrage movement she has abandoned her former activities.

Maj. Rhodes is a guest at the Clement mansion here. He and Miss Clement are seen frequently on the streets of Rutland in garments whose eccentricities startle the quiet people of the town. Miss Clement appears occasionally in a costume the skirt of which reaches barely to the knees and is slashed a la mode on either side about six inches higher.

A few years ago Miss Clement's sister, then Miss Ethel Clement, caused a furore in Episcopal Church circles in Vermont by refusing to be married unless the word "obey" were left out of the service. The Bishop refused to change the service and Miss Clement was married by a Congregational minister.

WESTERN ART EXHIBIT OPENS AT ART MUSEUM

Sixty-Nine Painters and Sculptors Represented in 169 Exhibits in 3 Galleries.

The seventeenth annual exhibition of paintings and sculpture by workers of the West opened yesterday at the City Art Museum. It is made by the Society of Western Artists, composed of local chapters in Chicago, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Detroit and St. Louis. Sixty-nine artists are represented in the 169 exhibits.

The exhibition opened with a reception to the artists and the people of St. Louis. Popular talks were given in each of the three galleries in which the collection is exhibited.

The collection already has been seen in Chicago, at the Art Institute, where it attracted much attention. It is competitive, and the jury of selection for this year adopted new and rigid rules and cut down the number of exhibits to those only which were considered of notable worth. The annual Fine Arts Building prize was awarded to William Wendt for a California landscape, brilliantly executed.

AID SOUGHT TO PROVIDE MORE NURSES FOR POOR

Local Association Asks Help in View of Probable Increase of Illness.

The Visiting Nurse Association has issued an appeal for assistance to enable it to increase its force of nurses from 12 to 21, to care for the increased probability of sickness among the poor, due to the warm weather and the consequent survival of germ-carrying insects. The association is supported by voluntary contributions. Its work is limited only by the amount of funds it receives.

The association hopes, during the coming summer, to provide nursing service for every patient in St. Louis who needs the short call of a visiting nurse. The officers of the association say that there are thousands of poor sick in St. Louis who are uncared for unless a visiting nurse comes to their home. Mrs. John B. Shapleigh, 4950 Berlin avenue, is chairman of the Finance Committee.

ZACH'S ORCHESTRA WINS PRAISE IN MANY CITIES

Southwestern Critics Enthusiastic Over St. Louis Symphony Organization.

ENGAGED FOR NEXT YEAR

Oklahoma and Texas Cities Welcome Music as the Best Ever Heard There.

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, on tour through the Southwest during the past week, won enthusiastic approbation from large audiences in Houston, Tex.; Waco, Tex.; Muskogee, Ok., Little Rock, Ark., and Springfield, Mo., where concerts were given under the direction of Max Zach.

In Houston the orchestra was one of the features of the Twenty-ninth German-Texan Saengerfest, which continued two days. The impression created by the work of the orchestra and Director Zach is shown by the following press notices:

Houston Post, May 8: Next in general educational importance after the choral features comes, of course, the orchestra. The people's prompt and cordial applause following the program's purely symphonic selections (in especial the "Egmont" Overture), emphasizes the fact that there is in this community the eager appetite for orchestral music. Director Max Zach has his fine and large collection of instrumentalists always well in hand, the choir's strings are large and splendidly grouped and the woodwinds division is exceptionally fine.

High Praise for Zach.

Houston Chronicle, May 7: And now the orchestra. We should use capitals as one of the very small evidences of enthusiasm we entertain for this small band of big musicians. In looking over the general body, it was with keen pleasure we observed so many distinctly American faces. The orchestra is a municipal enterprise. It is only one of the many evidences of culture which the Midwest has shown during the past several decades. It is full of nerve and life and enthusiasm. The men work conscientiously and with a zest that is tremendously satisfying.

In the "Prelude to Lohengrin" the orchestra reached its zenith as an interpretative body. The number was exquisitely given. The composition is one of the most personal things Wagner wrote. It begins with the viols in the most delicate treatment, slowly but with a steady up-beat passing the conversation on to the reeds, then the brasses and then the percussions.

As a conductor, Mr. Zach is a very "personal" man. He presents a picture which is strangely attractive and fascinating. The temperamental side of the man may be in evidence. There seems no sentimental side. * * *

Muskogee Likes Orchestra.

Muskogee Times-Democrat, May 9—The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Zach, gave two concerts, matinee and night, in Muskogee Thursday. The orchestra, one of the best in the country, gave two splendidly rendered and delightful programs.

The orchestra has been making a brief tour of the Southwest, and is receiving an ovation wherever it appears. So popular was the orchestra at many points in Texas that contracts were signed on the spot for an engagement next season, and it is probable that Muskogee will also have the opportunity to hear the orchestra again.

Zach's Work Approved.

Waco News, May 8: The concert was [illegible] events. A symphony, three other distinctively orchestral numbers and accompaniments to vocal and violincello solos comprised the program, conducted brilliantly by Mr. Max Zach. The symphony was Tchaikowsky's sixth (Pathetique), exquisitely beautiful and impressive in its range of mind and soul expression, from melancholy to peace and resignation, in the closing days of the unique composer; remarkable for its stirring chords in violin music. By the same composed, but widely different in effect and movement, the "Nutcracker Suite" especially pleased—probably the most colorful of Tschaikowsky's work; the dance of the fairy Sugar Plum ("Danse de la Fee Dragee"), the Russian dance, the Arabian dance, the dance of the reed instruments ("Danse de Mirlitons") and the waltz of the flowers being the unusual arrangement resplendent, it may be phrased, with description. "Valse des Fleurs" was irresistible, in rhythm and beauty of tone.

Rejoices at Return Date.

Wille Hutcheson in Houston Post, May 7: After delightfully listening to three programs on all of which the orchestra numbers were the most generally appreciated, I am sure that everybody will be pleased with the Chorus Club management's announcement, here and now, that the St. Louis Orchestra was yesterday positively engaged to open our coming season's series of concerts. So Herr Max Zach and his excellent body of instrumentalists (besides two special additional solo artists) will be heard here some time in late November next by all the active and associate members of the Woman's Choral Club.

Houston Chronicle, May 6: It is with genuine pleasure that Houston welcomes the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. Max Zach. Despite having only 53 men, the rendition of the bigger things was excellently done. The first thing which presented itself to the auditors was the splendid discipline of the men. The writer, who was at their rehearsal, could not be other than impressed with this quality.

Mr. Zach's tremendous leading of the Egmont overture was masterfully presented. It was intensely virile, forceful and had all of the essentials of a Beethoven genius.

This orchestra is maintained by the city of St. Louis. The expense of maintaining it last year was $30,000, and it concluded its program this year with a $48,000 debt, which the city made up.

Rent a spare room to make that income larger. The druggist will phone your ad to the Post-Dispatch.

POLICE BOARD HAS DROPPED INQUIRY AS TO LOBBY FUND

Will Not Ask Itemized Expense Account From Legislative Committee for Policemen.

PROBABLY NO RECORDS

Members Not Worried as to How $3800 Was Spent in Interest of Pay-Increase Bill.

President McPheeters and his associates on the Police Board have dropped consideration of the Police Department lobby operations at the recent session of the General Assembly, in connection with the bill to increase the salaries of sergeants, patrolmen and probationery patrolmen.

After an extended discussion of the matter, a majority of the board has decided not to request the Police Employes' Legislative Committee for a detailed statement of expenditures. A total of $5162 was raised, of which $3800 was expended for "attorneys' fees" and the expenses incidental to the entertainment of members of the Legislature. Eight members of the department spent at Jefferson City a total of $1100. The Police Board has concluded that it is not concerned with the manner in which this money was expended.

Police Commissioners Samuel B. McPheeters and Thomas S. Maffitt say the board will not reopen the inquiry unless a definite charge is made that the money turned over to the Police Committee was "improperly" expended.

It is understood that the board voted down a resolution calling for an itemized accounting of the police lobby funds. The fact that certain police officers spent from $25 to $40 a day lobbying for the police at Jefferson City is of no particular significance, according to Police Commissioner Thomas S. Maffitt.

"They (police officers) probably haven't any record as to how or with whom they spent that money," said Commissioner Maffitt to a Post-Dispatch reporter.

"It is not unusual for people interested in legislation to spend $30 or $40 a day for entertainment purposes. It is difficult to remember just who the money was spent with, but I am satisfied it was spent honestly and there was nothing improper in the conduct of the so-called police lobbyists."

Can't Say What Tall Did.

In reply to a question Maffitt said he understood Joe Tall of Cahoka was paid $1750 for "legal services," but just what legal aid was rendered the police by Tall he could not say.

"If there is anything wrong about this affair, I guess the Cole County grand jury will find it," said Maffitt. "It will be time enough then for the Police Board to take action. So far nobody has appeared before us to make any charges of improper use of money."

"Do you know what the St. Louis police committee spent $321 for?" Maffitt was asked.

Dinner Parties for Legislators.

"I have an idea that it was spent for little theater and dinner parties for legislators," replied Maffitt. "There isn't a thing in this so-called police lobby scandal to my mind. The papers are making a great fuss about it, but we can't help that."

Commissioner Sheahan said that as the police salary increase bill was defeated he couldn't see how anybody had a complaint coming, except members of the department who subscribed to the lobby fund. He was in hearty accord, he said, with Chief of Police Young, both in regard to the chief's indorsement of the lobby fund expenditures and all other matters relating to police affairs.

"We have a good police department now," said Sheahan, "and Chief Young is to be congratulated on keeping it free from politcs."

Police Commissioner Williams refused to make any statement. "I must refer any question on this matter to President McPheeters," said Williams. "My position has been defined, but I am not at liberty to make public anything which occurred at the executive sessions of the board."

PASSING WAR CLOUDS LEAVE GOLDEN PROMISE

End of Balkan Troubles Gives Hope to European Speculators of Industrial Boom.

Copyright, 1913, by Press Pub. Co. (New York World.)

LONDON, May 10.—Now that danger of war in the near East has passed a great increase in financial and industrial activity is expected. Vast hoards of gold, held up owing to the uncertain outlook, will now be released and normal conditions will be resumed on the bourses of Vienna, St. Petersburg and Berlin, instead of intermittent panic.

Several loans will be offered, especially in connection with the reorganization of the Balkan states, which, for many years to come, promise to afford scope for investment and speculation in building roads and railways and developing the oil, mineral and other resources and industries.

The London Stock Exchange anticipates a period of prosperity, as the general level of securities is low, this being considered especially the case with regard to American railways.

In fact, there are all the evidences of organizing one of those booms by which the public periodically fills the pockets of the organizers.

German School Society Picnic.

The annual picnic of the German School Society will be held Saturday, May 24, at Forest Park Highlands. There will be exhibition drills by turnverein classes, and in the evening singing societies will entertain. German societies will take part in the program. The German School Society conducts classes in some of the public schools on Saturday mornings. Fifteen hundred children attend the classes.

ST. LOUIS TO BE PREMIER CITY AT DENVER TURNFEST

Every Local Turnverein Will Send Picked Athletes, Men and Women, to June Event.

Many Germans will go from St. Louis next month to the great international turnfest in Denver. Every turnverein in the city will send a large party, including its picked athletes, both men and women. No other city in the United States will be so well represented.

The Denver festival, which takes place June 25 to 29, will be one of the largest gatherings of the Teutonic people ever held in America. Nearly 150 societies have already promised to attend, and the list is growing steadily. Many thousands of persons who are not Germans will go along to take advantage of the exceptionally low railroad rates.

Denver and the whole of Colorado are making great preparations to entertain this international festival. The people have raised a fund of approximately $70,000. A huge stadium is being erected on the festival grounds. This has a large seating capacity. From its tiers of seats can be viewed the mighty wall of snow-capped mountains that extends in an unbroken line for 200 miles to the west of Denver.

The great Municipal Auditorium of Denver also has been secured for the occasion. In this will be held the competitive dramatic productions, the oratorical contests and the singing festivals. The City Museum has been loaned to the turners for a great art exhibition.

Conspicuous features will be the spectacular historical pageants, depicting many interesting epochs in the life of the Teutonic people. These will take place on the downtown streets of Denver and will occupy nearly every evening of the festival. Thousands of costumed people will take part. There will be scores of gorgeously-decorated floats. This portion of the turnfest will cost many thousands of dollars.

Denver people are taking a deep interest in the gathering and will have ample accommodations ready for the visitors. They have secured unprecedentedly low railroad rates to every scenic point of interest in the State of Colorado. Daily excursions will be run for the turners to famous mountain resorts.

The street decorations and illumination will surpass anything ever seen in Denver, where so many elaborate national gatherings have been held.

CAKE FOR OLDEST MOTHER

Youngest Will Get Book at First Christian Church.

Mothers' Day will be celebrated at the First Christian Sundayschool, 3126 Locust street, at 9:30 a. m. today. Supt. Charles O. Forse has announced that a cake will be given to the oldest mother, a box of candy to the mother having the youngest baby and a souvenir to every other person present.

For the 11 o'clock service, the pastor, the Rev. John L. Brandt, has requested members who own automobiles to call for elderly persons who otherwise could not attend.

A NEW DEPARTMENT AT SCHMITZ & SHRODER

AFTER a month of careful planning and preparation—we now announce another important step in this store's history—the inauguration of a new department in our First and Second Floor Clothing Sections to be devoted exclusively to a wonderful showing of

STRICTLY ALL-WOOL $15.00 and $18.00 SUITS

AT $10

Every new style, fabric and pattern that s popular this season.

NO other store is in position to offer you strictly highgrade allwool Suits like these at $10.00, because no other store enjoys the facilities that we do. We make all our clothing in our big, modern, sunlight tailoring shops on the premises—and we are giving you a clear demonstration of what a saving this means to you.

In every size and proportion to fit men and young men.

OUR buyers made a special trip to New York to select these fabrics and as the garment workers' strike in the East had left the mills heavily overstocked with piece goods, were able to secure fine qualities at a decided concession. The Suits have been made up in our own tailoring shops—by tailors whom we have trained for years in the making of Schmitz & Shroder Clothing.

THE FABRICS

THESE Suits are unusual in every way—made of the latest all-wool fabrics—in every shade and coloring that is new, select and popular—including the new browns, grays, tans, French and Oxford blues, silver grays, shadow stripes, brown and blue diagonals, etc., in almost endless assortment.

THE STYLES

EVERY style to please men of conservative tastes as well as the swagger young man—coats in soft roll English models, 2 and 3 buttons with flat lapels and almost square front—also the newest models in Norfolks—pants in semi-peg or straight English lines, with or without cuffs, and made with Keystone belt loops, side straps and flaps on hips.

THE FINISH

THESE Suits are silk sewed throughout—lined with alpaca and serges, and a few of them are silk lined—the interlining and trimmings are thoroughly good—and the workmanship thoroughout is the kind that can be relied upon. The pants are double silk sewed and the pockets are extra strong.

These Suits will appeal to the man who has always paid $15, $18 or $20 for his Suits

WE want you to understand that these are not the average $10.00 Suits—they are actual $15.00, $18.00 and up to $20.00 qualities that our unusual tailoring facilities permit us to offer you at this great saving. Come in tomorrow—see these Suits for yourself—study the fabrics, patterns and workmanship—try on one or two of them if you like, and note their style and perfect-fitting proportions. We know positively that these values have never been duplicated in this city and we want YOU and every man in St. Louis to know it, too.

Men's Suits Unequaled styles and qualities are shown at $15.00

"About seven years ago I was growing so weak and worn out with my stomach, bowels and back hurting me that I could hardly work. After trying other things without relief I bought a bottle of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy. After taking about a bottle and a half I looked like a new person, so I kept on taking the medicine until I had used about eleven bottles. All the pain left me, and the rheumatism and dyspepsia vanished. We have used Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy ever since with great success in our family. You can use this letter.—Warner's cured me of different diseases, and I want it to cure others."—O. F. Rose, Burtonville, Kentucky.

$5000 IN SECRET DRAWER

LONDON, May 10.—An antique dealer of Cardiff bought a bureau at a sale for $15. While the dealer's wife was examining the piece of furniture she accidentally touched a secret button, which opened a hidden drawer.

In the drawer were found securities to the value of $5000 in the name of David Morris Lewis, who had died six years before. A daughter of Lewis has been found.

GETTING GRAY? USE SAGE TEA TO RESTORE NATURAL COLOR OF HAIR

Hair that loses its color and luster, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair, says a well-known local pharmacist. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful and even today this simple preparation has no equal. Millions of women and men, too, who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive use only Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Nowadays we are not bothered with the task of gathering the sage leaves and the mussy mixing at home. Simply ask at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of the ready to use preparation, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Customers like this best because it darkens so naturally; so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it contains ingredients which take off dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. No, it isn't a dye or even like it. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color.

What delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that besides beautifully darkening the hair they say it brings back the gloss and luster and gives it an appearance of abundance.—ADV.

BISHOPRIC WALL BOARD

OPPONENTS OF TAX INCREASE INVITED TO HOUSE SESSION

Delegates Favoring Randall 10-Cent Raise for Bridge Use Hope to See Them.

EXPECT TO FORCE ACTION

House Leaders to Have Bill Carrying Amendment in Mayor's Hands Wednesday.

The House of Delegates will hold a special session at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow, at which the general appropriation bill carrying Councilman Randall's amendment providing a tax increase of 10 cents on the $100 valuation to raise $540,000 for the completion of the wagon approaches to the free bridge will be considered.

The Council passed the bill Friday night by a vote of 10 to 1. Councilman Haller, who voted against it, has appealed to Mayor Kiel to veto it if the Democratic majority in the House should follow the Council's example.

The Mayor refuses to say whether he will approve or reject the bill, although he declares emphatically that he is opposed to the completion of the free bridge wagon approaches at this time

The St. Louis tax rate is now $2.22. Comptroller Player has recommended an increase of 3 cents to avoid a deficit in the municipal revenues, and to this Councilman Randall's bill proposes to add 10 cents for bridge purposes.

President Kinsey of the Board of Public Improvements says it will require $994,000 to complete the wagon approaches and upper deck of the free bridge. With the money derived from the increased tax rate and the $111,000 now in the city treasury to the credit of the bridge fund, there will be a total of $651,000 available, which is $343,000 short of Kinsey's estimate.

Delegates McCarthy of the Sixteenth Ward and Gallagher of the Fourth, Democrats, are the chief advocates of the Randall tax plan in the lower house. They do not believe the tax raise is objected to by property owners. If there are any protesting taxpayers they hope to see them at the House of Delegates tomorrow, they say, when the appropriation bills are read for the second time and referred to committee for action.

The House leaders expect to force a favorable report from the Ways and Means Committee, of which Delegate McCarthy is chairman, so the tax increase can be made effective by Tuesday night and the bill placed in the hands of the Mayor Wednesday morning.

Mayor's Position Regearded Uncertain

The Mayor's position is regarded as so uncertain by members of the assembly that they doubt if he would veto the measure. In case the Mayor vetoes the tax raise the House and Council will still have time, before May 26, to override the veto.

Assembly leaders say privately that when the tax rate is boosted high enough for bridge purposes the people will regret having rejected the bond issue last November. The intimation is made that if the bond issue of the railroad approaches to the bridge is defeated the tax rate will go up again and the bridge be completed regardless of how much the present generation of taxpayers is assessed.

The Council, under the leadership of Chairman Randall of the Ways and Means Committee, was not in a cheerful mood when the tax proposition came up for consideration. When the suggestion was made that possibly the taxpayers would object to this method of completing a portion of the bridge, one of the councilman is said to have remarked, "Taxpayers be damned!"

Councilman Randall pointed out that with the completion of the wagon approaches and the upper deck of the free bridge, street cars can be operated over the bridge within a short time. The Southern Traction Co., which has a franchise for a downtown loop connecting with the free bridge, is the only company so far that has indicated a desire for a permit to run cars over the bridge. Opponents of the tax plan point out that the Randall tax amendment to the general appropriation bill is distinctly in the interest of the Southern Traction Co.

Blundering Policy, Says Player.

Comptroller Player thinks the Assembly has started on a blundering policy by increasing the tax rate in order to construct part of the bridge

"In the first place," said the Comptroller to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday, "the municipal budget was reduced $2,500,000 so as to keep the tax rate as low as possible this year. Some of the items cut out, which called for public improvements, will have to be included next year. If anything, the tax rate for municipal purposes will go up, rather than down, to meet municipal expenditures.

"I do not know what taxpayers will think about this latest move, but I predict that if the proposition now under consideration by the Assembly should be put to a referendum vote it would be defeated overwhelmingly.

"If the tax increase is voted, I doubt if the people will take kindly to a bond issue to complete the remainder of the bridge. A bond issue would mean more taxes, but the rise would be gradual and the present generation would not have to bear the whole burden.

"We do not know whether the people would or would not vote for an issue of bonds to provide for the completion of the railroad and wagon approaches to the bridge until we have put the question to a test to ascertain whether they have confidence in the new administration.

"It seems to me if the bridge bonds should be submitted to the public and all the conditions surrounding their submission stated openly and frankly and a statement rendered as to the exact purpose for which the money was to be used, together with an explanation of the legal phases of the bridge problem, the voters would approve a bond issue. But where at one election we ask $2,750,000 and at the next $3,500,000, how is anybody to know for what the money is needed?

"The whole bridge matter has been muddled. Conferences can't help matters, as we have seen after a four-weeks' trial. The tax increase comes in the nature of a threat to the people that if they don't vote bonds their taxes will be forced up. That is another mistaken policy. The public will not be driven by public officials, who are simply servants of the public."

We All Eat Too Fast!

We all do more or less, but the worst feature of fast eating is the unavoidable swallowing of air with the food. Is it any wonder, then, that after a few mouthfuls of food, or after a meal, you feel bloated, uncomfortable and nervous?

Fast eating is, to a great extent, nervousness, or rather the craving of the stomach nerves for a quick supply of food, and Baalmann's Gas-Tablets are a typical specific for this undue craving of the nerves which results in eating quickly.

Baalmann's Gas-Tablets CANNOT make you eat slower, but through their direct action on the excited gastric nerves calm the craving stomach and relieve you of swallowed air, stomach gas and its bad effects. These peculiar Tablets are sold for 50c by all druggists, but insist on getting the genuine in a yellow carton.

Your Grandmother's Remedy for Purifying the Blood

And Renovating the System in the Springtime

Ask for Sulpherb Tablets.

What was grandmother's unexcelled remedy? Haven't you heard of it? Yes, you have! It was sulphur, cream of tartar and molasses. The main trouble with it was its nauseous taste.

A modern method puts the cream of tartar and sulphur into a sugar-coated tablet and mixes them with herbs, roots, etc., making a wonderful tonic blood purifier and system cleanser.

Just try sulpherb tablets (not sulphur tablets), but sulpherb—remember the name—and get the tablets in sealed tubes at 50c per tube.

Grown-up people and children who don't feel well, who are constipated or sluggish, or who have pimples, boils, carbuncles, ulcers and the like, can soon rid the system of these impurities by taking this good old-fashioned remedy in modern form. Their action satisfies or money is refunded by the Prescription Products Company, Dayton, Ohio. A free trial sent to any address. Buy of any well-stocked druggist.

SECRET LEAVES OF 'DE PROFUNDIS' ARE READ IN COURT

Brilliant Letter by Oscar Wilde Used to Defeat Douglas Libel Suit in England.

NOW IN BRITISH MUSEUM

Fallen Genius' Literary Executor Provided It Should Remain Unopened Till 1960.

LONDON, May 10.—It is not often, even in a court of law, where so many dramatic things happen, that there occurs an episode so full of human interest as that which took place in the King's Bench during the Douglas-Ransome libel trial that has just ended.

Part of the apologia of a great, though fallen, genius, written by him in the prison cell where he was sent to expiate his crimes, was read out for the first time to his fellow-men. It was his last effort to try to win the sympathy of the world that condemned him, or at any rate, of posterity.

It was the writing of Oscar Wilde, that brilliant author of books and plays, who, after drinking in great drafts from the chalice of fame and honor, tasted the bitterest dregs of the cup of degradation before he died, an outcast, unnamed by the world, in a foreign land.

Part of his apologia, written while he was in Reading Gaol, between 1895 and 1897, has already been published under the title of "De Profundis (or "Out of the Depths"). It was a large section of the unpublished part which was read in Mr. Justice Darling's court.

The manuscript, written on blue foolscap paper, and signed in his own name, was brought to the court from the British Museum, where it has lain hidden since, some time after Wilde's death in Paris, it was presented to the museum by his literary executor.

These unpublished leaves were intended to be kept secret in the British Museum until 1960. They were produced by the authorities of the museum on subpena, and were relied on by Mr. Ransome to prove, as he contended, that Lord Alfred Douglas was to blame for Wilde's downfall.

Recent Book Basis of Libel.

Mr. Ransome recently wrote a book called "Oscar Wilde: A Critical Analysis," in which he made this charge and Lord Douglas sued for libel. The judgment of the Court, after a thorough hearing of the evidence on both sides, was that the plaintiff had not been libeled. Following are excerpts from the letter, which is in Wilde's most brilliant and rhythmic style:

"I have no doubt that in this letter which I have to write of your life and mine, of the past and of the future, of the sweet things changed to bitterness and of the bitter things that may be turned into joy, there will be much that will wound your vanity to the quick. If it prove so, read the letter over and over again, until it kills your vanity. If there be in it any single passage that brings tears to your eyes, weep as we weep in prison, where the day no less than the night is set apart for tears.

"It is the only thing that can save you. * * * You must read this letter right through, though each word may come to you as fire, or knife of surgeon, that makes delicate flesh burn or bleed.

"* * * The real fool, such as the gods make or mar, is he who does not know himself. I was such a one too long. You have been such a one too long. Be so no more. Do not be afraid. The supreme vice is shallowness. Everything that is realized is right.

"To you the unseen powers have been very good. They have permitted you to see strange and dreadful shapes of life as one sees shadows in a crystal. The head of Medusa, that turns living men to stone, you have been allowed to look on in a mirror merely. You yourself have walked free among the flowers. From me the beautiful world of color and motion has been taken away.

Gap Between Us Too Wide.

"I will begin by telling you I blame myself terribly, as I sit in this cell in convict clothes, a disgraced and ruined man. In the tortured and fitful nights of anguish, in the long monotonous days of pain, it is myself I blame. I blame myself for allowing an unintellectual friendship, and a friendship whose primary aim was not the creation and contemplation of beautiful things, to entirely dominate my life.

"From the very first there was too wide a gap between us. You had been idle at your school; worse than idle at your university. You did not realize that an artist, and especially such an artist as I am—one that is, to say, the quality of whose work depends on the intensification of personality—requires an intellectual atmosphere, quiet, peace and solitude.

"You admired my work when it was finished. You enjoyed the brilliant success of my first nights, and the brilliant banquets that followed them. You were proud and quite naturally so, of being the intimate friend of an artist so distinguished, but you could not understand the conditions required for the production of artistic work.

"I am not speaking in phrases of rhetorical exaggeration, but in terms of absolute truth to actual fact, when I remind you that during the whole time when we were together I never wrote one single line. Whether at Torquay, Goring, London, Florence or elsewhere, my life, as long as you were by my side, was entirely sterile and uncreative. And with but a few intervals you were, I regret to say, by my side always.

Lord Alfred's Baleful Influence.

"I remember, for instance, in September, 1893, to select merely one instance out of many, taking a set of chambers [illegible] in order to work undisturbed, as I had broken my contract with John Hare, for whom I had promised to write a play, and who was pressing me on the subject. During the first week you kept away. We had, not unnaturally, indeed, differed on the question of the artistic value of your translation of 'Salome.' So you contented yourself with sending me foolish letters on the subject.

"In that week I wrote, complete in every detail as it was ultimately performed, the first act of 'An Ideal Husband.'

"The second week you returned, and my work practically had to be given up. I arrived at St. James' place every morning at 11:30, in order to have the opportunity of thinking and writing without the interruption inseparable from my own household, quiet and peaceful as that household was. But the attempt was vain.

"At 12 oclock you drove up, stayed smoking cigarettes and chattering till 1:30, when I had to take you out to luncheon at the Cafe Royal or the Berkeley. Lunch, with its liqueurs, lasted usually till 3:30. For an hour you retired to White's. At tea time you appeared again, and stayed until it was time to dress for dinner. You dined with me either at the Savoy or at Tite street. We did not separate, as a rule, until after midnight, as supper at Willis' had to wind up the entrancing day.

"That was my life for those three months, every single day, except during the four days when you went abroad. I then, of course, had to go over to Calais to fetch you back. For one of my nature and temperament it was a position at once grotesque and tragic. You surely must realize that now. * * *

"While you were with me you were the absolute ruin of my art, and in allowing you to stand persistently between my art and myself I gave to myself shame and blame in the fullest degree. You could not know, you could not understand, you could not appreciate.

"Your interests were merely in your meals and moods. Your desires were merely for amusement, for ordinary, or less ordinary pleasures. They were

If it prove so, read the letter over and over again, until it kills your vanity. If there be in it any single passage that brings tears to your eyes, weep as we weep in prison, where the day no less than the night is set apart for tears.

"It is the only thing that can save you. * * * You must read this letter right through, though each word may come to you as fire, or knife of surgeon, that makes delicate flesh burn or bleed.

"* * * The real fool, such as the gods make or mar, is he who does not know himself. I was such a one too long. You have been such a one too long. Be so no more. Do not be afraid. The supreme vice is shallowness. Everything that is realized is right.

"To you the unseen powers have been very good. They have permitted you to see strange and dreadful shapes of life as one sees shadows in a crystal. The head of Medusa, that turns living men to stone, you have been allowed to look on in a mirror merely. You yourself have walked free among the flowers. From me the beautiful world of color and motion has been taken away.

Gap Between Us Too Wide.

"I will begin by telling you I blame myself terribly, as I sit in this cell in convict clothes, a disgraced and ruined man. In the tortured and fitful nights of anguish, in the long monotonous days of pain, it is myself I blame. I blame myself for allowing an unintellectual friendship, and a friendship whose primary aim was not the creation and contemplation of beautiful things, to entirely dominate my life.

"From the very first there was too wide a gap between us. You had been idle at your school; worse than idle at your university. You did not realize that an artist, and especially such an artist as I am—one that is, to say, the quality of whose work depends on the intensification of personality—requires an intellectual atmosphere, quiet, peace and solitude.

"You admired my work when it was finished. You enjoyed the brilliant success of my first nights, and the brilliant banquets that followed them. You were proud and quite naturally so, of being the intimate friend of an artist so distinguished, but you could not understand the conditions required for the production of artistic work.

"I am not speaking in phrases of rhetorical exaggeration, but in terms of absolute truth to actual fact, when I remind you that during the whole time when we were together I never wrote one single line. Whether at Torquay, Goring, London, Florence or elsewhere, my life, as long as you were by my side, was entirely sterile and uncreative. And with but a few intervals you were, I regret to say, by my side always.

Lord Alfred's Baleful Influence.

"I remember, for instance, in September, 1893, to select merely one instance out of many, taking a set of chambers [illegible] in order to work undisturbed, as I had broken my contract with John Hare, for whom I had promised to write a play, and who was pressing me on the subject. During the first week you kept away. We had, not unnaturally, indeed, differed on the question of the artistic value of your translation of 'Salome.' So you contented yourself with sending me foolish letters on the subject.

"In that week I wrote, complete in every detail as it was ultimately performed, the first act of 'An Ideal Husband.'

"The second week you returned, and my work practically had to be given up. I arrived at St. James' place every morning at 11:30, in order to have the opportunity of thinking and writing without the interruption inseparable from my own household, quiet and peaceful as that household was. But the attempt was vain.

"At 12 oclock you drove up, stayed smoking cigarettes and chattering till 1:30, when I had to take you out to luncheon at the Cafe Royal or the Berkeley. Lunch, with its liqueurs, lasted usually till 3:30. For an hour you retired to White's. At tea time you appeared again, and stayed until it was time to dress for dinner. You dined with me either at the Savoy or at Tite street. We did not separate, as a rule, until after midnight, as supper at Willis' had to wind up the entrancing day.

"That was my life for those three months, every single day, except during the four days when you went abroad. I then, of course, had to go over to Calais to fetch you back. For one of my nature and temperament it was a position at once grotesque and tragic. You surely must realize that now. * * *

"While you were with me you were the absolute ruin of my art, and in allowing you to stand persistently between my art and myself I gave to myself shame and blame in the fullest degree. You could not know, you could not understand, you could not appreciate.

"Your interests were merely in your meals and moods. Your desires were merely for amusement, for ordinary, or less ordinary pleasures. They were

A WORKINGMAN BURDENED WITH A TRUSS.

MY WRITTEN GUARANTEE

YOU DON'T PAY IF I DON'T CURE

My treatment is a mild one, administered without the use of chloroform, ether or any other general anaesthetic. It does not compel the patient to go to any hospital or be confined to bed. The cure is a permanent one, and I protect my patients all their lives against a return of the trouble by a certificate issued after the cure is effected. This certificate provides that in the event the patient ever has any further trouble I will cure him free of charge. I examine every one free, state in the beginning what the cost of treatment will be, together with the length of time required, and no afflicted person is under obligation to remain for treatment if all these facts do not meet with his or her approval.

MEN AND WOMEN

You have only one life to live. Why not live it in full enjoyment of vitality? To gain a cure is more important than all earthly considerations. It means freedom from anxiety and suffering. It means happy contentment for you for those dependent upon you. It means new vitality and restoration of perfect health. It means a stronger hold upon life; a broader field of opportunity.

SOME DONT'S

For Stomach and Liver Sufferers

Don't take medicine for your Stomach ailments morning, noon and night, as usually such medicines only give temporary relief and simply digest the food that happens to be in the Stomach.

Don't permit a surgical operation. There is always serious danger in operations, and in almost every case of Stomach, Liver, Intestinal Ailments, Appendicitis and Gall Stones, the knife can be avoided if the right remedy is taken in time.

Don't go around with a foul smelling breath caused by a disordered Stomach and Liver, to the discomfort of those you come in contact with.

Don't think you cannot be cured of your Stomach trouble; worse cases than yours have been cured by Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy.

Most stomach ailments are mainly caused by a catarrhal condition. Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy not only removes the catarrhal mucous, but allays the chronic inflammation and assists in rendering the entire alimentary and intestinal tract antiseptic, and this is the secret of its marvelous success.

Don't suffer constant pain and agony and allow your stomach ailments to physically undermine your health. No matter how severe your case may be or how long you have suffered—one dose of Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy should convince you of a cure. This remedy has been taken and is highly recommended by Members of Congress, Justice of the Supreme Court, Educators, Lawyers, Merchants, Bankers, Doctors, Druggists, Nurses, Manufacturers, Priests, Ministers, Farmers and people in all walks of life.

what your temperament needed, or thought it needed for the moment. One half hour with art was always more to me than a cycle with you.

"I blame myself for having allowed you to bring me to utter and discreditable financial ruin. When I tell you that between the autumn of 1892 and the day of my imprisonment I spent with you, and on you, more than $25,000 in actual money, irrespective of a balance I incurred, you will have some idea of the sort of life on which you insisted.

"I frankly admit that the folly of throwing away this money on you, and letting you squander my fortune to your own hurt and to mine, gives to me, and in my eyes, a note of common profligacy to my bankruptcy that makes me doubly ashamed of it. I was made for other things.

"But most of all I blame myself for the entire ethical degradation I allowed you to bring on me. The basis of character is will power, and my will power became absolutely subject to yours. It sounds a grotesque thing to say, but it is none the less true. * * *

"As far as I can make out, I ended my friendship with you every three months regularly, and each time I did so you managed, by means of entreaties, telegrams and letters, the interposition of friends, to induce me to allow you back.

"I have given you my life, and to gratify the lowest and most contemptible of all human passions—hatred and vanity and greed. In less than three years you had entirely ruined me from every point of view.

"Suffering, curious as it may sound to you, is the means by which we exist, because it is the only means by which we become conscious of existing, and the remembrance of suffering in the past is necessary to us as the warrant, the evidence of our continued identity.

"A Real Symphony of Sorrow."

"Between myself and the memory of joy lies a great gulf, no less deep than lies between myself and joy in its actuality. Had our life been as the world fancies it to be—one simply of pleasure, profligacies, and laughter—I would not be able to recall a single passage in it. It is because it was full of moments and days of tragic, bitter, sinister in their warnings, dull or trivial in their monotonous scenes of unseemly violences, that I can see and hear each separate incident in its detail, can indeed see and hear little else.

"So much in this place do men live by pain that my friendship with you, in the way in which I am forced to remember it, appears to me always as a prelude consonant with those following moods of anguish which each day I have to realize; nay, more, to necessitate them even, as though my life, whatever it had seemed to myself and to others, had all the while been a real Symphony of Sorrow, passing through its rhythmical movements to its certain resolution with that inevitableness that in art characterizes the treatment of every great theme. * * *

"Of course, I discerned in our relations not Destiny merely, but Doom—Doom that walks always swiftly because she goes to the shedding of blood. Through your father you come of a race marriage with whom is horrible, friendship is fatal.

"In every little circumstance in which the ways of our lives met, in every point of great or seemingly trivial import in which you came to me for pleasure, for help, in the slight accidents that look in their relation to be no more than the dust that dances in the beam, or the leaf that flutters from the tree, ruin followed like the echo of a bitter cry, or the shadow that hunts with the beast of prey.

"The memory of your friendship is the shadow that walks with me here; that seems never to leave me; that wakes me up at night to tell me the same story over and over till its wearisome iteration makes all sleep abandon me till dawn; at dawn it begins again; it follows me into the prison yard and makes me talk to myself as I tramp round.

"The gods are strange. It is not our vices only that make instruments to scourge us. They bring us to ruin through what in us is good, gentle, humane, loving. But for my pity and affection for you and yours, I would not now be weeping in this terrible place.

"There is, I know, one answer to all I have said to you, and that is that you loved me, that all through these two and a half years, during which the fates were weaving into one scarlet pattern the threads of our divided lives, you really loved me.

"But you, like myself, have had a terrible tragedy in your life, though one of an entirely opposite character to mine. Do you want to learn what it was? It was this: In you Hate was always stronger than Love. * * *

"Love is fed by imagination, by which we become wiser than we know, better than we feel, nobler than we are; by which we can see life as a whole; by which, and by which alone, we can understand others in their real as in their ideal relations. Only what is fine and finely conceived can feed Love.

"But anything will feed Hate. There was not a glass of champagne that you drank, not a rich dish you ate in all these years that did not feed your Hate and make it fat.

"So, to gratify it, you gambled with my life as you gambled with my money, carelessly, recklessly indifferent to the consequences. If you lost, the loss would not, you fancied, be yours; if you won, yours, you knew, would be the exultation and the advantages of victory.

"Sorrow and Its Beauty."

"Hate blinds people. You were not aware of that. Love can read the writing on the remotest star, but Hate so blinded you that you could see no further than the narrowed, walled-in and already withered garden of your common desires.

"Your terrible lack of imagination, the one fatal defect of your character, was entirely the result of the Hate that lived in you. Subtly, silently, and in secret, Hate gnawed at your nature as lichen bites at the root of some sallow plant, till you grew to see nothing but the most meager interests and the most petty aims. That faculty in you which Love would have fostered, Hate poisoned and paralyzed.

"Your [illegible] face used to flush easily with [illegible] or pleasure. If, as you read what is here written, it from time to time becomes scorched, as though by a furnace blast, with shame, it will be better for you. The supreme vice is shallowness. Whatever is realized is right. * * *

"You came to me to learn the Pleasure of Life, and the Pleasure of Art. Perhaps I am chosen to teach you something more wonderful; the meaning of Sorrow and its beauty. Your affectionate friend, OSCAR WILDE."

If You Stay BOSSED You'll Be LOST

WALT C. CUNNINGHAM
America's Mail Order Wizard
President of the Mail Order School

IN 18 MONTHS I TOOK IN $650,000.00 IN THE MAIL ORDER BUSINESS, STARTING WITH ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS. NOW HAVE ENORMOUS ENTERPRISES, OVER 400,000 CUSTOMERS, AND AM KNOWN EVERYWHERE AS THE MAIL ORDER WIZARD OF AMERICA.

IF YOU WORK OVER A SET OF BOOKS, OR BEHIND THE COUNTER, OR OVER A TYPEWRITER, OR BEHIND A TEAM, OR BESIDE A BARBER CHAIR, OR ON A STREET CAR, OR IN A BOILER FACTORY, OR WHEREVER YOU WORK, I CAN SHOW YOU THE REAL, RAPID, RELIABLE ROUTE TO SOMETHING A THOUSAND TIMES BETTER! I SHOW YOU HOW TO MAKE MONEY IN A BUSINESS OF YOUR OWN.

You, who read this, no matter who you are, or what you are doing, no matter how low your salary, or how poor your prospects; no matter how discontented, discouraged you are; no matter how incapable of achievement your friends or your family may think you are—you can at once become the partner of The Mail Order Wizard of America—you can begin, for the first time in your life, perhaps, to see the money roll in to you at every visit of the postman, without grinding out your heart and soul and body for every dollar of it.

I, Walt C. Cunningham, right now offer you the money-making chance of your life, without asking you to mortgage your life to me, without driving a grim, cold-blooded, Shylock's bargain with you. I started perhaps with a whole lot more than you will start with—I started with $100, and received $650,000 in eighteen months in the mail order business. I WILL QUICKLY TEACH YOU THE REAL SECRET OF MAKING MONEY FAST—AND MAKING IT CLEANLY, LEGITIMATELY, HONESTLY, SO THAT YOU CAN LOOK THE WHOLE WORLD IN THE FACE AND DEFY IT TO SAY THAT YOU NEVER ASKED YOUR DOLLARS WHERE THEY CAME FROM. I've a book you must get by return mail and read at once. It is called "How to Achieve Mail Order Success," and I'll make you a present of it. Read it over and get it soaked into your system from head to heel, and get full of new hope, fire, ambition and burning determination to begin the fight in a brand-new way, and under the guidance of one who has fought the same fight and won it hands down. I'll take right hold of you and show you the way from beginning to end, and work with you, for you, help you, advise you—supply you with Money-Multiplying Ideas, Suggestions you can Quickly Coin into Cash, Methods you can Mould into Greenbacks, Swiftly-Successful, Sure-Selling Plans, Persuasive Literature, Cash-Getting and Inexpensive Circulars, which will sell the goods I tell you to offer.

This broad-gauged, generous education I am offering you, covering the Entire Field of Newest Proven Ideas and Well-Tried Principles of Mail Order Money-Making, is open to every man and woman who has the blessed ambition to step up out of the wage-weary crowd. They are so complete, my wonderful plans in long-distance merchandising, that they guide you into Profit-Creating Avenues and Cash-Producing By-Ways. I GUARANTEE, PLEDGE AND ABSOLUTELY ASSURE EVERY MAN OR WOMAN THAT HE OR SHE CAN TAKE HOLD OF THIS BUSINESS AT ONCE, FOLLOW ITS SIMPLE, SURE AND SAFE DIRECTIONS AND BEGIN IMMEDIATELY TO MAKE MONEY FAST. You can start right out from the day you get this wonderful series of success plans.

IF YOU ARE MAKING $600, OR $900, OR $1200, OR $2400 A YEAR, AND REALLY WANT TO MAKE $4000 TO $40,000 A YEAR, I CAN SHOW YOU HOW.

If you will write me, as suggested above, in answer to this advertisement this very day, I positively can and will equip you with twenty complete, combined, ready-to-start, live, lucrative mail order businesses, which you can begin operating right in the privacy of your own home without an office or any outlay for office equipment.

I CAN SET YOU FREE! I can deliver you from the grim grind! I can liberate you from the treadmill of the time-clock! I can tear the well-worn shackles of wage-slavery from your hands and feet! I can lift the thorns of boss-brow-beating from your forehead! I can do these things, brothers and sisters, because I was fixed just exactly as you are when I went into this business and made all of this money. I had the same miserable doubts and mongrel fears—I, too, was once handcuffed to a job and gagged and speechless with boss-fright; ever-cowed, ever-cringing, ever-afraid of getting fired! Those were the things I decided I would be forever free from, and so I am! And so you, too, can be if you will make up your minds to believe in me and write to me before this day's sun falls behind the horizon.

I will say no more—the opportunity is here, with its arms outstretched; today, right now, Dame Fortune raps on your door, and this message of mine to tell you about it has cost me thousands of dollars to send—it is flashed today across the country to all the ambitious men and women of America in all the walks of life—there is oceans of room for all of you in this business!

BELLS ON POISON BOTTLES TO WARN HOSPITAL NURSES

The tinkle of little bells yesterday at the city hospital warned the nurses and attendants when they handled poisonous drugs. The merry concert resulted from a plan originated by Dr. Wayne Smith, the superintendent, to prevent poisons being given to patients by mistake.

The bells are tied to the necks of all bottles containing poisons. Every time a nurse picks up a bottle of carbolic acid the bell tinkles a warning.

"There is some chance of misreading labels on bottles," Dr. Smith told a Post-Dispatch reporter, "but there is no excuse for mistaking poison for harmless medicine when the little bells ring."

The order installing the bell system followed the indictment by the grand jury of Thomas Adams, an attendant at the city sanitarium, for giving a patient carbolic acid by mistake. The patient died and Adams was indicted on a charge of manslaughter in the fourth degree.

PUP'S DEFENDERS ON A STREET CAR SAVED FROM FINE

By the decision of Judge Kimmel in the First District Police Court, yesterday, Robert Prout, 22, of 5001 Kensington avenue, and Walter Thomas, 23, of 4143 Westminster place, had a right to fight to prevent the conductor from throwing their bull pup from a street car. The youths were acquitted on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Prout and Thomas got on an Olive-Delmar car May 2. Prout carried a bull pup in his arms. They dropped their fare in the box and stood on the rear platform, the evidence showed.

T. J. Pyatt, the conductor of the car, asked them if they had a permit to carry the dog on a street car. When he was told they had no permit he told them they would have to get off.

The young men refused to get off unless the conductor returned their fare. Pyatt refused to give back their money and tried to take the pup from Prout and throw it from the car, the testimony showed. This resulted in a fight, in which Prout and Thomas handled the conductor roughly.

Judge Kimmel, in discharging the youths, declared that the conductor had no right to try to throw the dog from the car, or to put the men off unless he either gave back their fare or furnished a ticket or evidence that they had paid their fare, so that they could collect it from the company.

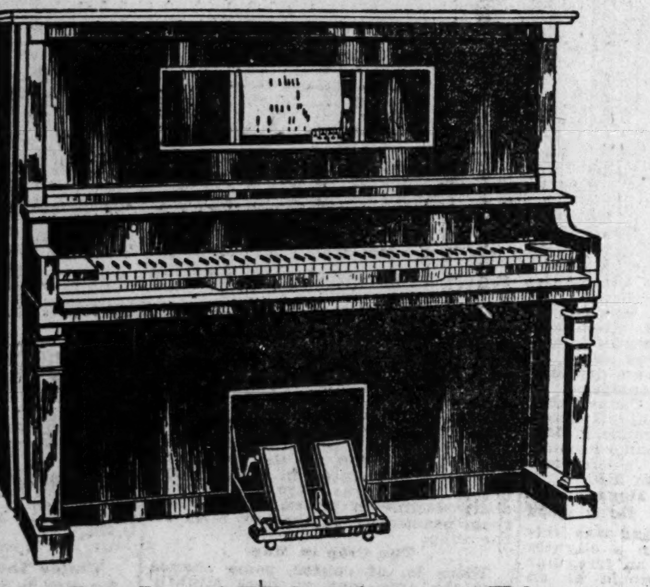
WURLITZER

St. Louis' Only One-Price-No-Commission Piano House

The World's Largest General Music House; 57th Year

Every Home in St. Louis Needs This Player-Piano



This Is the $550 Player-Piano

Club Price $425 Club Terms $10 Cash $2.50 Weekly

The Player-Piano is a standard 88-note instrument of the most modern type, playing all 88 of the piano's keys and using standard 88-note music rolls of any and all makes. The piano is the latest product of the Wurlitzer factories and is finely constructed throughout of the very best materials. The tone is of pure musical quality, clear and singing, and will continue so, as the durability of the instrument is positively assured by the Wurlitzer guarantee that goes with every instrument and makes the buyer perfectly safe. The player action is the best known and most popular made.

The instrument can be played with perfect effect in three different ways—(1) with regular paper music roll, the operator giving his or her own interpretation by means of the expression devices; (2) with hand-played music rolls, that is, fac-simile records of an artist's actual hand playing, which exactly reproduce the artist's performance; (3) by hand, as a regular piano.

A ten-year guarantee with each instrument.

A library of music rolls is included without extra charge, also a handsome bench to match the instrument, and latest style piano scarf.

Choice is offered of mahogany, oak and walnut case.

Yes, for every home needs the cheering, uplifting influence of music. Life would be very incomplete, indeed, without it. Thanks to the invention of the player-piano the home is not to be deprived of the blessing of piano music merely because there happens to be no musicians in the family. Thanks to the WURLITZER CLUB five hundred persons uniting in one gigantic puchase deal will secure strictly high-grade Player-Pianos and Pianos at greatly reduced prices. They will also secure other special advantages which are mentioned below.

The Wurlitzer Club of Pianos and Player-Pianos has as its fixed purpose to impress upon every person in St. Louis and vicinity the fact that the Wurlitzer store is the best place to come for a Piano or Player-Piano.

Therefore we have organized an association of 500 Piano buyers, who, acting in a body as one individual, take 500 Pianos and Player-Pianos. Each buyer secures the benefit of the wholesale transaction in the shape of a lower price, easier terms, free insurance of the Piano and a number of other special features which we will explain.

The Wurlitzer Company is the foremost exponent of one-price-no-commission Piano selling in America. We pay no commissions to any outsider, but mark all Piano prices in plain figures—the lowest cash price—which is absolutely uniform and the same to every buyer. Since we do not pay commissions, we save Piano buyers the large sums which commission stores allow and add to the prices of their instruments. Wurlitzer's is the only one-price-no-commission Piano house in St. Louis. Furthermore, we are manufacturers and sell direct.

The value of the Upright Piano in this transaction is $350. That is, $350 under the Wurlitzer one-price-no-commission plan of valuation. This means $400 to $450 in the commission-paying store.

The value of the Player-Piano in this transaction is $550. And this means $600 to $700 in the commission-paying store. The value of the Baby Grand Piano is $600, so that the saving through the Wurlitzer Club is much larger than $95 on the Upright Piano and $125 on the Player-Piano and $115 on the Baby Grand Piano, judged by valuations in commission-paying stores.

1. The club is composed of 500 members.
2. The value of the Player-Piano is $550. The price to Wurlitzer club members $425, and the terms are $10 cash when you join and then $2.50 a week.
3. The value of the Upright Piano is $350. The price to Wurlitzer club members is $255, and the terms are $5 cash when you join and then $1.50 a week.
4. The value of the Baby Grand Piano is $600. The price to Wurlitzer club members is $485 and the terms are $10 cash when you join and then $2.75 a week.
5. The instrument is delivered when you join or later, as you prefer.
6. The weekly payments start when your instrument is delivered.
7. Every instrument is guaranteed without reserve for ten (10) years—a guarantee in writing as strong as we know how to make it.
8. If, after 30 days' trial, the instrument is not satisfactory, we will give you your money back without question.
9. If the instrument IS SATISFACTORY after 30 days' use, the WURLITZER club member HAS ELEVEN MORE MONTHS in which to test its quality. If it does not prove to be everything that you expect, you have the privilege of exchanging it without ONE PENNY'S LOSS for any other instrument of equal or greater value that we sell.
10. IF A CLUB MEMBER DIES DURING THE LIFE OF HIS CONTRACT, THE RUDOLPH WURLITZER CO. will immediately send a receipt in full to his family for the instrument.
11. A beautiful stool and scarf are included with the Upright Piano. A bench, scarf and library of music rolls with the Player-Piano and a bench and scarf with the Baby Grand Piano.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

PRICE MOVEMENTS ON THE STOCK EXCHANGE KEEP THE BULLS AND BEARS GUESSING

Uncertain Political and Business Outlook Are Disturbing Market Factors.

LONDON TRADING QUIET

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The Evening Post, in its weekly financial review, says:

"From one point of view, the present position of affairs in American finance in general and on the Stock Exchange in particular, might be described as a blockade of the machinery.

"There are many and conflicting influences at work on the situation; but, the rather general consensus of opinion is that the combination would operate normally in the direction of better things and higher prices, but for the fact that the facilities for putting prices up are not freely available.

"Such lack of facilities might refer to the general public's refusal to buy securities on the usual scale at a given time. It might refer to the fact that banking institutions were already so well "loaned up" that people with plans of aggressive business expansion in their minds were obliged to go slow in borrowing operations, even where circumstances of their trade would fully warrant the new outlay of capital.

The Past History.

"In either case, such conditions in the market for capital would constitute in itself a phenomenon of large importance, the explanation of which would go far towards clearing up the financial and industrial situation generally.

"In years like 1910 and 1906 and 1903, when somewhat similar conditions prevailed, the explanation was not difficult to find; it was found in the extravagant overdoing of a financial and industrial "boom," particularly in the United States.

"It is precisely because that familiar explanation does not fit our present case at all, that the existing situation so greatly puzzles the most experienced observers.

"It is because it does fit Europe's case—especially when a period of prolonged expansion has coincided with such fear of war, as has caused an almost unprecedented lock-up of cash and capital owned by private European citizens—that the general drift of opinion in America has been that the embarrassments of our own situation are directly caused by the state of affairs in Europe and not by those at home.

Market a Puzzle.

"This view of the matter is not at all novel; it has been present in the market's mind ever since the tension on the European money markets began last October and November. But it is constantly being strengthened by new incidents, of which this week's heavy movement of gold from New York to Paris, in the face of foreign exchange rates actually favorable to our own market, is not the least important.

"That movement, occurring at a time when gold could not normally be expelled from the United States, either because of redundant currency, or because of business stagnation, or because of an adverse balance of foreign trade in merchandise, only serves to illustrate again the fact on which European economic critics had for months been laying stress—that this has been a time in which the New York market was in the strongest position of any market of the world, and in which it was therefore called upon to help out hard-pressed financial Europe.

The Money Market.

"But it is not always either comfortable or convenient to be required to give up money resources which we could use at home, in order to get other money markets out of their present scrape, and the result in such cases is apt to be that the stronger amrket is pulled down in proportion as the weaker market is raised up.

"It also usually follows that any unpleasant event, probably is regarded, under those conditions, with more attention than the agreeable incidents of the day.

"That explains, for instance, why the tariff bill and its possible consequences, have been discussed of late in Wall street, as the encouraging progress of the crops has not.

"It is not unnatural that, at the present juncture, the tariff should hold the center of the stage. Whatever anyone's economic views may be, the reduction in the duties is necessarily an experiment, the delay in deciding finally just what the new rates are to be, is necessarily disconcerting to business plans.

The Tariff Question.

"Not least of all, our people, who are subject to financial and business traditions as few other communities are, cannot be wholly blamed for thinking occasionally of the revision of 1894. Yet when this is said, the simplest and least experienced observer cannot have failed to notice that the underlying situation, as the trades confront the new tariff regulations, is altogether different and vastly more propitious for the experiment than at any other corresponding period in the life of the present generation.

"There will be inconvenience and difficulties. Some industries will probably have to change their general methods.

It is not impossible that a few lines of trade will be curtailed if not abandoned. But that this will occur on any really extensive scale is a probability by no means uppermost in the mind neither of home producers or of their foreign competitors.

Mr. Underwood's veiled threat, to look into concerns which shut down needlessly, was in some ways a trifle absurd, but it was also probably superfluous.

"Manufacturers might conceivably go out of business purely because of irritation that the tariff had been reduced. If so, they would present some analogy with the legendary rich man, who gave away all his property because of the pressure of the income tax.

The Future Outlook.

"Whether the financial community has ahead of it also a congressional season of extravagant agitation, eccentric legislative proposals, and excited oratory is a question somewhat more undetermined than one might have supposed a little while ago, that it would be at this time.

"The legislative sessions in the states have certainly suggested the presence of influences making for such commotion at the national capital, and yet the course of events to date has seemed to show that the unruly elements at Washington have been surprisingly well in hand.

"It is an interesting experiment, under highly interesting general circumstances.

"The course of political agitation has been known to take sudden and unexpected turns, on past occasions of the sort, and sometimes the surprise consisted in a quite unpredicted return to everyday common sense.

[illegible] the explosive fancies of excitable public men, have had for a year the kind of vent which often relieves the pressure.

"The statesmen, who, in the paraphrase of an ingenious wit, stand at Armageddon and battle for the Lord knows what, will sometimes take a rest from their own sheer exhaustion, or the exhaustion of their audiences.

"But, of course, all that remains for the not very distant future to determine.

"The market closed the week with irregular losses from the preceding Saturday. The final session was quiet and professional."

FOREIGN TRADE NEEDS EASIER MONEY RATES

Speculation Is Held in Check by Constant Flotation of New Securities.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, May 10.—Conditions at the moment, in all great financial centers of the world, show remarkable similarity. London and the continent, equally with New York, are finding it difficult to read the immediate outlook; the reason in the case of each market being that conflicting influences, making for recovery or relapse, are so evenly balanced.

The one great factory making for betterment here, is the approach of peace, with probable growing improvement of international relations generally, with consequent release of the continent's hoarded money, and with gradual return of confidence.

The adverse influences include the still overstrained position of many great continental money markets, the huge impending loans and the other numerous demands on capital.

The Money Market.

These latter considerations fully explain the slowness of open market discount rates on the continent to fall—especially at Paris. Moreover, the after financing of the war, through flotation of Turkish, Balkan, Austrian and Italian loans, is complicated by the unfavorable conditions in France.

The forthcoming French budget of public expenditure is likely to show a total deficit of 600,000,000 francs, while short-term Treasury bills, amounting to 165,000,000 francs, will shortly reach maturity. Hence a large Government loan is inevitable, especially in view of the projected army increase, and the Bank of France will probably use every effort to attract more gold.

London Money Easy.

London is likely to remain the easiest money market; but, having regard to conditions elsewhere, we are compelled to maintain rates to protect our gold supplies. Therefore, the chances of a 4 per cent Bank of England rate, during the present month, stand about even.

If the rate is reduced to that level, it will go no lower during the rest of the year.

Our stock markets will possibly improve during the next two months, before the summer vacation, but hardly more than moderately, because of the impending capital issues.

If a satisfactory solution of the Harriman railway entanglement is effected, a moderate rise in the American market also is anticipated. But nothing is expected pending the settlement of that problem.

COTTON IS MORE ACTIVE DESPITE TARIFF BUGABOO

Business Scares Put Out by Anti-Reductionists Fails to Stop Business.

The cotton market is beginning to show a little more life. Activity is cumulative and new friends and supporters are always found for a market that shows an inclination to advance. Nothing has been more against the market than the continued droning about hard times to come and from nowhere has more of this come than from New York, which seems to be the news bureau of "anti-tariff legislation."

The closing of the Fall-River mills controlled by the Bordens was announced with some flourish by bear interests as indicative of the effect of tariff reduction. The edge of this news was taken off by an explanation that the stoppage was for the purpose of installing new machinery, as is being done by other New England mills.

Undoubtedly tariff legislation is affecting trade but only so far as to make mills a little slow about buying pending the time when actual results may be seen. In the meantime this holding off causes an inroad on their reserve stocks and will bring about more active buying later on.

Apparently, consumption is ahead of production of cotton and as long as this is so, the demand for cotton from some quarter of the world will continue uninterrupted. This is not an attempt to forecast prices.

Weather Biggest Factor.

Just now the weather is the most important factor in the making of prices. In about 10 weeks cotton will begin to move in South Texas, provided the crop progresses normally. In most of the cotton belt, including Texas, temperatures at night have been too low. In Alabama and parts of Georgia considerable replanting has been necessary on account of chilled seed—and some complaints of lack of showers has been heard, to the extent, it is said, of causing the death of the young cotton.

Generally, however, the damage has not been serious but rather more of a delay. Showers have occurred in sections in Alabama and the Atlantics, where they were needed, and an improvement should follow. General opinion is that the acreage as a whole will be slightly more than last year, some 4 per cent subject to corrections on account of replanting, etc.

Dry goods trade is quiet in the primary markets and there is some difference in ideas between buyers and sellers as to price. The closing of the mills for one reason or another would rather create a scarcity of goods and a consequent hardening of prices. Export trade is very slow. Nothing is heard from China or India except that from the latter market comes an occasional feeler under the market.

The political situation in Europe, as far as trade is concerned, has improved with the evacuation of Scutari and a better demand from the south of Europe should help the cotton market.

Stocks of Cotton.

The world's visible supply of American cotton May 2 was 3,201,070 bales, against 3,729,221 last year at the same date; at the same time the Great Britain stock was 1,028,000, against 1,066,000, and Continental stock was 891,000, against 1,066,000; stock afloat, 273,091, against 396,679; total of American stocks in Europe and afloat for Europe are 589,588 bales, less than at the same time last year; stock in United States was about 58,000 bales less than last year; the into-sight movement is running about 2,000,000 bales less than last season; there are a little more than 1,500,000 bales yet to come forward.

Spot markets are generally quiet but steady, with prices quoted slightly above those ruling last week. Sales have been fairly satisfactory and the demand improving. The demand, however, seems to run on white cotton, and tinges and stains are slow to move and prices purely nominal. Quotations in the principal markets of this country are as follows:

Galveston, market quiet, middling 12 3-16c; New Orleans quiet, middling 12 3-16c; Mobile steady, 11¾c; Savannah steady, 11⅞c; Houston steady, 12c; Memphis quiet, 12¼c; St. Louis quiet, 12¼c; Augusta steady, 12c.

LOSS CANCELS EARLY GAIN IN CATTLE PRICES

Generous Receipts of Beef Making Stock Overcomes Sharp Early Week Demand.

Receipts National Stock Yards.

	This Week.	Last Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle	11,550	9,565	11,141
Hogs	42,500	46,736	28,910
Sheep	22,000	12,820	19,020
Horses and mules	2,500	2,319	2,301

Receipts of cattle the past week were more generous than has been the rule. Beef steers were in tolerable abundance at each session and the opening was inaugurated on a good strong basis. The previous week packers fought shy of the heavier beeves, but last week, right from the start, they were seemingly after both the lights and heavies. The market opened on an active basis, with values ranging from strong to a good dime higher, and this condition prevailed at Tuesday's session. Wednesday, however, in the face of a generous offering, slowness developed and prices realized were weak to 10c lower. Prime steers were not by any means a feature and top for the week was made at $8.50. Best kinds sold from $8@8.45.

The supply of butcher cattle was good at all times, although anything but a lively trade predominated. Cows suffered the worst and exceedingly dull trade characterized the market on these kinds. Extreme choice kinds sold about steady, but the bulk changed hands a shade lower. The offering of choice heifers was small, $8.35 being the top for the week on the medium to good grades. These kinds encountered a break at the midweek session and sold a good 10@15c lower than the first of the week.

Vealers topped for the week at $10.50, a range of $10@10.25 moved the best and a steady market cleared the supply each day.

Southern Receipts Larger.

Southern shippers consigned more freely the past week than the corresponding period a week ago. As usual, the bulk of quarantine receipts comprised Texas steers. Mississippi, Louisiana and Alabama also contributed their miscellaneous assortment of canners, cutters and a few good butcher cattle.

The Southern market was fairly active each day and up till Wednesday steady values prevailed. Top for the week was made on a string of white face Texas steers, which on Wednesday sold for $7.75. Balance of sales of Texans ranged from $7.30@7.65. Monday an 11-car string of light weight steers sold for $6.50. About the only break in the steady basis of values was noted on Wednesday, when steers were quotably steady to 10c lower as compared to the forepart of the week. Canners and cutters sold fully steady at all times, the former clearing in a range of $3.50@4.25, while the latter changed hands in a spread of $4.50@5.25. Vealers from Mississippi sold as high as $8.50.

Little Change in Hogs.

Receipts of hogs were fairly good and as the shipping demand was limited, the market was on a slightly lower basis, but it was an irregular trade. One day there would be an advance and the next day a decline which about offset it, so at the close prices were not far from the same basis as at the close of the previous week. A good many Southern hogs were on sale and they found a dull trade.

The top ranged between $8.45@8.65 all week so that there was a range of but 20c. The bulk of the hogs went at $8.35@8.50, but towards the latter part of the week a good many hogs sold at $8.25@8.40. Southern hogs with weight to them went at $7.75@8 as a rule, but they were slow sale as most buyers did not want them at any price. Packers hammered the market whenever they had a chance and secured a good many hogs at $8.15@8.35 that were good mixed hogs ranging from 180 lbs. up.

Lights and pigs weighing less than 165 lbs. suffered about the same as the heavier weights. Best grade of lights sold at $8.25@8.50, fair to medium offerings $7.75@8.15, best quality pigs under 125 lbs. $8@8.25, medium kinds $7.35@7.85, fair offerings $6.50@7.25, and the rough throwout heavy hogs $7.65@8.

Sheep and Lambs Irregular.

There was a fair supply of sheep and lambs received during the week and prices sagged slightly, but there was no material breaks and the close shows but a slight change. A good sized sprinkling of spring lambs was received, but as a rule they were not very good and why shippers will continue to send to market, year after year, common to medium grade immature spring lambs is more than can be understood.

The good fat spring lambs weighing 40 lbs. and over went at $9.50@11, while the common to medium offerings old at $5.50@8. Clipped mutton lambs sold at $7.35@7.65 if good, and others $6.75@7.25. Some wool lambs brought $8@8.40, but only a few were offered and all lambs should now be clipped before sending to market.

As a rule the sheep sold at $6.25@6.50, but the latter part of the week some of those offered that were not very good sold at $6@6.20. Sheep that were not fat sold as stockers at $3.75@5, while the common old cull ewes went at $2@3.50. Bucks sold largely at $5 with a few up to $5.25.

Horses and Mules Strong.

The run of horses last week was very light. The quality was the best of this year and prices ranged a little higher. A goodly number of buyers were present all week from all sections of the country.

The Eastern buyers attended the ring sessions from day to day in good numbers and on every occasion they showed spirited bidding when horses suitable to this class were put before them. The Southern trade took a brace, having a very good attendance at every auction of bidders, who were not a bit slow in taking hold.

The mule trade was on about a steady basis. Very little difference could be seen in the supply or the trade. The demand still calls for big mules and miners, and if good mules can be bought in the country at fair prices it would be advisable to get hold of them, as they are selling on good sound basis.

Bulls in wheat gave up all hope of high prices for the May option the past week, when the Government report was issued. Previous to that day there had been eleventh-hour wishes that a crop scare might develop and pave the way for a run-in of big shorts. These desires went glimmering when the official forecast was announced.

The figures of the Government forecasted a crop of 513,571,000 bu., against 399,919,000 bu. last year, 430,656,000 bu. in 1911, and 434,142,000 bu. in 1910, and 417,780,000 bu. in 1909, indicating a record-breaking yield on an acreage of 30,938,000 acres, and an abandoned acreage of only 1,449,000 acres, against 26,571,000 acres last year.

In the face of these highly favorable figures, since the report was made up, the Central West and Southwest have had needed moisture over a wide area, so that if anything the crop has gone forward instead of backward since May 1.

The report left not a leg for the bulls to stand on, but prices held well on its publication, as the conditions had been discounted in the 10 days before the figures were issued by a sharp decline in prices, that carried them practically to the low level on the crop.

The Crop in May.

There is, of course, some chance that the crop may go back slightly from the present favorable condition, as bug damage, dry weather or wet weather at harvest may lessen the yield. The cool, moist weather of the past two weeks has, however, been entirely against "Mr. Bug," and the "crop killers" have been sore pressed to earn their salaries, although they have been touring the winter wheat belt in their autos.

The changes in the crop in May in recent years were slight and the present condition should hold unless the unexpected happens as it did in 1905, when the May 1 condition was 92.5 and at harvest 82.7, and in 1903, when in May it was 92.6 and harvest 78.8.

In only six years in the past 25 has the crop shown a betterment from May 1. That was in 1888, 1892, 1893, 1894, 1898 and 1904. The improvement was mostly a slight one in June.

In 1899 the May condition dropped from 76.2 to 67.3 by June 1; in 1895 from 82.9 to 71.1. The biggest gain in the 25 years between May and June was from 84 to 88.3 in 1892.

The Spring Wheat Crop.

With the winter wheat crop practically out of the way, traders will now turn their attention to the spring wheat yield, as a crop scare there is more often developed than in winter wheat.

It must be remembered that last year the winter wheat crop was practically a failure, while the spring wheat crop totaled 330,348,000 bu., against only 190,682,000 bu year before. The total yield of winter and spring wheat last year was 730,267,000 bu.

With the present estimate of 513,571,000 bu of winter wheat, should the spring wheat harvest total 216,777,000 bu, which would be 112,000,000 bu under last year, but 26,000,000 bu over 1911, the total would be the same as last year, and a spring wheat crop of 216,777,000 bu is about an average crop.

With this possibility before the market, pit traders say the present level of prices is not too high, especially as values are over 20c below a year ago, and even with the big crop of a year ago the July option went out at 92c after breaking from $1 a bu to 92c on the closing day of the option.

The "crop killers" must still have their day in the Northwest. It only remains to be seen if they are as unsuccessful there as they have been in the winter wheat belt.

JAPAN IS URGENT; BRYAN PREPARES NOTE TO JOHNSON

Withholds Message Until Further Conference With Wilson on California Status.

SEES CHINDA TWICE

Secretary of State Admits That Ambassador's Protest Is "Japan's Last Word."

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Secretary Bryan tonight formulated a message to Gov. Johnson of California, setting forth the representations of the Japanese Government and the views of the administration here as to what was considered discriminatory in the Webb anti-alien bill, passed by the California Leigislature and now awaiting action by the Governor.

Bryan conferred with President Wilson for an hour, discussing details of the formal protest filed by Ambassador Chinda. It was decided that the Secretary should frame a communication to Gov. Johnson, but the nature of it was not disclosed. Bryan said the message would not be sent tonight. He probably will confer with the President tomorrow before dispatching it.

Department Waits on Johnson.

Secretary Bryan conferred with the Japanese ambassador after his conference with the President, but it is believed that he merely advised him of the intended course of action. Formal reply to the Japanese protest probably will not be made by the State Department until some answer is received from Gov. Johnson.

The impression that spread in official circles tonight was that Secretary Bryan would urge the California Governor to refer the bill back to the Legislature for modifications that would meet the Japanese objections.

There is a well-founded belief that if Gov. Johnson refused either to veto the bill or recommend modifications, California friends of the Federal administration would attempt to invoke the referendum with the idea of nullifying the law until an election could be held, the interval being used to obtain a complete understanding, diplomatically, between Japan and the United States, or perhaps to frame a new treaty covering disputed points.

Strict Secrecy Maintained.

At the White House, State Department and Japanese Embassy tonight there was the strictest reticence regarding the contents of the protest brief submitted by Viscount Chinda. Secretary Bryan admitted that the protest contained in full Japan's statement of her position. He said it was Japan's last word. President Wilson regards the matter so serious as to demand the least publicity possible, until final action is taken on the protest.

President Wilson will not under any circumstances atempt to coerce Gov. Johnson or the State of California. If Japan is not willing to be a party with the Federal Government in a suit in the courts to test the law and the treaty, then the United States will decline to do anything further in the matter.

It is the general belief that Japan, if she has not already agreed to do so, will agree to the court action.

Secretary Bryan does not expect to communicate with Viscount Chinda again until Gov. Johnson is heard from.

Japan Pressing Action.

For the last two days the Japanese Ambassador has been driving matters. He has been insistent that there be action. He has informed Secretary Bryan on each visit that the matter is of much importance to Japan and that prompt action is desired. He stated that certain sections of the Japanese Empire were aroused over the legislation and were making demands on the ministry which were hard for the latter to reject.

He said prompt action by the American Government, even though barren of immediate results, would do much to allay the feelings of certain elements in Japan.

Emissary Coming From Japan to Investigate Conditions.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10.—Baron Juichi Soyeda, delegated by the Japanese-American Association of Japan to visit the United States to investigate conditions which have resulted in the passage of the anti-alien land bill in California, sailed today for San Francisco, according to a Tokio cablegram to the Japan-American of this city.

The Liberal party, according to the cablegram, has issued a long statement denouncing the California land law and biterly attacking the officials of the Japanese foreign office because of their alleged inability to meet the situation.

California Resolution Asks Congress for Aid.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 10.—Senator A. Caminetti, Democrat, offered a joint resolution in the Senate today, memorializing Congress to come to the aid of California in obtaining relief from conditions which now permit the ownership of land by Japanese, and providing for the appointment by the Governor of a commission of five citizens to lay before President Wilson and Congress a statement of the situation in this State. The resolution referred to the committee on federal relations, but owing to the short time before the close of the session, it is doubtful if it will come to a vote.

ST. LOUIS SCIENTIST WHO MAY HEAD NATIONAL WEATHER BUREAU

PRO. FRANCIS E. NIPHER, IN HIS GARDEN AT KIRKWOOD.

Post-Dispatch Offers Prizes in Race Between East St. Louis and St. Louis Business Organizations

THE Business Men's League of this city is trying to increase its membership to 4000.

The Commercial Club of East St. Louis is trying to increase its membership to 1000.

The Post-Dispatch will give to the organization which first reaches its membership goal a handsome loving cup.

We will give to the member of each organization, not a paid officer, who obtains the largest number of new members, an appropriate individual prize.

WE offer these prizes because we want to see both cities grow and thrive, and because we believe the greatest force for the growth and improvement of a city is a strong representative, efficient and enthusiastic organization of citizens devoted to its common interests.

We offer a loving cup as a symbol of the close relationship of friendly rivalry and co-operation that should exist between the twin cities of Illinois and Missouri.

The Post-Dispatch wants to stimulate and help both cities to attain ends that will promote the interests of both. The growth and prosperity of one contributes to the growth and prosperity of the other.

Daily reports of the progress of each campaign will be given in the Post-Dispatch.

Go to it, citizens of St. Louis and East St. Louis.

BOY, REINCARNATED BUDDHA, WON'T GO HOME TO FATHER

Brahmin Youth Declares Himself Superior to All Earthly Decrees or Tribunals.

LONDON, May 10.—Krishnamurtha, the Brahmin youth who is held by Mrs. Annie Besant and other Theosophists to be a reincarnation of Buddha, now declares himself superior to all earthly decrees or tribunals and refuses to obey the order of a Madras Supreme Court to return to his father.

The father, G. Naryan Iyer, claims improper conduct on the part of a noted Theosophist named Leadbeater, to whom Mrs. Besant originally gave the care of Iyer's son. The Judge decided that the accusation of impropriety was not proved against Leadbeater, but pronounced him an immoral person, unfit to have charge of the youth.

The boy is in the care of Miss Bright, daughter of the famous British statesman, the late John Bright. She is a woman of the highest character, who is preserving the youth not only from improper, but, as far as possible, from worldly influences.

The court, nevertheless, has directed that the boy be returned to his father, against which ordeal an appeal has been taken. Meanwhile, Krishnamurtha is living quietly in Sussex, England.

The boy is now 16, and it is proposed to educate him at Oxford University, where he will be specially prepared for his career as a prophet and teacher of humanity. He is supposed to be one of the great spirits like Confucius, Mahomet and Christ, who periodically visit the earth with new messages and revelations. In the United States there are thousands of cultured people who recognize the boy as the new Messiah, and in England several titled ladies are numbered among the disciples of the young Brahmin.

The father of the boy, who at first gave Mrs. Besant his consent to bring him to England, now wishes to recover control of him, claiming that he was the first to discover the "divinity" of his elder boy and to instruct him in esoteric doctrine.

JAMES E. SMITH QUITS 40-YEAR BUSINESS LIFE

James E. Smith, former president of the Business Men's League, has retired from active business after 40 years of it. Friends said yesterday he had told them it was his last day of real work and that he intended to enjoy life hereafter.

To the Post-Dispatch he said last night that he had been planning to retire for some time and that he had practically wound up his affairs the first of the month. He said his only plans so far are for a trip to California. What he will do after that he has not decided.

Smith recently retired as president of the Equitable Surety Co., which he organized after he retired as one of the vice-presidents of the Simmons Hardware Co. He was succeeded as president of the surety company by B. J. Taussig, recent City Comptroller.

For many years Smith was identified with the Simmons company, and was one of its officers and directors. He served several terms as president of the Business Men's League, and took an active interest in the project to deepen the channel of the Mississippi River.

Under his management, the League conducted a river trip from St. Louis to New Orleans in 1909, with President Taft as the guest of honor, and the Governors of 30 States, many United States senators and other prominent men as special guests.

He has been a director in the Third National Bank for many years. One of his hobbies was cultivating an oyster bed in the basement of his home at 8 Lennox place so that he could have fresh oysters the year around.

Spring is the time of year when persons of means are buying new cars and will gladly part with their old ones at a sacrifice price. Post-Dispatch Want Columns tell of such opportunities to buy at a bargain.

PROF. NIPHER FOR HEAD OF NATIONAL WEATHER BUREAU?

Admits He Has Been Put Forward by Friends, but Is Not an Applicant.

RECENTLY AT THE CAPITAL

Had Luncheon With President Who Remarked Upon Improvement of Weather.

Dispatches to the Post-Dispatch from Washington last night said that Prof. Francis E. Nipher of Washington University is being considered seriously for Chief of the Weather Bureau to succeed Willis E. Moore, who was recently dismissed by President Wilson.

"Secretary Houston of the Department of Agriculture," it was said, "has not made any recommendation for the place to President Wilson, and may not make one for some time, but the name of Prof. Nipher is on a list of eligibles with those of Charles W. Dabney of Ohio and others.

"Nipher is well known and esteemed in Washington. It is impossible to verify a report to the effect that he is to be named, but his selection is not at all improbable."

When Prof. Nipher was informed at his home in Kirkwood by a Post-Dispatch reporter that the position was reported to have been offered to him, he said:

"I was in Washington recently, and some of my friends used my name in connection with a discussion of the vacancy. I had luncheon with the President once or twice, but nothing was said about the Weather Bureau situation except that the President remarked that the weather had improved since there had been a change in the Weather Bureau.

"A great many are trying to get the appointment and a great many have been mentioned in connection with it. Nothing has been said to me about it either by the President or Secretary Houston, nor have I been approached in any way about it."

Asked if his attitude would be favorable if the position should be offered to him he said he had not thought about it and did not want to make any statement. "I don't think there is anything in it," he said.

Prof. Nipher is noted as a physicist. He has made a close study of the natural phenomena that come particularly under the observation of the Weather Bureau. He is a close friend of Secretary Houston, who is also Chancellor of Washington University.

WHAT IS THE ANSWER TO THIS GRAMMAR QUESTION?

Arkansas Wants to Know the Subject in Line From Gray's "Elegy."

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 10.—A momentous question has been asked by the Department of Education. It is a sort of a high-brow "how old is Ann" proposition that has them all guessing. Supt. Cook threatens to submit it to the supreme court for final adjudication, as the Legislature does not happen to be in session.

It is a question of grammatical construction, and involves the line from Gray's "elegy," "and all the air a solemn stillness holds."

Every teacher and grammar student in the State is expected to get busy on it. The question is what is the subject of the sentence? Some persons say it is "air" and others say it is "stillness."

It has been submitted to 76 college professors and students of the East, of whom 39 say it is "stillness," 26 say it is "air" and 11 are in doubt. What's the answer?

WIFE HID DOUBLE LIFE OF HUSBAND FOR SEVEN YEARS

Unfaithfulness of Elijah De Hart Revealed When He and Admirer Quarrel.

HE IS THEN ARRESTED

Wife Sought to Conceal His Errors, She Declares, for Honor of Their Six Children.

During seven years of uncomplaining silence and longsuffering, Mrs. Martha De Hart of 4025 West Belle place, saw suspended over her head a sword of public humiliation hung there by the infatuation of her white-haired husband for a younger woman, the wife of another man.

Yesterday afternoon the long-dreaded blow fell, she told a Post-Dispatch reporter, through the arrest of the husband, Elijah De Hart, 58 years old, and Mrs. Dot Hankins, a handsome woman of 36 years, at their establishment, 1612 Semple avenue.

When De Hart's attachment to Mrs. Hankins first became known to his wife, she said, she attempted by every affectionate and moral appeal to win him back to his family. When this proved in vain, she thought of appealing to the police and of suing for divorce.

But for the sake of her six children she decided to let her husband go his way without further resistance, and to hide her sorrows as a deserted wife, rather than subject his son and daughters to an airing of their father's unfaithfulness in the divorce courts.

Two in Quarrel.

The revelation, which Mrs. De Hart had sought by years of self-sacrifice to prevent, came through a quarrel between Mrs. Hankins and her elderly admirer, according to the police. On Friday morning De Hart hitched his span of horses to a farm wagon he had purchased and announced that he was going to live with his son, Walter, on his farm in Jefferson County.

Mrs. Hankins, believing she was about to be abandoned, snatched the king-pin from the wagon and attempted to injure one of the horses with an ax, De Hart says. He called a patrolman of the Page Boulevard District to compel her to keep the peace.

Mrs. Hankins retaliated by accusing De Hart of attempting to go away without paying a board bill. When the patrolman refused to arrest him on the charge, she became angry, and told of the double menage maintained by De Hart.

The police investigated her statement, and yesterday afternoon Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Wilson caused the arrest of the couple on warrants.

He Corroborates Story.

Mrs. Hankins' story, as corroborated by De Hart, and also by Mrs. De Hart, was as follows:

In 1905, De Hart, his wife and their children, lived at 4057 Finney avenue. Next door, at 4053, lived Mrs. Hankins, her husband, William, and three young children. The two families became intimate.

Some months later De Hart and Mrs. Hankins went to Houston, Tex., and remained there for a year. On their return to St. Louis they lived at various addresses, the last of which was that on Semple avenue. Two children were born, Johanna and Elijah, now 5 and 4 years old.

With them were also Mrs. Hankins' children by her husband, Mabel, Celia and Gertrude, who are now 13, 10 and 6 years of age. Hankins, like Mrs. De Hart, failed to seek a divorce, and his wife said last night she did not know where he was. The police said he resides at 4 North Tenth street.

After the arrest of De Hart and Mrs. Hankins, the five children were placed in the care of the Mothers and Babies' Home, 3047 North Taylor avenue. Capt. Hanna, in his report on the case, recommended that they should not again be entrusted to the custody of their mother.

Both De Hart and Mrs. Hankins, in their cells last night at police headquarters, were in a repentant mood.

"Infatuation for a pretty face brought me here," said the wrinkled and grizzled man.

"I gave up home, husband and mother, and it has brought me to this," said the woman, pointing to her jail cot with a bitter gesture.

Daughter Comforts Mrs. De Hart.

Mrs. De Hart, who is 58 years old, white-haired and motherly, wept over the arrest of her husband and the betrayal of the secret which she had guarded so long. One of her daughters comforted her with caresses.

"My children and I are churchgoers," said the mother, "and my daughters are Sunday School teachers. My husband in the last few years has sometimes visited us and even taken meals with us. The children and I always treated him patiently, as Christians should.

"But in the years since he abandoned us he has not contributed a cent to our support. I have kept a boarding house, and the children have worked and contributed from their wages to keeping up the home. My husband has not lived at home since he went to Texas in 1905."

De Hart declared that he had supported both households, despite his

CICARDI WAITERS STRIKE, GUESTS HELP THEMSELVES

Higher Wages Demanded in Opposition to "Making a Living by Tips."

Twenty-five union waiters who were employed at the restaurant of Gus Cicardi, Delmar boulevard and Euclid avenue, went on strike at 8:30 o'clock last night for higher wages and changed working conditions. When the walkout was over only one waiter—"Dad" Fowler, about 70 years old—was left in the place. He refused to join the strikers.

When a Post-Dispatch reporter arrived at the cafe two hours later the place was in a state of confusion. A line of striking waiters on picket duty extended entirely around the front and side of the restaurant. They were distributing cards to all who passed, which stated that "Cicardi is unfair to organized labor."

Inside the guests were running everywhere—into the kitchen, the barroom and about the dining room. Some of them were pounding on the tables and demanding service. Others were waiting on themselves.

While more than half of the tables were occupied, there was no food on any of them. Some of the more ambitious of hungry patrons would bolt into the saloon and reappear a few minutes later carrying an armload of bottled beer and a few sandwiches from the lunch counter.

George Ringler, business agent of the union, entered the restaurant shortly before 8:30 o'clock and gave the signal for the strike. The waiters began to assemble in their dressing room. Then they walked out in a body. Guest who arrived after the strike signal were not served.

Cicardi sent out a hurry-up call for waiters. By 11 o'clock he succeeded in getting about a dozen negroes.

The trouble between the waiters and Cicardi began when the union demanded $9 a week instead of $7, more meals and better food, and a dressing room with a lavatory.

"Cicardi virtually throws his waiters on the mercy of the public," said Ringler. "He pays them $7 a week and expects them to make their living by tips."

Cicardi himself filling in as a waiter denied that the strike effected his business last night.

"Only a little embarrassment temporarily," he said. "They swooped down on me this evening and I asked them to let me think it over until Honday. Well—"

Cicardi rushed over to the bar and said "Give me five cigars." Before the bartender had time to get them he was on the run toward the kitchen, shouting: "Hurry up with those niggers."

O'HARA TESTIFIES WOMAN'S STORY IS PLOT TO "GET HIM"

Head of Illinois Commission Investigating Low Wages of Girls Says on Stand That Liquor Interests and Mann Act Violators Plan His Downfall.

DENIES HE WAS AT HOTEL WITH WOMAN

Tells of Chicago Trip—Maud Robinson, Who Accused Him, Says He Was There, but Declares There Was No Impropriety.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 10.—Lieutenant-Governor O'Hara, head of the Illinois Senate Committee, which has been making a country-wide investigation of the relation of low wages to the moral status of women and girls, took the stand this afternoon and declared that the testimoney of Mrs. Maud Robinson alleging that he accompanied her to a Chicago hotel in January was part of a plot by liquor men and others of their ilk to discredit the work done by the Senate Committee.

Maud Robinson also was a witness, and offered testimony which differed in one detail from O'Hara's, but agreed in essential matters.

Both denied improper relations and differed in the single statement made by Miss Robinson that on the night of Jan. 17, O'Hara visited the suites at the Hotel Sherman occupied by Mrs. Robinson and another woman.

According to Mrs. Robinson, O'Hara called at the apartment after he, Thomas Vredenburg, Harry Gibbons, a Chicago court bailiff, Mrs. Robinson and another woman had visited the cafe of the Hotel Sherman and the Lamb's cafe, across the street.

O'Hara stated that after leaving the Lamb's cafe he met Frank J. Jacobson, an advertising man, at the Press Club, took a midnight lunch with the latter at a restaurant and then went home accompanied by Jacobson. In this connection he offered to produce as witnesses his mother and his father.

Played Poker All Night.

He accounted, in a similar detail, for his public appearance on the next day, Jan. 18, at a luncheon, a banquet and at the theater. He named numerous witnesses who would confirm his testimony on these points. On the remainder of the 18th he played poker with members of the Press Club until 6 o'clock Sunday morning.

In support of this story he offered to produce checks against him at the Press Club, and witnesses. This was the morning of the 19th. The most of the day he spent at his office and at the home of his parents. He attended the Olympic Theater late in the performance and sat in a box alone. His appearance at the theater was explained by him as follows:

The manager of the theater, a friend, had given him a box to attend the first performance of a play on the night in evidence. Not desiring to sit through a performance he offered the box to Vredenburgh, who accepted it.

It was Vredenburgh who showed him courtesy in securing a home in Springfield for him and who introduced him to Mrs. Robinson on a train coming from Springfield to Chicago on Jan. 17. O'Hara dropped into the play late because the manager of the theater desired to obtain his opinion of the production.

Leaving the theater, O'Hara met Vredenburgh and the two women, and being urged "took a sandwich with them at the cafe." He returned to his home.

Registered Women as Married.

In his testimony O'Hara said that he could not remember the name of the woman who was with Mrs. Robinson. He stated that Vredenburgh had told him that he had registered the women as having husbands, at the request of the women, who had a parlor in common.

Vredenburgh explained that this was because the women desired to receive their friends, including several men, without having their guests annoyed by possible questioning on the part of the hotel management.

The Lieutenant - Governor also stated that at no time during the period under investigation did he take a drink of anything intoxicating.

Wears a Tailored Suit.

Mrs. Robinson, attired in a fashionably tailored blue suit, arrived at the hotel while the senators were in executive session.

If O'Hara's accuser was embarrassed, she did not show it. She laughed and chatted with one of the commission detectives who escorted her to the hearing and readily consented to pose for newspaper photographers.

Her graceful figure, an excellent taste in dress, a pair of deep brown eyes, and a pretty face made her the object of much attention when she passed through the La Salle lobby. She hotel manager stationed men at the elevators to inform spectators that they could not go to the room where the committee was sitting.

Mrs. Robinson Tells Her Story.

Mrs. Robinson was sworn, and said she was a dressmaker, living with her mother in Springfield. She said that she first met Lieut. Gov. O'Hara on the Chicago & Alton train en route to Chicago from Springfield, Jan. 17. Vredenburg was with her, she said, and on their arrival they went to the Hotel La Salle, where they met Tom Gibbons and Mrs. Imbusch.

"We remained together until about midnight, when we went to the Lambs Cafe," said Mrs. Robinson. "We separated at about 1 o'clock and bade Lieut. Gov. O'Hara and Mr. Gibbons good night, and then Mrs. Inbusch and I went to the Sherman House.

"Mrs. Inbusch and I were joined almost immediately at the Sherman House by Lieut. Gov. O'Hara and Mr. Vredenburg. We went from the hotel lobby to the College Inn, the cafe of the hotel.

"Afterward, I think, Mr. Vredenburg registered. We were registered as two married couples, I believe, but I am not positive. We were assigned into three rooms, 512, 513 and 514. Mrs. Inbusch and I remained there three days."

The woman leaned forward, her eyes snapping in answer to a question put by one of the Senators.

"At no time were my relations with Lieut. Gov. O'Hara improper," she declared, and continued from this point to tell how she came to sign the affidavit regarding O'Hara.

Got No Money for Signing.

Mrs. Robinson declared under oath that she signed the affidavit 'at the earnest solicitation of Sam Davis of the firm of Davis, Ensel & Co., Springfield, liquor dealers, and that it was to be used for the purpose of stopping the investigation by the Commission, of which O'Hara is chairman, into conditions at Springfield. She said she received no money for making the affidavit. She understood it never would be made public, but would be used only as a "silencer."

Thomas Vredenburg, a young millionaire lumberman of Springfield, was the other man in the party, Mrs. Robinson said. She also brought in the name of the other woman, testifying that she was Mrs. Inbusch of Madison, Wis. She did not further identify her and the committee did not investigate the identity of Mrs. Inbusch.

Testifying as to what transpired at the Sherman House, so far as she and Lieutenant-Governor O'Hara were concerned, Mrs. Robinson said:

"We did not occupy the same room. We were not alone together at any time in any room."

"How did it happen that you signed this affidavit?" asked Senator Ettleson.

"I signed that affidavit," said the woman, "at the urgent and repeated request of Mr. Davis. A notary public named Ensel acknowledged it. I was told the affidavit would not be made public. I was told it was to be used only to silence O'Hara."

"How silence O'Hara?" asked Senator Ettleson.

"Why, he explained that O'Hara probably would summon him before the Vice Commission and attack him, as he had another witness. Mr. Davis wanted the affidavit to hold over O'Hara. I refused to sign another affidavit. Fred Mortimer, an attorney in Springfield, advised me not to. He said Davis might not be able to keep it a secret.

Known Davis Three Years.

"I have known Davis for three years. I signed the affidavit in the presence of Davis and Ensel, his partner."

"How did Davis know you had been in Chicago with Barratt O'Hara?" asked Senator Ettleson.

"It was talked about in saloons generally by a bunch of gamblers," she responded.

Asked if Davis paid her for signing the affidavit, she replied emphatically that he did not.

"Did Davis ask you if your conduct with O'Hara was improper?" she was asked.

"He did not," was the reply. "He did not mention that subject to me."

O'Hara's Testimony in Case.

In his statement to the committee today the Lieutenant-Governor said: "I was returning to Chicago on a Chicago & Alton train, when I met Thomas Vredenburg and Mrs. Robinson in a rear coach. We rode to Chicago together, and upon my arrival there I went home. While I was doing some errands about the city I met John Burke, former Governor of North Dakota, who now is Treasurer Hamilton Lewis. They invited me to dinner at the Hotel La Salle, but I declined and accepted an invitation from Manager Sam Lederer of the Olympic Theater to attend a performance there.

"After the show I accompanied Vredenburg and two girls to the Sherman House. Vredenburg explained to me that the girls registered there because they wanted to entertain gentlemen friends.

"I did not register as man and wife with Mrs. Robinson. I never stopped at the Sherman House in my life, and certainly not with a woman."

O'Hara said that when Vredenburg introduced him to Mrs. Robinson it was as a "respectable young woman" of Springfield. He said that he met Vredenburg in Springfield when Vredenburg's house was offered for rent to him and that he was glad to meet and chat with him on the train.

"We did not drink any intoxicants in the Lambs Cafe," said the Lieutenant-Governor.

O'Hara Learned of Affidavit.

"Tell us what you heard about the rumor of an affidavit," requested Senator Ettleson.

"I inquired about the rumor and was told that it related to a subpena for Sam Davis, partner of a man named Ensel in the liquor business, and the reputed owner of segregated houses in Springfield. While I was investigating the rumor I was called to the home of W. L. O'Connell, County Treasurer, who told me that Deputy Richard Sullivan had called him to tell him of a plot to 'get me.'

"O'Connell said the plan was to wait until the last hearing of the commission. Then a woman was to be presented as a witness, and at the conclusion of her testimony she was to rise from her seat and say to me: 'You know what kind of a woman I am'—and another woman was to rise in the audience and point to one of the senators and make a similar remark. Another auditor was to rise and demand the production of an affidavit.

"O'Connell told me Sullivan said he had stopped the plan, to save the Dunne administration from scandal, and would prevent the accusation being made public if Davis was not called upon to testify.

"I denounced the whole thing as a frameup. O'Connell said he thought the same thing. I returned to the hotel and told my wife about the charge.

Mrs. O'Hara Urged Inquiry.

"She advised me to demand an explanation. On boarding a train for Springfield several days later, Frank McLaughlin and other members of the Legislature told me there were rumors of a frameup in the air."

O'Hara said he was told that in the plot to accuse two Senators besides himself, Sullivan had three affidavits by as many women, which he said he knew to be false, but he intended to use any way.

"On the night of Jan. 17," said the Lieutenant-Governor, "I stopped at home with my father and brother."

O'Hara told in detail of his movements after arriving in Chicago on the day in question. He ended his testimony with an emphatic denial that he ever had occupied a room anywhere with Mrs. Robinson, and added:

"I am surprised that other affidavits have not been produced here. I demanded this investigation to force the plotters to show their hands."

Differs in Details.

Another version of O'Hara's Chicago trip, given out yesterday by County Treasurer William L. O'Connell, and said to have been made by O'Hara on April 27, differs in several details from O'Hara's testimony before the committee today.

In testifying today, O'Hara stated that Miss Robinson was introduced to him as a "respectable young woman," but in the O'Connell statement he is quoted as saying that he met her as one of two "good fellows."

In the O'Connell statement, O'Hara is quoted as saying that he went to the door of the young women's room and talked to them.

In the O'Connell statement O'Hara is further quoted as follows:

"As to the story told by this woman Robinson, no fair-minded man can fail to acquit me of blame when they know the real facts.

"It is true, as she alleges, that I left Springfield at noon on Saturday, Jan. 17, with Thomas D. Vredenburgh, a wealthy lumber merchant of that city. We took the Alton limited for Chicago, and in the party were Maud Robinson and another young woman whose name, I think, was Mabel Davidson.

Women Were Boisterous.

"Vredenburgh, with whom I was on friendly terms, and from whom I had rented a house in Springfield, had told me he was going to Chicago on that train and asked me if I did not want to meet a couple of 'good fellows.' Out of courtesy I said 'yes,' and I found the 'good fellows' were the two young women.

"After we boarded the train the women became boisterous in their conduct. They were so flip and loud that we had to engage a private room on the Pullman parlor car for our party.

"When we reached Chicago we went to the Hotel Sherman, where Vredenburgh registered for the party. I had no hand in it and did not know he had registered except for himself.

"In the course of the evening we went to the Lambs' Cafe and to the Far East restaurant. During the evening I wanted to leave the party and I thought it would be a matter of good judgment to get someone else to take my place. I called up Harry Gibbons, bailiff in Judge McDonald's Court, and he came. About midnight I left Gibbons at the Lambs' Club with the party and went to the Press Club.

"I saw no more of the party until the next day, when I went to the door of the suite and talked to them for a moment.

"I have certain evidence which will establish a complete alibi for myself and which will convince the committee and the public of my complete innocence of the charge made by the Robinson woman."

ILLINOIS OFFICIAL WHO DENIES WOMAN'S STORY

BARRATT O'HARA.

NOT WITH PARTY, SAYS MRS. INBUSCH

Daughter of Wisconsin Governor Denies She Was With O'Hara and His Friends.

MADISON, Wis., May 10.—Mrs. Mabel Davidson Inbusch today denied she was a member of the O'Hara-Vredenburgh party in Chicago cafes, as Miss Maud Robinson has testified, but admitted that she knew Vredenburgh and that she might have been in Chicago on the dates mentioned.

"If I was in Chicago at the time, however," said Mrs. Inbusch, "I was staying with friends and not at any hotel. I have nothing whatever to do with this affair. I know nothing of it except what I have read in the newspapers. I have not been summoned and see no reason why I should appear as a witness at Chicago. I never have stayed at the Hotel Sherman and never do I know Mr. O'Hara. I never knew visited there with Mr. Vredenburgh nor Maud Robinson nor have I been in Springfield in two years.

"I believe that the bringing of my name into this is a part of a political conspiracy against my father, just as the charges are being used against Mr. O'Hara by the saloonkeepers and dive keepers who resent his investigation."

Mrs. Inbusch talked after her father had refused to make any statement.

Very good-looking, with heavy brown hair piled high on her small head, big, snapping brown eyes and a notably commanding manner, Mrs. Inbusch entered with high spirit her protest against the use of her name.

STANDARD OIL HAS CHANCE TO PROVE IT HAS REFORMED

Supreme Court Suspends Ouster and Names Commissioner to Take Testimony.

HE MUST BEGIN MAY 15

Parker Believes Waters Pierce Will Give Evidence of Trust Relationship if Any.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 10.—The action of the Supreme Court in appointing a Commissioner today to take testimony to determine whether the Standard Oil Co. is connected with a trust or is independent, follows suggestions laid down by Judges Woodson and Lamm early this year, when the motion to modify the judgment of the court ousting the company was overruled.

The majority of the court, however, held that it could not modify its decree after the term of court at which it was entered had elapsed, and, further, that it was not disposed to do so anyway.

The company then raised the point that three of the five judges overruling the motion to modify were not members of the court when the motion was filed and were not familiar with the case.

A motion for rehearing was filed and has been pending since early in January. In the meantime the Legislature passed a bill, which was vetoed, trying to pave the way for the return of the company to the State regardless of the court's decision.

Attorney-General Barker believes the Waters Pierce Oil Co., which has manifested hostility to the Standard, will turn up evidence of any trust relationship which the Standard may have.

Must Report by June 10.

John Montgomery of Sedalia is the commissioner appointed by the court to take testimony as to the good faith of the Standard Oil Co. in severing its connection with any trusts.

Montgomery must qualify and begin the taking of testimony by May 15. Attorney-General Barker is to attend the hearings and cross-examine the witnesses. The Commissioner must report to the court by June 10 his findings of fact as to whether the company has any trust relations. If the Standard Oil can show that it is not in a trust and has not disobeyed the law since the ouster decree was entered, it will be permitted to remain during good behavior.

The court's action brings relief to the village of Sugar Creek, near Kansas City, whose existence was threatened by the order of ouster against the Standard. The inhabitants of Sugar Creek depend for their wages upon the company's refinery located there. The closing of that refinery would take away the employment of practically the entire male population.

A committee of Sugar Creek citizens made protest to the Supreme Court. Similar protests were made by citizens' committees of Kansas City. Their contention was that the enforced removal of the Standard would deprive manufacturers and other important industries of fuel and work untold damages to citizens.

Case in Litigation Eight Years.

Today's decision is the latest development in a fight instituted by former Gov. Hadley, then Attorney-General, about eight years ago.

Dec. 23, 1908, the Missouri Supreme Court fined the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, and two other oil companies $50,000 each and issued ousters against the Standard and Republic Oil companies. These two companies appealed to the United States Supreme Court, where the judgment of the Missouri Supreme Court was affirmed April 1, 1912.

The Waters Pierce Oil Co. was fined $50,000, which it paid, and on the promise to be good in the future was permitted to remain in business in the State.

In May, 1912, the Standard and Republic companies paid their fines and the Standard asked for a modification of judgment under which it could continue business in the State so long as it obeyed the laws and the orders of Court. This request was denied absolutely by a decree of the Missouri Supreme Court issued Feb. 12 last.

The Standard company has property in Missouri valued at more than $3,000,000. Its Sugar Creek refinery alone is valued at $1,750,000, and more than 400 persons are employed at the latter plant.

American Credit Commission Arrives at Naples.

NAPLES, May 10.—The members of the American commission, which is to examine into the credit facilities extended to agriculturists in the Old World, arrived here today on the steamer Saxonia. They will proceed to Rome tomorrow.

GIRL FINDS FIANCE DYING FROM GAS; FRIEND NEAR DEATH

Miss Laura Gertner Was Waiting for Sam Greenstein to Get Divorce to Wed Him.

HIS COMPANION OVERCOME

Police Believe Wind Blew Out Gaslight and Caused Door to Be Closed.

Miss Laura Gertner of 915 St. Louis avenue, who tried to vain to save the man she loved from death by asphyxiation by gas yesterday, told a reporter for the Post-Dispatch last night that she was waiting for him to get a divorce next week so she could marry him.

The man was Sam Greenstein, proprietor of a shoe repairing shop at Prairie and St. Louis avenues. He and Meyer Mittinick, a tailor, were alseep in his shop when, it is supposed, the wind blew out the flame from a gas jet. Mettinick is at the city hospital, unconscious, and his condition is considered critical.

Greenstein and Mittinick lay unconscious on adjoining cots when Miss Gertner and a friend broke down the door and entered the gas-filled room at 10 a. m. While her companion ran to summon a physician, Miss Gertner poured milk and whisky into Greenstein's mouth in an effort to revive him, while she called hysterically for a doctor.

Believe Deaths Accidental.

When Dr. Edward L. Mize of 2821A Vandeventer avenue arrived and pronounced Greenstein dead, Miss Gertner was lead from the room.

The gas jet in the repair shop was turned on and the room occupied by the men had filled with gas. The police say they believe the gas had been blown out by the wind and that a door the men had left open had blown shut.

Mittinick conducts a tailor shop at Warne and Labadie avenues. He is 38 years old and has a wife and four children in Russia.

Greenstein was 30 years old, and had recently been making arrangements for his marriage in June to Miss Gertner. He had planned to open a shoe store yesterday at 2735 North Grand avenue, which was to be in charge of her. He had told Miss Gertner to go to the store yesterday morning and take charge.

Men Were Close Friends.

The men were close friends and had played cards Friday night until 11 o'clock at the home of Sam Specter, 2611 St. Louis avenue. Mittinick went home with Greenstein to spend the night.

Yesterday morning Miss Gertner went to the new store, as instructed, but found the place closed. She went to Greenstein's shop to learn what was the matter and found the door locked. She got no response to her repeated knocks. Specter came looking for Mittinick. He had found the latter's tailor shop closed.

Specter and Miss Gertner went to the rear of the shop and through a window saw the men lying apparently lifeless on cots. Specter broke open the rear door. When Specter could not arouse the men he went for a doctor, while Miss Gertner sought to revive Greenstein.

Miss Gertner said she knew Greenstein was married. But he had been separated from his wife for a long time, she said, and had brought a divorce action. He expected the case to come up for trial in a few days. His wife is in Europe.

KIRKWOOD PASTOR AND FLOCK ARE INCOMPATIBLE

Presbyterian Church Elder Says There Is Likely to Be a Separation Soon.

Divorce court parlance was impressed last night by O. H. White, elder of the Presbyterian Church at Kirkwood, to describe an unharmonious relation which has arisen between the pastor, the Rev. T. B. Southall, and his board of elders.

"It is incompatibility, like that between man and wife," said White. "It is probable there will be a separation soon."

He meant, he said, that the Rev. Mr. Southall would resign within the next month or six weeks, and that the resignation would be accepted. He denied a report that the elders had questioned the orthodoxy of the clergyman, and said that no formal charges had been made.

The clergyman denied a rumor which spread in Kirkwood that he would announce his resignation from the pulpit today. Asked whether he contemplated resigning, he said he could make no statement at this time.

His skull was fractured, and he died soon after being taken to the city hospital. He was 40 years old, and lived at 4816 Alsace avenue.

DEPOSITION FILED IN WILL CONTEST MYSTIFIES COUNSEL

Confidential Clerk Says Lumberman Boyton's First Will Left Him Bulk of $250,000.

SECRET TRUST CREATED

W. S. Davis, Deponent, Has Assigned Testator's Widow His Interest in Employer's Estate.

Disclosures made by Walter Smith Davis of Kennett, Mo., in a deposition filed in the case of E. E. Boynton and Mrs. Mary Townsend of Sycamore, Ill., against Mrs. Cora Boynton, to break the will of Charles D. Boynton, have intensified interest in the reason which Boynton had for willing, at one time, the bulk of his property to Davis, subject to a life estate of Mrs. Boynton.

Davis deposes that Boynton made such a will and entrusted it to him. He also admits that since the death of Boynton he has assigned to Mrs. Boynton all his interest in the $250,000 estate of Boynton. He gave no explanation of the assignment.

Another interesting disclosure is that Boynton created a trust fund of $10,000 for the benefit of two persons whose names wer placed in a sealed envelope and still are under seal. No explanation has been made of the reason for this trust fund.

Davis deposed that he became acquainted with Boynton at Kennett in 1903 and began working for him a year later as secretary of his lumber company and confidential clerk to Boynton. The latter, Davis testified, trusted him in business matters and gave private papers into his keeping. Among these was the first will.

Davis said he kept it for a time and then turned it over to lawyers. The first will provided, he said, that Davis, after the death of Mrs. Boynton, was to get the stock of the lumber company, which has an extensive plant at Boynton, Ark.

The second will, now being contested by the brother and sister of Boynton, bequeathed everything to Mrs. Boynton. The contestants allege that it resulted from undue influence at a time when Boynton was near death and not capable of understanding what he was doing.

Attorney E. E. Schnepp, representing the contestants, has obtained an order in Judge Hitchcock's court, where the case is pending, directing Davis to produce all documents pertaining to Boynton's affairs. It is expected that they will throw light on features of the case which now are mystifying, including Boynton's reasons for making such a bequest to Davis in the first will, his reason for setting aside a trust fund for persons whose identity has been kept secret, and Davis' assignment of his interest in the $250,000 estate to Mrs. Boynton.

DYNAMITE EXPLOSION WRECKS 27 BUILDINGS

Three Killed, 40 Hurt, In Accident That Destroys Pennsylvania Mining Village.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 10.—The explosion of 500 sticks of dynamite in the magazine of the Sunshine Coal & Coke Co.'s mine No. 1, three miles from Masontown, Pa., at 1 o'clock today, practically wiped out the little mining settlement, killed three men and injured 40 persons, 20 of them seriously. The cause of the explosion is not known.

Of the dead only one has been identified. His name is given as Harry Bossa. The other two men were in the magazine when it exploded and were blown to pieces.

The general store of the coal company, the residence of Francis Rocks, an official of the concern, and 25 small dwellings were wrecked. It is said that the body of Bossa was thrown 200 yards. Mrs. Ella Barnhart, who is blind, was blown across a room and was found beneath a pile of debris.

There were freight cars near the magazine, one of which was loaded with dynamite. According to reports received in Uniontown this afternoon, the cars were blown through the general store.

BARTENDER SHOT WHEN HE SETS DOG ON TWO BROTHERS

They Refused to Pay for Beer, He Says, and Quarreled With Him About It.

Wady Aryski, 25 years old, bartender at 3201 North Second street, was shot and probably fatally wounded last night when he set his dog upon two men with whom he had quarreled over 10 cents. He is at the city hospital in a serious condition.

Aryski told the police that he was shot by Frank Deibel of 3502 North Broadway and that Speedy Deibel, Frank's brother, was scuffling with him at the time. He said the Deibel brothers had entered the place and after drinking a glass of beer each refused to pay for it.

When he insisted, he said the brothers became quarrelsome. He started to eject them from the saloon and called his dog to his aid. The dog bit both of the Deibels. There was a shot and Aryski fell to the floor.

The Deibels were arrested. They declined to make a statement. At the hospital physicians said Aryski had been wounded in the abdomen.

wife's denial that she had permitted him to aid her since he deserted her.

"I make plenty of money," he said rather boastfully. "I am a real estate broker and an insurance agent. I own 260 acres of land in Jefferson County and 640 acres in Ellis County, Tex. I have horses and wagons and $2000 worth of merchandise which I took in return for loans I made which were not repaid. I'm worth at least $12,000.

"I gave Mrs. Hankins 122 acres of land in Texas to get rid of her, but she traded it for a boarding house in St. Louis. She lost it through mismanagement and I gave her another property on Beethoven avenue. She lost that too. My wife and children and Mrs. Hankins' relatives knew of our relations, but they didn't make any trouble."

Mrs. Hankins told the reporter that she was attracted to De Hart through his children, and that she decided a father who could rear so excellent a family must be a good man.

LIMITED TRAIN STOPS, WQMAN SAVED FROM POND

Congressional Express Pauses Long Enough to Permit Rescue, Then Goes on.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Passengers on the Pennsylvania Railroad's Congressional limited for Washington this afternoon were attracted to a woman who stood near the tracks when the train stopped at Manhattan transfer on the Jersey Meadows to change from electric to steam power.

The woman walked slowly to the edge of a pond 30 yards from the station, and stood there; then as the train pulled out she hurled herself into the water. The conductor quickly stopped the train and backed to the station. Several passengers ran to the pond. The woman was standing waist deep in water and was sobbing. She was persuaded to come to shore and the train went on its way.

The woman she said was Mrs. Julia Ellsin aged thirty two, wife of Joseph Ellsin, a Jersey farmer.

"Some weeks ago" she said "my husband took our two little boys and put them on a steamship bound for Europe. Parting from my children nearly killed me. On Thursday my husband left our new home. I don't know where he has gone. I became desperate and this afternoon I decided to end my life by drowning."

STRIKE STOPS ALL CINCINNATI CARS, BUT CITY IS QUIET

Men Demand Increase in Wages and Better Working Conditions.

VEHICLES ARE IN DEMAND

Company Says It Could Have Operated Some Cars, but Feared Disorder.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, O., May 10.—At midnight tonight street railroad strikers were in complete control of the local street car situation. Not one Cincinnati street car has turned a wheel since 3 o'clock this afternoon, and no relief is in sight unless the strike can be settled by arbitration or strike-breakers take the places of the strikers.

Every city electric railway power house connected with the local street railroad system is shut down, and no time has been set for an effort to resume with nonunion help.

If strike-breakers are employed the power house men say they will go out permanently and their places cannot be filled, as engineers are required to have a State license.

The street car employes are striking for recognition of the union, increase in wages and shorter working hours.

Mayor Henry Hunt was in conference tonight with labor leaders, and took the first step toward arbitration.

Need More Policemen.

The street car officials, at a conference with Mayor Hunt and Chief of Police Copeland late today, were told that the police force of this city would need to be doubled to protect enough strike-breakers to handle the cars of the Cincinnati lines.

The problem from a street railway staindpoint is made much more complex by reason of the fact that the public is almost solidly in favor of the strikers, owing to a strenuous campaign in the last Ohio State Legislature in favor of a revocation of the local 50-year franchise, the only franchise of its kind in the Central States, and probably the only such franchise in America.

The remarkable control shown by Rezin Orr, the strike organizer, in maintaining control of the strikers, has gained the sympathy of the public and many unique "walking clubs" have been organized within the last twelve hours to encourage a public boycott of the street car lines. Superintendent Robert E. Lee said tonight:

"We will make no effort to run cars until Sunday noon. We do not think it worth while to subject our old men to the dangers of violence from strike sympathizers," he added, "though the police declared tonight there was no serious danger of violence, for the strikers are said to be very orderly.

"We will have two-thirds of our cars running by Sunday night," was the traction company's announcement.

"Whether they are operated by old men or not, depends on the showup—that is, the number of old men who 'show up' for work Sunday morning."

More Than 2000 Idle.

The shut down on all lines makes idle more than 2000 traction employes.

The union officials tonight said that 1600 men were actually on strike.

Traction officials announced tonight that arbitration had been suggested by the Mayor, but that they had told him they did not think this the time to discuss the matter.

Auto service from Government Square to Peebles corner was started tonight. On the first trip a truck carrying 35 persons was crowded. The fare was 10 cents.

Postmaster Monfort telegraphed to the Postoffice Department in Washington tonight for authority to hire wagons to carry mails to suburbs, which were cut off from mail communication by the car tie-up.

Mayor Hunt, Safety Director Dennis Cash and Police Chief William Copeland tonight discussed closing saloons near car barns, but decided to take no action unless developments require it.

Lockout Is Expected.

They also discussed plans for handling the situation Monday noon, when nearly 8000 workmen affiliated with the Building Trades' Council are expected to be locked out.

Chief Copeland tonight ordered 70 men, eligible for appointment as patrolmen, to the city hall, to be sworn in as special officers for strike duty. All these men have passed civil service examinations.

It was reported late tonight that 500 strike-breakers are on the way here from St. Louis, Pittsburg and Chicago, and will be held in reserve until negotiations looking to a settlement are completed.

ERIE TRAIN STRIKES ROCKS PILED ON TRACKS

Apparent Attempt to Wreck Passenger Follows Letter Threatening Damage.

PATERSON, N. J., May 10.—A westbound train on the Erie Railway, known as the Chicago Express, had a narrow escape from being wrecked tonight when the locomotive crashed into a pile of rocks on the tracks here, evidently placed by would-be train wreckers.

The engineer sighted the obstruction and slowed down, so that only the locomotive pilot was smashed. No one was hurt. President Underwood of the Erie was on the train.

On Monday last the Erie Board of Directors in New York received a letter of the blackhand type, which read:

"If you continue to stop trains for the accommodation of scabs at Paterson, we will cause an accident which will cause the Erie Railroad to have damage suits brought for amounts running into millions."

Detectives were put on guard, but the rocks struck by the express tonight were piled at an isolated spot, some distance from the points guarded.

LAYMEN'S PROTEST AGAINST BISHOP DENNY SUCCEEDS

Bishop Hoss Will Preside Over St. Louis District Conference Next September.

BASIS OF COMPLAINTS

Church Members Charge Bishop Denny With Arbitrary Methods in Conference.

A three years' war in the St. Louis district of the Methodist Church, South, has ended in the elimination of Bishop Collins Denny from the church's affairs here.

The College of Bishops, in session the past week in Dallas, Tex., received a petition signed by many St. Louis laymen, asking that Bishop Denny, who has presided over the last three annual sessions of the St. Louis district conference, should not be assigned here this year. The bishops, after considering the petition, voted to assign Bishop E. E. Hoss to the St. Louis conference, which will meet in Jackson, Mo., in September.

Among the leading laymen who have been displeased with Bishop Denny's administrative acts have been Murray Carleton, S. M. Kennard, Lawrence Boogher, Fredrick Vierling, Stanley D. Pearce and Clarence Comfort. Their signatures, and those of laymen from nearly every St. Louis church, are said to have been affixed to the petition.

The chief complaints against Bishop Denny, according to well informed laymen and ministers, are these:

1. That he appointed the Rev. C. M. Hawkins presiding elder in 1911, over the protest of leading laymen. Dr. Hawkins was the leader in the original movement to invite Bishop Denny to make his home in St. Louis.

2. That he appointed former Gov. Lon V. Stephens one of the trustees of the Barnes Hospital property over the protest of the other two trustes, Carleton and Kennard.

3. That he crippled the University City church by removing the Rev. Ivan Lee Holt as pastor at a time when the church was in critical formative period.

Appointments Not Pleasing.

Of these three complaints, only the first was clearly set forth in the petition sent from St. Louis to the college of bishops. The petition did not mention Dr. Hawkins by name, but it stated that leading laymen had protested against the appointment of the present presiding elder, and that practically all the St. Louis ministers also thought the appointment unwise, but that, notwithstanding these objections, Bishop Denny proceeded to make the appointment.

The petition went on to say that since the Hawkins appointment, the laymen felt that they had been slighted, and that, while the individual churches had carried forward their work, the general co-operative work of the denomination here had been tied up.

To emphasize this point, the authors of the petition took up three cases in which it had been reported to the bishops that new churches were well under way. In each of these cases, the petition stated, the raising of funds had not yet gone far enough to insure success. The proposed new churches referred to were the Walton Road Church in St. Louis County, the Christy Memorial Chapel on Neosho street and the Cupples Memorial, or University City edifice.

The opinion was expressed in the petition that the co-operation needed to carry these and other enterprises to success could not be expected until a readjustment should take place in the present organization. It was therefore asked that neither Bishop Denny, nor any other bishop whose associations might connect him with the present order of things in the St. Louis conference, should be assigned here.

Protest Has Borne Fruit.

Bishop Hoss is a close friend of Bishop Denny, and it was he, and not Denny, who was originally designated to preside at the conference at Dexter, Mo., last fall. Bishop Hoss was ill, and Bishop Denny was sent in his place. The St. Louis laymen believe that, in view of their protest, this would not happen again, particularly as Bishop Denny is not now on the Committee on Assignments. His position as secretary of the college of bishops would ordinarily entitle him to sit on this committee, and reports from Dallas have been that there was an acrimonious debate before it was decided to depart from this precedent.

The Rev. Paul Linn, pastor of the Scruggs Memorial Church, who returned last night from Dallas, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that his visit had nothing to do with the Denny matter. He made a report to the bishops on the work of one of the church boards. Dr. John W. Vaughan, a member of Scruggs church, who went to Dallas with Dr. Linn, has not returned. He is a member of the Education Board, but it was said by some laymen yesterday that his visit also had to do with the laymen's petition.

Stanley Pearce of Kirkwood, one of the signers of the laymen's petition, said he understood the petition was sent by mail. He said the laymen had no personal objection to Bishop Denny, but believed a change of administrative policy would help the interests of the denomination here.

Classroom Methods Used.

Collins Denny was a teacher, rather than a preacher, before his election to the College of Bishops in 1910. One of the criticisms most commonly made of his administration as Bishop is that he has used the methods of the classroom with both ministers and laymen with whom he has had to deal. However, he was a popular figure in the church at the time of his election, and the vote he received was the largest ever given to a candidate for Bishop.

Soon afterward the Rev. Charles M. Hawkins introduced a resolution in the St. Louis Methodist ministers' meeting, inviting Bishop Denny to make his home in St. Louis. (Methodist bishops, unlike those of the Catholic and Episcopal churches, have the privilege of choosing their own residences, so long as they do not get too near together.) The ministers passed the resolution, though some of them asked whether the churches here or the laymen, would be asked to provide a residence.

Later it was announced that former Gov. Stephens, a member of the Cabanne Church, of which Dr. Hawkins was a former pastor, would give Bishop Denny a $10,000 residence if the Bishop would come to St. Louis. The ministers were not consulted about this, but the more they talked it over, the less they favored the idea, and their discussion ended in a letter to Bishop Denny, expressing their opinion that it would not be wise for him to locate in St. Louis under such circumstances. This letter was a virtual withdrawal of the ministers' former invitation. It is said to have been signed by all the St. Louis ministers with the exception of Dr. Hawkins, the Rev. Theodore Copeland of Cabanne Church, and the Rev. A. H. Barnes.

Bishop Denny is said to have felt that this movement was in some way directed at him. He decided to locate in Richmond, Va., where his home now is, but, by assignment of the College of Bishops, he conducted the St. Louis annual conference twice for himself and once for Bishop Hoss.

A collateral issue in the Denny controversy has been the fight waged in some quarters on the Rev. W. F. McMurry, former presiding elder of the St. Louis district. The controversy between Dr. McMurry and the Rev. W. F. Andrews, who followed him in the pastorate of Centenary Church here, took on a personal nature, and is believed to have been the indirect cause of Dr. McMurry's subsequent failure to obtain a bishopric.

Murray Carleton is a warm friend of Dr. McMurry, and other laymen friendly to Dr. McMurry have believed that some of the supporters of Bishop Denny were not friendly to McMurry. This has tended, in some cases, to strengthen the anti-Denny movement.

ADOLPHUS BUSCH PARTY IS ON WAY TO ST. LOUIS

Busch will go direct to St. Louis and expects to sail from New York for Germany, June 10.

DUNGEON FOR MAN WHO COMPLAINED ABOUT WORKHOUSE

Superintendent Says Charles Mason Broke Rules Smuggling Out Letters.

Clarence Mason, the workhouse prisoner whose letter to Mayor Kiel complaining of conditions at the workhouse caused a recent investigation there, has sent out a second letter making further complaints of his treatment. Capt. F. J. Primavesi, the superintendent, told a Post-Dispatch reporter last night that Mason is now being punished for sending it out in violation of the prison rules.

"It is strictly against the rules for a prisoner to smuggle anything out of the workhouse," Capt. Primavesi said. "I placed Mason in the dungeon Saturday morning and I shall keep him t here until today noon. He says in his last letter that he sent it out by a 'friendly guard'. I am doing my best to learn the name of the guard, but I have not succeeded. He also smuggled out the second letter.

"There is no doubt in my mind but that a guard did it. I am working on the theory that a guard who will smuggle anything out of here will also smuggle thinsg in—drugs for instance. Some of the guards here are soreheads since I have compelled them to do their duty."

Mason first told Capt. Primavesi that the letter was sent by a released prisoner named Miller. Later Primavesi declared he said the prisoner's name was Brown. The superintendent said that he would keep Mason in the dungeon every alternate 24 hours until he learned the truth.

NURSE IS ONE OF FAMILY

WASHINGTON, May 10.—"A nurse is a member of the family," according to a decision handed down by the Interstate Commerce Commission today.

The commission amended its recent order that a nurse could not be included in a railroad man's family to enjoy the pass privilege. The amended regulations make any servant, nurse or cook properly a member of the family or household who can travel on a pass.

RIVAL UNIONS IN ROW OVER BELL PHONE STRIKE

Two Electrical Workers' Organizations Claim Jurisdiction in St. Louis.

HELLO GIRLS ORGANIZING

Mrs. Spraggon Says 450 of 900 Operators of Company Have Enlisted.

The first week of the strike of employes of the maintenance department of the Southwestern Telegraph and Telephone (Bell) Co., closed last night with an executive meeting of more than 100 girl operators at Aschenbroedel Hall, with renewed activity in recruiting new members for the union of hello girls, and with a bitter exchange of recriminations between two rival organizations, each of which say it is the legitimate St. Louis representative of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

At the meeting at Aschenbroedel Hall the rumor spread that at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning the girl operators who are members of the new union, which is called Sublocal No. 1, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, will be called out on a strike in sympathy with the striking employes of the maintenance department and in behalf of a number of hello girls who have been discharged.

The company acknowledges that within the last week 22 girls have been dismissed "for the good of the service." Mrs. Sarah Spraggon, president of the Women's Trade Union League, asserts that the number discharged was 44, of whom eight were dismissed yesterday, and that all of them were either members of the union or were planning to join.

Humphrey Sullivan, general publicity agent of the company, stated that membership or non-membership in the union had nothing to do with the girls' dismissal, but added that many of them had grown so enthusiastic over the union that they became incompetent to do their work.

The rumor of a sympathetic strike to begin Tuesday, was in the face of Mrs. Spraggon's assertion that the strike of maintenance department employes was only a coincidence with the organization of the girl's union.

The work of organization began four months ago, she asserted, long before there was talk of a strike of maintenance employes. Mrs. Spraggon, who has been a leader in the unionization of the young women, asserted that she was using every effort to prevent the girls from striking.

Mrs. Spraggon has been chosen president of the union of telephone girls. Mrs. Daniel W. Kneffler is vice-president and Nellie Quick is secretary. They will be installed at a meeting Monday. It is the intention, the officers say, to open downtown offices for the union.

In an automobile, Mrs. Spraggon visited several of the exchanges last night, seeking members for the union. She said that 450 of the 900 telephone girls employed by the Bell company in St. Louis and suburbs have enlisted. She reported receiving 25 applications for membership last night.

She was informed, she said, that the chief operator at the Cabanne exchange warned the girls who reported on the 9 o'clock shift, that by order of the company any of them who attended a meeting of the operators called for 9 o'clock this morning at Aschenbroedel Hall would be discharged. She was informed, she said, that among the girls discharged yesterday was the overseer of the Webster Exchange.

The controversy was embittered yesterday by the injection of the rivalry between Local No. 1 and Local No. 2 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. The first, at its meeting Friday night, assessed each member a day's pay, $5.20, to support the girls who were thrown out of employment during the week.

The second, in a statement issued last night by its officers, refused to give the strike of maintenance employes either moral or financial support, declared that its members have no grievance against the Bell company, and asserted that "we believe the strikers have proceeded along wrong lines from the first."

The statement was issued by Harry Meyers, president of the Missouri District of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and by Killiam Pollard, business manager in St. Louis for Local No. 2.

The Girls Are Misled.

They assertedt hat the girl members of the union have been misled by false promises of financial support, alleging that they were told the union of electrical workers had $1,000,000 in its treasury in Indianapolis, on which they could draw where they organize and strike.

"As a matter of fact," declared the statement, "the union under which it is sought to organize the girls has only $7000 in its treasury, which is at Springfield, Ill., and not Indianapolis."

Mrs. Spraggon and a committee of strikers appealed to them for support at a meeting Friday night, the statement continues, and not with a refusal by unanimous vote.

Meyers and Pollard complained that a representative of their union was refused admittance to a meeting held a week ago for the purpose of organizing members of the maintenance department. On the other hand, a representative of Local No. 1, which has no men employed by the Bell company, directed the meeting, according to the statement.

The statement made by Meyers and Pollard provoked angry retorts from Miss Quick and from officials of Local No. 1. Miss Quick said:

"Four months ago the Women's Trade Union League took under advisement the organization of the telephone operators of St. Louis. Four months ago Local No. 1 of the Electrical Workers did not know the Women's Trade Union League was beginning its campaign of organization.

W. S. Peebles, press secretary of Local No. 1, asserted that Union No. 2 had been repudiated by the American Federation of Labor, of which Local No. 1 is the only local representative, and that the other organization "not only seceded, but usurped the name, seal and office supplies of the bona fide union."

George Heath, business agent of Local No. 1, declared that the only reason representatives visited the meeting of Local No. 2 was because they were informed the members of No. 2 were preparing to act as strke-breakers.

Mrs. Spraggon replied to the representation of Local No. 2 that the telephone girls were never informed that a fund of $1,000,000 was behind them; and that if there were, they could not draw upon it in case of a strike unless the strike were sanctioned by the American Federation of Labor. This fact, she said, was the occasion of the self-assessment levied by Local No. 1. She declared that Local No. 2 was not asked for a cent of financial assistance, but only moral support.

Inspector Hopkins, of the Health Department, reported yesterday that admission was refused him to the Bell building at Tenth and Olive streets, when he went to investigate a complaint made by Mrs. Spraggon that the company was violating a city ordinance by permitting men to sleep in quarters where young women were employed. He was told, he said, that he would have to supply himself with the company's card granting admission to the building.

G. O. P. HEADS MEET TO PLAN RADICAL CHANGES IN PARTY

National Convention Is Talked of as Means of Making Organization Progressive.

REVISION IS NECESSARY

Senator Cummins Says Conditions Must Be Changed, but Amalgamation Is Impossible.

CHICAGO, May 10.—United States Senators and Republican leaders from various parts of the country began to arrive here today with the avowed purpose of promoting a movement for a Republican national convention this year "to reorganize the party upon progressive lines."

The purpose of the convention, as described by Senator Albert B. Cummins of Iowa, would be to change "conditions in the party so as to prevent a recurrence of what happened at the last Republican national convention."

Besides Senator Cummins those who arrived today were Senators C. I. Crawford of South Dakota, William S. Kenyon of Iowa and L. Y. Sherman of Illinois. Senators William E. Borah of Idaho, A. J. Gronna of North Dakota and John P. Works of California, Senator Cummins said, are expected to arrive tomorrow, together with former Governor Hadley of Missouri.

"There probably will be representatives here from Massachusetts, New Jersey, Michigan, Wisconsin and most of the middle west states," said Senator Cummins. "Our purpose is to talk over the situation informally until Monday, then have a meeting on Monday and get through by noon. We are simply Republicans who want to get the party back on a solid basis along progressive lines.

Demand for Convention.

"The movement for a Republican national convention this year has already become pretty well defined. It will be an extraordinary thing, but the result of the last election calls for some unusual action. The Republican national committee will meet in Washington on May 24. We hope before that time to thoroughly discuss and be able to present to the committee the necessity for a national convention.

"A national convention this year of course would not have to nominate anybody and it would not be dominated by the ambitions of anyone. It simply would get together in a spirit of harmony and devise plans for the best interests of the party. Among the things it is proposed to accomplish are:

"To change the basis of representation according to Republican strength and not according to the accident of the representation of states in Congress.

"To take out that rule which ignores or repudiates primaries.

"To modify any other custom of the party which might interfere with the modern, progressive spirit in the Republican ranks."

No Amalgamation Planned.

Senator Cummins was asked if an attempt would be made at the convention to amalgamate the Republican and the Progressive parties.

"No such attempt will be made," answered the Senator, "but it will be like the Lord's Supper—all who believe may partake.

"Certainly no representative of any other party will participate in our conference here. This will be a conference of Republicans only. Senator Lafollette will not be with us, but I think he is in harmony with our movement. Let me say, too, that we will have no secrecy about it. After our conference on Monday we will give out all the details."

Questioned as to how delegates might be chosen to the convention, if one were called this year, especially in states which provide for primary elections, Senator Cummins said that was a problem that would have to be solved later. Neither had it been discussed, he said, where and when the convention might be held. "Personally," he added, "I like Chicago, but I don't care where it's held, so long as it is within the present year."

CHANGE IN TARIFF LAWS TO PREVENT FRAUDS PROPOSED

Suggested Amendment Would Give Valuation Power to Secretary of Treasury.

HEARINGS ARE OPPOSED

Democrats Say They Have Enough Votes to Defeat Penrose Move for Delay.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Chairman Simmons of the Senate Finance Committee sees merit in an amendment to the tariff bill suggested today by Assistant Attorney-General Denison and Assistant Secretary of Treasury Curtis to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to proclaim valuations of imports. It is asserted that the amendment would prevent undervaluations and avert confusion resulting from fluctuating foreign market values and ad valorem rates.

After the department officials had explained their proposed amendment to the Senator today, he declared it a worthy proposal and that it would receive the most thorough consideration by the committee. The plan seemed to him to be of chief value as an absolute preventive on the part of the importers in willful undervaluations to reduce duties.

Additional Check Favored.

"The bill as it is," said Chairman Simmons, "has many safeguards against undervaluations, but the proposal to empower the Secretary of the Treasury to fix import valuations in the American market would be an additional check.

"It would answer the principal objection advanced toward an ad valorem tariff system. The suggestion will be given the most serious consideration."

The plan will be taken up by the committee next week. Chairman Underwood of the Ways and Means Committee was also consulted by Mr. Denison and Mr. Curtis.

Chief interest in the tariff now lies in the contest over the question of public hearings precipitated by Senator Penrose. There is a possibility the Republicans may rally enough Democratic support to their plan to defeat the majority party in its tariff program at this juncture.

Such a development undoubtedly would result in slowing up consideration of the measure in the Senate. That is the Democrats' chief objection to public hearings. They feel that public hearings will not result in material alterations of the bill and that the country is entitled to the new law as soon as it possibly can be made ready for the statute books.

Senators Ransdell and Thornton of Louisiana are openly in favor of the hearings. Senator Martine and others have expressed themselves favorably to them, but the Democratic leaders assert that they will have enough votes to defeat the Penrose amendment when it comes up Tuesday. The bill then will be formally referred to the Finance Committee.

Textile Men Ask Time.

Secretary Redfield suggested today to Chairman Simmons that the committee consider the advisability of changing the dates on which some of the schedules become effective.

The textile industry is particularly desirous of gaining a little time to adjust itself to the new conditions and to get rid of valuable material on which high duties have been paid.

Another suggestion made by Secretary Redfield referred to the advisability of having the income tax computed from July 1, 1913, instead of January 1, 1913.

TEACHERS' SALARIES ARE TOO LOW, SAYS REPORT

Advance In Living Cost Has Really Decreased Their Income, Says U. S. Bulletin.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—"Public school teachers of the United States do not receive enough salary to save money to carry adequate life insurance, or to proceed with further professional training," announces a report of the United States Bureau of Education issued today.

Most of the teachers of the country have, in effect, had their salaries reduced since 1897, says the report.

Despite an apparent increase in money received by them, the high cost of living has cut into their salaries just as definitely as if a school board had sliced them.

The report shows that wholesale prices in 1911 were 44.1 per cent higher than in 1907; that retail prices had increased 50.2 per cent in the same period, while in June, 1912, retail food prices were 61.7 per cent higher than in 1896.

GIRL SUES FOR PART OF ESTATE OF $14,000,000

Sister of Adopted Son Who Inherited Bulk of the William Ziegler Fortune.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Miss Florence L. Brandt of Davenport, Io., filed suit in the Supreme Court here today for a share in the $14,000,000 estate of William Ziegler, baking powder manufacturer. Miss Brandt is a sister of William Ziegler, who was adopted by the deceased and inherited the bulk of the estate.

Miss Brandt, 28 years old, sets forth that when she and her brother were children they were adopted by Ziegler, but that six years later, in 1902, she left the Ziegler home, signing papers vacating her adoption.

She cites that she was under age when she signed the papers and her own mother was not a party to the proceeding.

ACTRESS WHO SUES REPORTER FOR DIVORCE

ETHEL VALENTINE....

ACTRESS WHO WAS WEDDED SECRETLY SUES FOR DIVORCE

Three Other Wives and Two Husbands Are Plaintiffs in Suits Filed Yesterday.

Ethel Rucker in her petition for divorce from Ludwig Rucker, a former St. Louis newspaper reporter, filed yesterday, alleges that he had a violent temper, did not properly support her and deserted her in July, 1911, five months after their marriage. She asks for the restoration of her maiden name, Ehinger.

Mrs. Rucker is an actress whose stage name is Ethel Valentine. She and Rucker were married secretly in Leavenworth, Kan., early in 1911.

Minnie Lavina Dawson in a suit against Elvester Dawson avers among other indignities that he refused to accompany her to Union Station when she was leaving to attend her mother, who was dying, and that he did not meet her upon her return home after attending the funeral of her mother. The couple were married Dec. 19, 1895, and separated June 18 last.

Mary Decker and Anna Kleinecke allege that their husbands, August C. Decker and Herman Kleinecke, respectively, are guilty of desertion. A similar charge is made by Edward H. Manhart in his suit to divorce Sarah E. Manhart. Jones R. Curtis is seeking divorce from Elizabeth E. Curtis on allegations that she was quarrelsome and nagged him.

WOMAN IN VON PHUL KILLING BETWEEN 2 FIRES

Attorney Would Force Mrs. Springer to Testify or Arrest Her for Contempt.

DENVER, Colo., May 10.—Unless Mrs. Isabel Patterson Springer has fled to Europe or in some other way has placed herself outside the jurisdiction of a court in the United States, she will be compelled to give testimony in the case of Harold F. Henwood and thus expose herself to the danger of arrest on a perjury charge. If she should refuse to give testimony she will become liable to arrest on a contempt charge.

Attorney Bottom, counsel for Henwood, is preparing a list of questions to be asked of Mrs. Springer in behalf of Henwood. These questions will be forwarded to a commissioner in New York within the next 48 hours. Judge Butler will be asked to appoint the commissioner at once.

Attorney Bottom is determined to have Mrs. Springer tell what she, in conversation with several persons since the first trial, has stated to be the truth about the killing of Sylvester Von Phul and George E. Copeland in the Brown Palace Hotel barroom two years ago.

WIFE'S PSYCHIC FRIEND JUST A PLAIN AFFINITY

New York Merchant Gets Divorce After Evidence About Michigan Glances.

NEW YORK, May 10.—When Maurice Kains, a paper merchant of 605 West One Hundred and Forty-fourth street, named William B. Travis, State Auditor at Lansing, Mich., as corespondent in a divorce action against his wealthy young wife, Ines Kains, Travis said he was a psychic sleuth, engaged in exploring the unknown with Mrs. Kains as to some hidden facts involving the estate of Mrs. Kains' mother.

Referee James M. Donahue refused today to credit Travis' spiritualistic powers and decided the Michigan State official was just an every-day ordinary variety of corespondent, known as a soul affinity. Kains got his divorce. Travis' "seances" occurred at the summer home of Mrs. Louis L. Fuller in Lansing, Mich., where Mrs. Kains spent several months last summer.

WILSON TALKS ON MONEY LEGISLATION WITH UNDERWOOD

Is Anxious to Know Demoratic Makeup of Currency and Banking Committee.

GLASS TO BE CHAIRMAN

President Hopes Congress Will Take Up Financial Problems Early in June.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—President Wilson today discussed with Chairman Underwood of the Ways and Means Committee, majority leader of the House, the general situation in Congress and the prospect for currency legislation which the President is anxious to have passed at the present session. The President was particularly interested in the organization of the committees of the House. He was anxious to learn the complexion of the Democratic side of the Banking and Currency Committee which the Ways and Means Cimmittee, acting as a Committee on Committees for the Democratic Caucus, is preparing to select.

Underwood told the President that Representatives Glass of Virginia, the ranking remaining member of the Banking and Currency Committee of the last House, would be selected as chairman. Representative Glass was chairman of the subcommittee on Banking and Currency which made an extensive investigation last session of currency reform measures, with particular attention to the so-called Aldrich currency plan endorsed by the National Monetary Commission.

The President believes the make-up of the House Banking and Currency Committee should be decided upon as soon as possible, in order that the members may begin work on a currency bill to be brought in soon after the House resumes active sessions early in June.

The Banking and Currency Committee has been tentatively selected by Underwood and his colleagues of the Ways and Means Committee, but the names still are subject to shifting before being announced finally. As now shaped up, those who were on the committee in the last Congress will remain.

Representatives Glass, Virginia, chairman; Korbley, Indiana; Bulkley, Ohio; Neeley, Kansas; Byrnes, South Carolina; Brown, West Virginia, and possibly Stephens, Mississippi, Democrats, and Hayes, California, and Guernsey, Maine, Republicans, are slated for this committee.

Representative Talbott of Maryland prefers to remain on the Naval Affairs rather than sacrifice that assignment for a place on the Banking and Currency. Taylor of Alabama prefers the Rivers and Harbors Committee, while Stephens of Mississippi is said to be slated for a place on the Good Roads Committee.

The final approval of the new men on the Banking and Currency Committee will not be vouchsafed, it is understood, until their reform views are made clear, the object of the leaders being to secure effective currency reform legislation in th House as quickly as possible.

A. D. BROWN DIES, WAS FATHER OF THE SHOE TRADE HERE

30 Years Ago Conceived Idea of Manufacturing Goods Here and Acted Upon It.

EAST PREDICTED FAILURE

From That Start St. Louis Factories Have Grown to Annual Business of $75,000,000.

The funeral of Alanson D. Brown, president of the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., who died yesterday in San Antonio, Tex., will be held at the family residence, 4616 Lindell boulevard, Tuesday. The hour for the services had not been fixed by members of the family last night.

The death of Brown, who was the father of the shoe manufacturing industry in St. Louis, from which he made a fortune of $5,000,000 to $10,000,000, had been expected by members of his family and his business associates for several days. He went to Texas in January in the hope that his health, which had been impaired during the past four years, might be improved.

Business associates of the shoe manufacturer recalled yesterday that last December he forecast his death during the present year.

To a group of friends who expressed solicitude for his health, he remarked that a liver trouble, which had caused the death of his father, had fastened itself upon him, and that he knew he could not live another year. The physicians who treated him said that he died from a rare disease known as leucaemia, which is characterized by a multiplication of the white corpuscles of the blood.

Mrs. Brown and her son, Alanson, and her daughter, Ruth, started from San Antonio with the body last night. They will arrive Monday morning. The Rev. Dr. William J. Williamson, pastor of the Third Baptist Church, of which Brown had been a member and chief financial backer for many years, will conduct the religious ceremonies at the funeral. The body will be buried in a handsome mausoleum in Bellefontaine Cemetery, completed a little more than a year ago.

Son to Head Firm.

It was understood among the former business associates of Brown that his son, Alanson C. Brown, now vice-president and general manager of the shoe company, would succeed his father as president and have control of the business, which comprises seven large factories and the store at Twelfth street and Washington avenue, from which officers of the company say more than $1,000,000 worth of shoes a month are shipped.

When Brown's health began to fail he made his son vice-president of the company and advanced him to a managerial position. His object was to train the son, who started to work for his father in the packing room at a salary of $30 a month, to carry forward the business he had founded.

By his death the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium will come into possession of an endowment of $100,000. Brown recently offered to contribute that sum to the sanitarium, provided others raised $50,000. But he stated that he had made provision in his will for the payment of the money to the sanitarium on his death, whether the additional $50,000 was raised or not.

Brown had been liberal in his contributions to the sanitarium and to the Third Baptist Church. The church, like his shoe business, was one of his hobbies, and at frequent intervals he contributed large sums to its support.

Born on New York Farm.

Brown was 66 years old. He was born on a farm in Granville township, Washington County, New York, March 21, 1847. At an early age he left the farm, with a flock of sheep which he had purchased with the money he had saved, and started for the home of an uncle in Columbus, Miss. He lived there six years, entering into partnership in the drug business with his uncle.

At the age of 24 he sold out his share of the business for $13,000, and with New York exchange for that amount in his pocket he came to St. Louis to seek wider fields of action in the commercial world. He sought a connection with the wholesale grocery houses here at that time, but finding nothing that pleased him, he entered into a deal with J. M. Hamilton, a practical shoe man, to establish a wholesale shoe business in St. Louis.

Weathered Panic of '73.

Brown put in $10,000 of his money against Hamilton's experience, and thus was formed the firm of Hamilton & Brown, which later developed into the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. The panic of 1873 followed closely upon the heels of the new firm, but Brown and his partner fought it out and stemmed the financial tide that swept away many older established houses.

Until 1883 the firm bought its shoes from eastern manufacturers, jobbing them throughout the west and southwest. In that year Brown conceived the idea of manufacturing shoes in St. Louis. The eastern manufacturers looked upon this enterprise as an ill-timed venture and predicted that it would fail. But Brown concentrated his energy upon the manufacturing end of the business until he had it well established, and then built other factories to keep up with the selling end of his business.

The company owns and operates seven factories, six being in St. Louis and one in Columbia, Mo. It also has a branch house in Boston, Mass., established several years ago to demonstrate to eastern manufacturers that St. Louis-made shoes could be distributed successfully in their own territory. This house has been successful.

ST. LOUIS SHOE MAN WHO DIED IN DALLAS

ROSCH PORTRAIT.

A. D. BROWN.

Developed New Selling Ideas.

As a shoe merchant, Brown developed many ideas that were new in the business of selling goods. He took many of his employes into partnership with him, and many of them became wealthy. Scores of men who entered his employ as stock clerks have gone out of the house with as much as $500,000 to $1,000,000. Many of the men he trained in the business established shoe factories and distributing agencies of their own, and some of them became his keenest business rivals. He always encouraged his men to go into business for themselves whenever they thought they could better themselves.

He developed a remarkable faculty for training men who could assist him in building up and maintaining his business. At one time or another most of the leading men in the shoe houses of St. Louis, which now are turning out from $65,000,000 to $75,000,000 worth of shoes a year, were in the employ of Brown. They carried the ideas they had learned from Brown into their own business, and nearly all of the men he trained made a success.

The Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. now is giving employment to 5000 people in St. Louis.

The proverb so long applied to the shoemaker relative to sticking to his last was followed religiously by Brown. He concentrated his entire energy on his shoe business, and except in a few instances he refused to invest his money in other enterprises. At one time he owned a considerable amount of United Railways stock, but this depreciated in value and he closed out most of his holdings.

He was interested in the Pitchfork Land and Cattle Co. of Texas, which owns large ranches and herds of cattle, but most of his big fortune was invested in the stock of his own shoe company. Washington avenue business men credited Brown with being one of the most potent factors in building up the wholesale business of the street, which aggregates nearly half a billion dollars a year.

Shoes and Church His Hobby.

Brown developed the faculty of concentration to such a remarkable extent that some of his friends regarded him as eccentric. He was always willing to discuss shoes and his church, but cared for little else.

In his early business career in St. Louis he went to Boston to buy a stock of shoes. He worked hard all day driving bargains, but when night came he and the manufacturer had failed to reach an agreement on a line of shoes Brown wished to have.

The manufacturer suggested the opera as a diversion for the evening. Brown went, reluctantly. When the grand opera star was in the midst of her most dramatic act the Bostonian, absorbed in the opera, felt a tug at his sleeve.

"Say," Brown whispered in his ear, "what price did you say you were going to make me on that lot of satin calf shoes?"

Had Early Business Sagacity.

Many stories are told to illustrate his sagacity as a merchant. When he was a boy back in New York he was selling apples at a little stand in Granville. A woman asked him whether his apples were sweet or sour. He was unable to determine from the question whether she wished sour or sweet apples, but quickly replied: "Just a pleasant tart, madam."

Brown was married in 1877 to Miss Ella Bills, daughter of a Boston shoe manufacturer. Mrs. Brown and five children are living. The children, besides the son, are Mrs. W. F. McElroy, Mrs. William Collins and Misses Ruth and Vesta Brown.

KREUTZER SONATA IN REAL LIFE AS GRIPPING AS PLAY

Suitor Promises Girl Who Tells of "Other Man" to Give Her Child His Name.

AND THEY ARE MARRIED

Then the Crying of the Child After a Year Brings Moodiness and Baby Is Hurt.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DENVER, Colo., May 10.—Preparing the report that Humane Officer Zadowsky brought back from the Austrian tenement at 4676 Washington street when he placed Elmer Kay in jail, was like rewriting the third act of "Kreutzer's Sonata," with a Polish girl who speaks no English in the role of Miriam Friedlander. Evidently from the pathos Zadowsky put into the story he told to Magistrate Stapleton, it needed no Bertha Kalich to interpret the somber role to impress him fully with its tragic character.

The story began when Kay wooed the pretty Polish miss with the midnight eyes, and after he had declared his love for her, she told him of "the other man," who had gone she knew not where. He listened, then said:

"I don't care. I love you and will give to the child a name."

There was a wedding with its attendant festivities and she was the happiest of brides because a great sorrow was lifted from her heart.

One Night the Baby Cries.

A year passed. They were living in Leadville, and there were times when Kay seemed moody. He stood over the child, looking down into its baby features, his own countenance drawn and hard.

Then one night the baby did not cease to cry at the command of the man who owned it, only in name. There was a rush, an exclamation, the sound of a baby body striking the floor—the sobbing, wild cry of a mother as she swept the form into her arms. One arm hung limp and bleeding—broken. The man stood dully by, watching his wife as she paced the room, as her fevered, nervous hands attempted to bring together the broken bones of the child's arm.

"Sophia fell," he said, tonelessly—then turned away at the look in the woman's eyes.

Three months passed. They were living in Colorado Springs. The little bones healed fairly well, leaving as their only indication of surgeonless care a ridge which made its presence felt through the flesh. Things seemed to have improved. Then the child cried again at night.

A Little Arm Hangs Limp.

And once more there was the impact of a childish form upon the floor, the hoarse, begging cry of a mother as she cowered against the bed. Again an arm hung limp and again the man who had given his name to the child of another muttered:

"Sophia fell."

But the news of it all did not travel beyond the walls of the little house. Watchfully, fearfully, the mother nursed the baby to health again, binding its arm herself, working it and kneading it when the bones knitted that it might remain resilient, and wondering when the next strange "fall" would come.

They moved to Denver, where Kay obtained employment in the smelter at Globeville. The snap had once more gone out of the mother's eyes. There had come the dark shadows of worry and sleeplessness upon the cheeks. The hands trembled a bit now and then. A whimper of the child and she was beside it, crooning, almost begging it in her agony, to cease.

But there came the night when it cried too much and when Kay again became angry.

He walked to the bed and looked down upon it with that same expression he had worn often before. There was an intensity in his manner, a dogged something about the tightly clenched jaw and the staring eyes. The hands gripped a bit. It was "The Kreutzer Sonata" again, for in a moment, while the screaming mother sank to the floor, while she attempted madly to straighten the little leg which could no longer move, while her hurrying trembling fingers sought the point of the splintered bones, Kay turned, looked hard before him and repeated.

"Sophia fell."

Neighbors Are Near.

Neighbors are near in the tenement and gossip spreads. Two men entered the Kay rooms.

"We're Officers David and Zadowsky, from the Humane Department," one of them explained in Austrian. "We hear you've been mistreating this baby. What about it?"

"Mistreating it?" Kay had turned sullen. "What have I done to it? It fell out of bed and broke its arms. Then it fell out and broke its leg. Could I help that? Could I hold it in the bed? It's a lie—tell them it's a lie!" he ordered of the woman, who stood anxiously by. But she only smiled, as though she did not understand. The officers persisted.

"There's a mark on that child's cheek where someone has slapped it. Did it get that by falling out of the bed?"

The man turned sullenly to the window again. He did not answer. The officers were asking questions again.

"We understand that you have thrown this baby to the floor three times when you were angry, that you broke both its arms and its leg and that you refused to allow your wife to get a doctor for it. Do you deny that?"

"It's all a lie!" the answer was stereotyped. David turned to his companion, the interpreter.

"I'll keep this man here," he said to Zadowsky. "You take this woman out and find out the truth of this thing."

Tells the Gripping Story.

And so, cringing and fearful, the woman was led to another room. At first the questions were answered only by nods of the head, and by a spreading of the hands. They were continued. There came a reply—another—another—and then the little woman of the midnight eyes was telling the story, from the beginning of everything, telling it simply, telling it with a smile now and then that was more gripping than tears.

That was the story Zadowsky told Magistrate Stapleton. Then he added:

"She is ill now and she and her baby are in the hospital."

"This is no case for a Police Court," said Stapleton. "I will continue this charge until you can take it up with the District Attorney when she gets able to tell the story again."

8 OUTRAGES BY SUFFRAGETES IN BRITAIN IN A DAY

Dublin Theater Saved From Disaster When Bomb Is Found in Telephone Box.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1913, by Press Publishing Co. (New York World.)

LONDON, May 10.—Since daybreak the following outrages by torch or bomb or infernal machine—all with one possible exception due, the police say, to the militant suffragettes—have occurred in different parts of the United Kingdom.

Dublin tonight.—A bomb loaded with forty-two cartridges planted in the Empire Theater was about to explode when found.

Dublin tonight.—An infernal machine clock with empty box attached was found in telephone box at the College Green postoffice.

Beckenham near London tonight.—Large unoccupied house was set on fire and partly burned.

Cambridge University this afternoon.—A bomb exploded in the varsity football pavilion. No damage top erson or property.

Dunde, Scotland. Early this morning.—Farington Hall, country home of former Lord Provost Henry McGrady destroyed by fire, loss $50,000.

New Castle-a-Tyne—Early this morning.—Largeu noccupied house was set on fire and partly destroyed.

Liverpool—This afternoon.—At the Line Street Railway Station a bomb was found in a waiting room; the fuse had died out.

Reading—Forenoon.—A clock work infernal machine was heard ticking in the mail at the postoffice.

It is estimated that the militant suffragettes have done over $200,000 damage in the United Kingdom this week. In view of the possibility of further attacks on the churches by the "Wild Women," as they are called, many historical edifices throughout the country which during this season are usually visited by thousands of American and other tourists have been ordered to be closed except during the hours of service.

The State Department offices at Windsor Castle have been closed to visitors. The Mayor of Windsor has received an expression of the King's regret and has been informed that the apartments will be reopened to the public when the militant activities of the suffragettes cease.

George Bernard Shaw, the playwright, has been cheated out of $2625 by a forger who played on Shaw's friendship for F. W. Patrick Lawrence, supporter of the militants. A messenger boy took to Shaw a forged letter signed "Pethick Lawrence," asking that Shaw exchange checks. Shaw gave his good check to the messenger, who gave him a bad one. Shaw has not reported his loss to the police and he is mum to reporters.

Bomb in Tobacco Box.

The police say there is some doubt as to the suffragette origin of the bomb found at the Lime Street Railway Station at Liverpool. The thing was made out of a half-pound tobacco box, filled with gunpowder and iron nuts. The tin contained a piece of paper, on which was inscribed "Votes for Women."

The Reading bomb, wrapped in brown paper, was addressed to a city official, and it was set in the expectation that it would explode after being delivered at his home. A postal clerk heard the machine ticking and unwrapped it.

Farington Hall, near Dundee, was set on fire simultaneously in several places. A neighbor heard the breaking of glass and he went out to investigate, but found nothing suspicious. An hour later the house was in flames.

The Cambridge bomb was surrounded by inflammable material. There was a loud report, but the inflammable material was scattered by the force of the explosion and did not ignite. The usual suffrage literature was left on the scene.

Women Flee at Dunholme.

The women who attempted to burn Dunholme were alarmed by the approach of passers by and ran away, leaving behind them cans of petroleum and fire lighters. The flames were soon put out.

Mr. Whiteley, the secretary of the printing firm responsible for the last issue of the Suffragette, who was arrested yesterday, was brought up today at the police court in Manchester and remanded by the magistrate, who allowed him to be released on bail on his giving an undertaking not to publish any further editions of the militant newspaper.

$3000 DIAMOND ROBBERY JUST A WEE OVERSIGHT

West End Woman Had Squad of Police Searching; Finds Gems in Handkerchief.

While an imposing array of policemen and city detectives were searching the home of Grant G. Sutherland, 6057 Cates avenue, late last night, for finger prints or other possible clews to the supposed theft of jewelry valued at $3000, Mrs. Sutherland was heard to scream.

A lieutenant, a sergeant, three plain-clothes men and two patrolmen rushed to the second-story room from which the scream issued. They held their hands near their revolver hilts, in anticipation of an important capture.

They found Mrs. Sutherland holding a handkerchief which contained the missing jewels. She had previously listed them, to the policemen, as a pair of diamond earrings valued at $1500, and a pin and three rings, together worth another $1500.

The Sutherlands were packing to move to Bentonville, Ark. Mrs. Sutherland put her diamonds in the handkerchief while she changed her clothing yesterday afternoon, and she later tossed the handkerchief, with some clothing, into a closet. Soon afterward she missed her jewels, and she and her husband searched the house for four hours before calling the police.

DROPS DEAD SOON AFTER HE GETS JOB IN ST. LOUIS

Edward Jerome, 52 years old, who came here recently from Cape Girardeau and has been staying at the Merchants' Hotel, Twelfth and Olive streets, became suddenly ill on the ninth floor of the Holland Building yesterday afternoon and in falling his face struck a cuspidor. Doctors who were called examined him and pronounced him dead. They did not undertake to say whether he had died from stomach ailment, of which he had complained, or from the fall.

Jerome was to have gone to work for the International Magazine Press and was talking to A. C. Hildner, one of the managers, on the ninth floor of the building, when he complained of being ill and walked into the corridor.

At the morgue where his body was taken an examination disclosed that his nose and forehead had been lacerated by the fall and that a hemorrhage had resulted.

HUERTA DRAFTED HARSH ULTIMATUM TO UNITED STATES

De la Barra Then Tempered It—Demands of Recognition Were of Peremptory Character.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO CITY, May 10.—The Post-Dispatch is informed that President Huerta's own draft of his "ultimatum" to the American Government was much more peremptory than the message as it was actually communicated late on Thursday to the State Department at Washington by Senor de la Barra, the Mexican Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Gen. Huerta's original message, it is stated, was a practical demand that the United States formally recognize the Huerta Government in Mexico, with the alternative of withdrawal from Mexico of Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson and all the American consuls.

Though there is no specific available evidence at hand to substantiate the story, nevertheless a story is in circulation in high Mexican official quarters, and it has many believers, to the effect that British interests, diplomatic and also commercial, are exerting upon President Huerta strong pressure to "bluff" the American Government into recognition. British influence, it is asserted, led to Huerta's "request" of Washington for recognition.

Britain Backs Mexico.

Back of the impulse that was given to Gen. Huerta lies the desire of financiers in Great Britain and Germany, it is averred, to work their way into control of Mexican finances. These foreign syndicates with powerful diplomatic backing would be glad to see the Yankee interests ousted from Mexico.

There is a general feeling here that the stand taken by President Huerta is merely another one of the many significant indications which have appeared here of late, pointing toward a decided ascendancy of British influence in Mexico, with corresponding loss of America power and prestige.

The Mexicans are greatly elated over the recognition of the Huerta administration by Great Britain and also over the prospect of a new foreign loan of a million and a half of pesos being taken by a British financial group. There seems to be no reason to doubt that the British Government is vigorously seizing every opportunity presented to it by the attitude of the United States to strengthen Britain's diplomatic business relations here in every way.

President Huerta ignored Ambassador Wilson by going over his head in sending to Washington the message asking recognition. Here is the inside story of the "ultimatum."

Some vague intimation had been printed in certain Mexican papers on Thursday that President Huerta and Ambassador Wilson had "discussed important matters" at the National Palace on Wednesday night. Late Thursday night President Huerta telephoned to the representative of a news association, requesting him to come to his (Huerta's) private residence.

The President appeared to be in a somewhat disturbed mood. He abruptly asked the newspaper man if he understood Spanish, and, although an affirmative reply was given, the President summoned his aide and ordered him to write down what the President dictated.

Ultimatum Is Modified.

With great care and at the same time speaking rapidly and in a manner which indicated that his thoughts had been painstakingly arranged in advance, the President dictated what he had to say. When he had finished he summoned Foreign Minister de la Barra by telephone from his residence a few squares away. He read the message to De la Barra.

In its original form, the statement contained several sentences considerably more peremptory and less diplomatic in tone than the rest of the document. De la Barra suggested that some of these be eliminated and others modified. This was done, with the President's concurrence. It was close to midnight when the statement was pronounced satisfactory and handed to the correspondent.

There is no question that the Huerta "ultimatium" ordinarily would have gone to Washington through the usual diplomatic channel—that is, through the hands of Ambassador Wilson—attended with the customary official secrecy.

There are three explanations: First, that Huerta is tired of Ambassador Wilson, regards him as a "back number" and so does not feel obliged to deal with him in a crisis. Second, that Huerta wished to save the Ambassador the embarrassment of handling a "tough" document. Third, that the Ambassador himself sidestepped, being averse to getting himself any further implicated in troublesome situations.

Those who take the third view think the Ambassador got the first tip from President Huerta as to what was coming and discussed and probably approved the step that Huerta proposed to take.

The first three views finds the greatest number of believers here. It is regarded as the likeliest, in view of the strained relations that have existed between Ambassador Wilson and every Mexican administration since he came here.

Up to two days ago, Mexico was a supplicant requesting recognition of the Huerta administration, while the United States maintained an independent attitude, insisting that Mexico bind itself to do certain things as the price of recognition, the most vital being the appointment of an international commissioner to adjudicate the claims of foreigners for damages sustained through the revolution.

Washington Must Move Next.

Now, by virtue of Huerta's emphatic statement that Mexico will take up no diplomatic questions unless Washington grants recognition, the tables are turned. He has put the next move squarely up to Washington.

400 DIE IN BATTLE; HUERTA'S TROOPS FLEE FROM REBELS

Federals Driven Into Guaymas by Insurgents, Who Begin Attack on the Town.

By Associated Press.

NOGALES, Ariz., May 10.—After an estimated loss of 400 men on both sides, in fighting, which lasted from 3 o'clock yesterday morning until nightfall, 2500 Federals were driven back into Guaymas, the California Gulf port, by 3000 insurgent Sonora State troops. The Federals had trains ready at their rear for the retreat. Heavy cannonading reported today from Ortiz, the State troop base, indicating that the attack on Guaymas proper had begun.

The official insurgent report states that 150 Federal soldiers and 35 officers were captured and ten machine guns abandoned. Among the killed was Col. Martinez, chief of the Federal artillery. To assist in the actual attack on Guaymas, 250 cavalrymen are on the way from Agua Prieta, opposite Douglas, Ariz. All Sonora border towns are celebrating the victory.

Parral, Minign Center, Evacuated by the Federals.

EL PASO, Tex., May 10.—Parral, rich mining center of Southern Chihuahua state, is in the hands of Constitutionalists, the Federal garrison of 1500 evacuating unconditionally, according to the report of an American mining man reaching here on a motor cycle today.

After leaving Parral, the Federal column proceeded toward Chihuahua City, the State capital, where forces were mobilized two weeks ago. Gen. Pancho Villa, who has recruited 400 men in the Guerrera district, is hurrying overland to assist other groups of insurgents in cutting off the retreating Federals.

Official confirmation of the evacuation of Parral has been admitted by Gen. Rabago, commander of the northern military zone, with headquarters at Chihuahua City. It is explained that the Parral garrison was out of ammunition. Refugees report only slight fighting incident to the evacuation.

The taking of Parral by the insurgents places them in control of the branch line of the Mexican Central Railway running from Jiminez to the mining center, as well as practically all of the main line between Chihuahua City and Torreon, and much of the Mexico Northwestern Railway west of the State capital. The State capital and Juarez, the border town, are the only points of importance remaining in the hands of the Huerta Government.

NAVAL OFFICER'S FIANCEE CANNOT EXPLAIN SUICIDE

Death of Lieut. Richard Hill Is a Mystery to Those Closest to Him.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Broken hearted over the suicide of Lieut. Richard Hill, U. S. N., of Annapolis, Miss Henrietta Erwin, who was to have married him in November is in seclusion at the home of her uncle, Major Walter H. Gordon, U. S. A.

The news of the death of the young man was broken to Miss Erwin last evening by her mother, Mrs. James B. Erwin, who told by the Post-Dispatch correspondent of the suicide at the home of Major Gordon, where she and her daughter are visiting.

No light has been shed on the cause of the tragedy. Mrs. Erwin and daughter are greatly shocked over the news of the suicide. They say that there was no quarrel of any kind between the young people here, Wednesday. The navy department has had no intimation of anything that could have caused Lieut. Hill to have killed himself.

Strike at Mount Vernon Car Works.

MT. VERNON, Ill., May 10.—There is a strike among the punch shear men in the steel department of the car works on account of a cut in wages. If the strike is not brought to a speedy termination the entire plant, employing about 1500 hands, may be closed down, as much depends upon the output of the department whose men have quit.

Quinlan Jury Disagrees.

PATERSON, N. J., May 10.—The jury in the case of Patrick Quinlan, leader of the Industrial Workers of the World, indicted for inciting striking Paterson silk mill workers to riot, reported hopeless disagreement today and was discharged. The defendant will be released under bail pending a new trial.

SCHURZ'S MEMORY HONORED; TRIBUTE SENT BY WILSON

Monument to German Patriot Is Unveiled in New York Before Immense Throng.

NEW YORK, May 10.—With a parade of regular army soldiers, men of the National Guard, Grand Army veterans and many German societies, the monument to Carl Schurz, the great German patriot and American statesman and writer by adoption, was unveiled this afternoon.

In a letter regretting his inability to be here to speak, President Wilson wrote:

"One of the most gratifying elements of our nation's life is the part played by men born on the other side of the water, who have chosen America for their permanent home and who have caught the real spirit of our institutions and have lent themselves and all the fine force that is in them to patriotic service in the cause of liberty and justice. Such a man was Carl Schurz, and I am happy to unite with my fellow citizens in paying a tribute of the highest respect and admiration to his memory."

The monument is located at Morningside Drive and One Hundred and Sixteenth street. It has been elected from funds gathered by the Carl Schurz Memorial Society.

The sum of $23,000 was collected, and, in addition to the erection of the monument, the fund provided money for the publication of the letters and speeches of Schurz in book form, and a substantial balance was turned over to Hampton Institute in which Mr. Schurz was greatly interested during his lifetime.

Major-General John F. O'Ryan was grand marshal of the parade which preceded the unveiling ceremonies. The route was along Broadway from Seventy-Second street to One Hundred and Thirteenth street, and then East to Morningside Drive and the monument. Mayor Gaynor, who was one of the speakers at the dedication, reviewed the parade. The other speakers were Joseph H. Choate, Chairman of the Memorial Committee; Borough President McAney, representing the committee; Count von Bernstorff, German Ambassador; Prof. William H. Carpenter of Columbia and Congressman Richard Bartholdt of Missouri.

Among the civil war veterans who took part were Lieutenant-General Nelson A. Miles, Gen. P. J. Osterhaus, Gen. Horace Porter, Major-General Grenville M. Dodge, Gen. Adelbert Ames, Gen. James H. Wilson and Gen J. Grant Wilson, all of whom fought with Schurz during the civil war.

A great crowd witnessed the ceremonies. The speakers dwelt on the remarkable services performed by this man in his lifetime—from the time he was driven from his native land for his patriotism until his death after a lifetime of usefulness and devotion to the land of his adoption.

St. Louisans Send Telegrams to Joseph H. Choate.

A committee representing the Preetorius, Schurz and Daenzer Memorial Association of St. Louis sent a telegram Saturday to Joseph H. Choate, chairman of the Carl Schurz Memorial Committee of New York, expressing their appreciation of the life and deeds of Schurz.

The message was signed by Adolphus Busch, Dr. M. H. Starkloff, Charles Nagel, Ben Altheimer, Frederick W. Lehmann, William K. Bixby, F. Kolbenheyer, Charles Rebstock and Gustav Cramer, and reads: "We unite with you in paying tribute of respect and reverence to the life and work of Carl Schurz, whose memory St. Louis deeply cherishes in grateful affection and appreciation."

Negro Shoots Movie Villian.

BABY DEATH-RATE IN ST. LOUIS MUST BE BROUGHT DOWN

During Summer It Exceeds, Proportionately, That of New York, Chicago and Boston.

SAVE THE BABIES!
Twenty Dollars will save the life of one baby
by giving it
pure modified milk.
EVERY DOLLAR HELPS.

The baby death-rate in St. Louis, it is announced in the annual report of the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission, compares very favorably with that of New York, Chicago and Boston, save during the four hot summer months of June, July, August and September, when Death's toll of baby lives in this city is greater in proportion than in the other three cities just named.

The summer deaths should not be more than one-third of the year's total, the Pure Milk Commission's report points out, but even last summer, which showed the lowest baby death-rate recorded during the nine years of the Pure Milk Commission's existence, the baby death-rate in St. Louis was 37.44 per cent of the total infant mortality for the year.

This fact in itself constitutes a powerful argument for the ample financial support of the great summer work of saving the tenement babies. The St. Louis Pure Milk Commission has rendered noble service in this field, but the scope of its service can be vastly widened if the money necessary to its work is forthcoming.

The decrease in the baby death-rate in St. Louis already has been notable. Only six years ago, in 1907, the percentage of infant mortality occurring in St. Louis in summer was 45.36, last summer's percentage, therefore, being 7.92 less.

But the showing of the summer now soon to begin must be decreased below this point, if the St. Louis baby-saving record is to compare with that of New York, Chicago and Boston—and it should never again be permitted to rise above one-third of the total baby death-rate of the year.

Money Needed to Save the Babies.

The Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund is maintained by the Post-Dispatch readers to aid the splendid work of saving the lives of the tenement babies during the hot summer months, when these little ones of the poor live in the very Valley of the Shadow of Death by day and night.

If a total of $10,000 were reached by the fund, every dollar of that amount could be used to advantage in this life-saving work. Indeed, it must be said that much more than $10,000 is urgently needed if the work of saving the tenement babies is fully to be performed.

The number of pure milk stations should be increased, the clinics and instruction classes should be increased, the number of nurses visiting the babies' homes and teaching the babies' mothers how best to care for them and how best to keep the pure milk clean and wholesome for the babies' feeding, the distribution of free ice—all these things should be increased.

Just contemplate this one contrasted truth, for instance. The St. Louis Pure Milk Commission last summer was enabled to provide 950 babies with pure milk from its laboratory. New York City, during that same summer, had as many as 13,000 poor babies on its pure-milk feeding list at one time!

It is true that New York is a bigger city than St. Louis. But it's only about four times as big—not 13 2-3 times as big, as the baby-saving statistics might seem to indicate. Let's all realize the significance of the contrasted St. Louis and New York showing and then take a fresh hold and buckle down to the task of improving the St. Louis showing!

The Great Thyrsus Benefit.

Next Thursday evening Thyrsus, the dramatic society of Washington University, will give a performance of Jose Echegeray's gripping drama, "The World and His Wife," at the Victoria Theater, for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund to save the tenement babies. It will be a worthy performance for a worthy cause. If you attend it, you will enjoy it and help the tenement babies at the same time. The Victoria Theater should be crowded to the doors.

The play will be staged under the capable direction of Mr. Joseph Solari, thanks to whose excellent training Thyrsus has scored its most brilliant triumphs.

SAYS HE GOT BAD CHECK FOR GETTING FORGER OUT

Henry Cochems, Once Football Star, Causes Arrest of Friend of Paroled Man.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 10.—That a forged check was given to him in payment for obtaining a pardon for a forger, was the complaint made today by Attorney Henry Cochems, Bull Moose leader and former University of Wisconsin football star. He caused the arrest of August Dertz on a charge of giving to him a bogus check for $100.

Alvin Dentzlein was sentenced to the House of Correction two years ago for forgery. Cochems was his attorney. Dertz retained him, Cochems says, to try to obtain a pardon for Dentzlein. A parole was issued to him today.

Dertz paid the attorney with a $100 check, which he says he banked and learned was worthless.

MORE KNOWLEDGE WILL BE REQUIRED OF POSTMASTERS

Holders of Fourth-Class Offices Must Understand "Three R's" Under Civil Service.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Fourth-class postmasters must be able to read, to count accurately the money they receive, to measure the oil cloth on the floors of their offices and to write at least a decipherable letter once in a while to be taken under the wing of the civil service.

In effect they must have a reasonable understanding of "readin', 'ritin, and 'rithmetic," according to regulations issued today by the Postoffice Department.

To take the Civil Service examination a person must be a citizen of the United States over 21 years of age, and must reside in the community served by the office he aspires to fill.

No one will be eligible who is crazy, an ex-convict, who has been dishonorably discharged from the army or navy, or who is disposed even occasionally to reduce the visible supply of strong drink.

All examinations will be conducted by the Civil Service Commission, and will be not for appointment generally, but for a particular office. The eligibility for appointment after examination will be for one year only, except in special instances. The examinations will not be severe, but will be sufficient to test the business capacity of the applicants.

AMERICAN GIRL'S DEBUT IN COVENT GARDEN OPERA

LONDON, May 10.—A young American soprano, Miss Frances Roeder of New York, will make her debut at the Royal Covent Garden Opera House week after next, probably as Mussetta in "La Boheme."

Great expectations are entertained for her future on the operatic stage, as she is not only a brilliant vocalist of exceptional power and voice register, but is also an exceptionally fine actress.

Girl Kills Herself.

LAUREL, Miss., May 10.—Ruth Massey, 14-year-old daughter of Robert Massey, a prominent lumberman, borrowed her brother's revolver and went to the bank of a creek a short distance from her home to engage in target practice. A short time later she was found dead with the revolver beside her.

BOAT SINKS IN THE OKAW

Belleville and New Athens Men Narrowly Escape Drowning.

Dr. A. M. Kohl of Belleville and John Brenner of New Athens narrowly escaped drowning when a motor boat in which they were riding sank in the Okaw River, seven miles from New Athens, yesterday. The men had been to Queen's Lake on a fishing trip and were on their way home when the boat struck a snag in midstream which tore a hole in the keel two feet long.

The boat sank within three seconds, the occupants say, and they had to swim many yards to shore. There were no farmhouse near and they walked to New Athens.

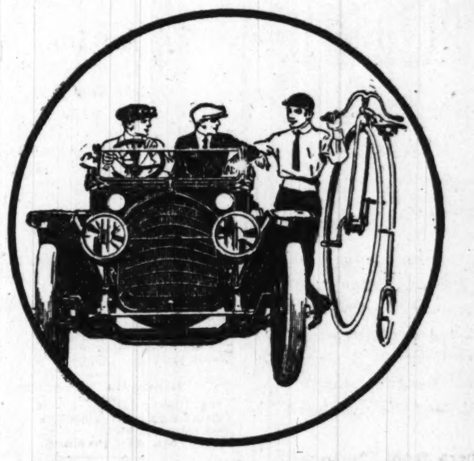
The Company Behind the Cross Country

Look up the rating given The Thomas B. Jeffery Company by the great national commercial agencies. You will find it is the highest that can possibly be given to any concern.



Forty years of manufacturing experience and the result of constant striving toward ideals of accuracy constitute the greatest asset of this company today.

Burns-Ramsden Motor Car Co., 5038 Delmar Ave., St. Louis, Mo., one of nearly five hundred distributing houses maintained by Cross Country dealers.

Rambler Motor Cars

Fifteen fundamental facts we offer in conclusion. These are the facts that every buyer must consider if he chooses wisely. Study them carefully and consider their meaning.

1 The 1913 Cross Country is the product of forty years of manufacturing experience.

2 The Jeffery Company has the highest financial rating that it is possible for the commercial agencies to give.

3 Capital three million dollars, all paid in, with a large surplus.

4 The Company is owned practically in its entirety by one man and is absolutely independent of any alliance with any other concern.

5 Every piece of equipment and every particle of real estate owned by this company is paid for in full and never has a bill been allowed to pass discount.

6 Ninety-six per cent of all parts are made in the Jeffery works.

7 Twenty-five thousand Rambler cars are on the road.

8 The Jeffery organization includes a factory manned by two thousand men, with a sales and service force including nearly five hundred branches and distributing dealers.

9 The factory ground area is one hundred and four acres and the floor area twenty-five acres.

10 Cross Country parts sell from one-half to two-thirds less than parts of other cars.

11 Fifteen employes of this company have been in its employ twenty years and over; fifteen from fifteen to twenty years and nearly all the rest from one to fifteen years.

12 The Jeffery Company was the first American company to adopt the demountable wheel, universally used abroad and now being imitated widely in this country.

13 The Jeffery service facilities in every part of the United States are under direct company supervision and are unexcelled.

14 The Jeffery organization is an organization of young men, who have built up a reputation for fair dealing which entitles them to expect to be in business for many years.

15 The Jeffery Company is notably conservative, valuing permanent success beyond temporary profit.

The Jeffery organization produces nothing but the Cross Country car. We cannot, in view of the facts enumerated above, do anything else but build it right.

A beautiful four-color reproduction of the Cross Country, from an oil painting by R. Philip Brainard, is ready for mailing. See the Cross Country by all means, at any Jeffery branch or dealer's display room, but send for the picture anyway.

BROWNS EVEN UP SCORE IN NINTH, BEATEN IN TENTH

Eddie Plank is Found for Three Runs, but Athletics Tally Two More In Extra Inning and Win, 8-6.

By Clarence F. Lloyd.

AFTER the Browns had rallied gamely in the ninth round and tied the score at six all, Pitchers Leverenz and Hamilton were unable to stop the Athletics in the tenth session and the Mackmen of Philadelphia pulled up winners, 8 to 6.

When hostilities began it was Dwight Stone, the tall young right-hander, against Eddie Plank, the veteran portsider of the visitors. Stone outpitched his older opponent in the earlier stages of the game, but some ragged fielding behind the Brownie and a questionable decision by Umpire Ferguson enabled the White Elephants to score three runs and tie up the count, 3—3, in the fifth inning.

The Elephants gathered three more, one at a time, in the sixth, eighth and ninth. Plank weakened in the home ninth and three runs were hammered in, evening it up again.

Browns Pull Double Steal.

Starting the home first, Shotton beat out a roller to Barry for a single and moved up on Johnston's sacrifice. Williams had two strikes and then waited for a pass. With Shotton, he pulled a double steal and when Baker let Catcher Lapp's throw get away from him, Shotton trotted home and Williams went to third. He scored also when Pratt dropped a Texas Leaguer in center. Pratt also pilfered second, but expired on the cushions when Brief lifted to Murphy and Austin rolled to Collins.

The Browns raised their total to three in the fourth when, with one gone, Brief bunted safely and raced around to third on Baker's overthrow. Austin singled and Brief scored.

[illegible] two hits had been made off [illegible] in the first four rounds. Start[illegible] the fifth, however, McInnis sin[illegible] over third, Austin making a [illegible]at stop and holding the blow to one bag.

Jimmy Walsh then rolled the ball towards second base. Dee Walsh, playing short because Bob Wallace has a bruised arm, played the ball badly. It seemed that he had a double play before him, but he permitted the ball to get through him for a single, on which McInnis raced to third. Then Stone lost control and Barry strolled.

Athletics' Secretary Admits Agnew's Throw Had McInnis Retired

EVEN a member of the Athletic's party agreed that Umpire Ferguson erred when he called "Stuffy" McInnis safe on Catcher Agnew's throw to Austin in the fifth inning. When Ferguson waved McInnis safe, Secretary Ohl of the Philadelphia team said:

"He was out if ever a man was out. Why, the throw had him beaten that far," and Ohl held his hands about 18 inches apart.

As Plank hit into a double play later, the Athletics would not have scored in the fifth instead of getting three runs and tying up the contest.

On the fourth ball McInnis had taken a big lead off third. Agnew pegged the ball to Austin, who fell on McInnis before he got back to the bag, but Umpire Ferguson waved him safe. That left the bases packed, and Lapp drew a pass, forcing McInnis over.

Plank's best was a roller to Pratt, who returned the ball to Agnew, forcing Jimmy Walsh at the plate. Agnew then passed it to Brief and Plank was doubled at first. That left men on second and third and they were scored on Murphy's single to center. Collins' triple and Baker's single broke the tie in the sixth.

In the eighth Collins led off with a pass. He got around to third on Baker's single, but was run down on McInnis' infield tap. A free ticket to Jimmy Walsh again filled the bases. Then the squeeze play was put into operation, Baker scoring while Stone and Brief retired Barry. McInnis also tried to sneak in, but was cut down on Brief's peg to Agnew.

With two gone in the eighth, Murphy beat out a roller down the first base line and went to second on Pratt's overthrow. Then Johnston misjudged Oldring's drive and it rolled to the fence for a double, on which Murphy scored. Johnston made a nice return and his peg to Austin got the Rube trying to stretch it to a triple.

Single by Wallace Ties Up Score; Austin Chased; May Be Suspended

STARTING the ninth, the Browns were three runs behind, and Plank hadn't allowed a run since the fourth inning. But he was wild and hit Austin. McAllester who went up for Dee Walsh, coaxed a pass. Then Agnew was also hit. That filled the bases. George Maisel went up for Stone, but struck out. The second demise came when McInnis leaped up in the air and pulled down Shotton's hopper, Austin scoring on the play. Wallace swung for Johnston, who had been unable to solve Plank's delivery, and poled the single to right that tallied Compton, who ran for McAllester, and Agnew.

Williams also singled and with Wallace moved up on a wild pitch, putting it up to Pratt. His best, however, was a lift to Walsh.

When the Browns took the field, Compton showed in left, Wallace at short and Walter Leverenz as the pitcher. Leverenz was wild and pitched three successive balls to Collins, the first batter. He was called in and Hamilton took the mound. This brought a protest from the Athletics and Leverenz was ordered back. He pitched a fourth ball to Collins and Ham went in.

Baker fouled off a couple and then singled to right, Collins racing to third. McInnis delivered the blow that really won the game, a single that scored Collins. Jimmy Walsh advanced them with a sacrifice and on the hit and run play, Baker scored while Austin and Brief retired Barry. Lapp struck out for the final death.

Jim Austin may join Stovall on the suspended list for a run in with Umpire O'Laughlin in the tenth inning. [illegible] had accepted one ball and had a questionable strike called on him. Turning to O'Loughlin, he said: "You're getting blind, Silk."

BROWNS' OWNERS BELIEVE STOVALL WILL BE RETAINED

Stockholders Meet, but Fail to Take Any Action Regarding Suspended Manager.

John E. Bruce, secretary of the National Baseball Commission and a stockholder in the Browns, hasn't become as fussed up over George Stovall's assault on Umpire Ferguson a week ago as has President B. B. Johnson of the American League, who intimates that Stovall may be dismissed as manager.

Mr. Bruce came here from Cincinnati along with C. J. McDiarmid, another stockholder, to attend a conference with President Johnson yesterday. Johnson was unable to call because of the illness in Chicago of Mrs. Johnson. So Stovall's fate will not be made known until Monday, when the American League head is expected to come here.

"It's a Part of Baseball."

"Stovall's offense is a part of baseball," said Mr. Bruce to the Post-Dispatch yesterday. "It's the same as the fight between the Cleveland and Boston players in Cleveland the other day, and the same as the assault of a spectator in the New York stand by Ty Cobb and the strike of the Detroit ball club as a result.

"I can't say that real drastic punishment will be dealt to Stovall for his crime. He did wrong of course, and deserves punishment. But I believe everything will come out all right.'

A meeting of the stockholders in the local American League club was held yesterday morning. It didn't last very long, as President Hedges is complaining of tooth trouble and was detained at his dentist's office.

After the meeting, he said there was nothing to announce. He induced Messrs. Bruce and McDiarmid to remain in St. Louis over Sunday. That probably means they will hold a prolonged session today to discuss Stovall's suspension and probable punishment.

Hedges Not Ready to Sell.

The fact that President Hedges of the Browns had called a meeting of his stockholders immediately following the Stovall incident gave rise to the report that he was again thinking of selling his club. According to a close friend of Hedges, however, he is no more willing to sell now than formerly. His answer to this question always brings the reply that he'll sell any time that he gets his price.

Will Back Up Stovall.

The directors plan to front for Stovall as much as possible, considering his offense. They are hopeful that he'll be reinstated at an early date after paying a fine.

The Jack O'Connor case, which is scheduled to go to trial Monday, took up most of the time of the stockholders, it is said.

CINCINNATI, May 10.—Manager Jack O'Connor of the St. Louis Federals made a few important changes in his lineup, and St. Louis submerged Covington, 16-7, this afternoon. O'Connor showed a new first sacker, Hohnhorst, formerly of the Cleveland Americans, and the big fellow performed pertly. The visitors collected 19 safe knocks and gleaned 16 runs out of the bevy.

St. Louis had very little trouble getting to Sanford and before he was taken out the visitors had batted him all over the lot, the slugging netting them 15 runs. He was replaced by Henning, who was able to finish the game, allowing but one run.

Fisher Relieves Frye.

Frye went good for the visitors until the fifth, when he was replaced by Fisher. Covington had men on bases many times, but were unable to get the runs across. The infield work of the locals was particularly bad, especially around short, and at this position Reggy was replaced by Yockey. He showed well for the time he played.

The hitting for the visitors was well divided, all members fattening up their averages to help across the rough places to come. St. Louis play here again Sunday. Score:

O. RELLER WINS TWO EVENTS, BUT CORNELL LOSES

St. Louis Boy Is First in 100 and 220-Yard Dashes in Dual Games With Crimson.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 10.—Although Oliver Reller of St. Louis, running in Cornell's colors, today won both the 100 and 220 yard dashes, his team mates yielded the dual games to Harvard, 63—54.

The Crimson's success was unexpected, Cornell having been the favorite since its victory over Michigan last Saturday.

A strong cross wind which blew into the stadium discouraged any attempt at record-breaking.

Cable Stars for Crimson.

Harvard's strength was in the field events, in which T. Cable gathered two first places, the broad jump and hammer throw. A. L. Jackson won both hurdle events. Cornell's runners gave the Ithacans the bulk of their points.

DONERAIL WINS KENTUCKY DERBY IN RECORD TIME

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 10.—A champion 3-year-old of America leaped into prominence today and the Churchill Downs Derby course record was broken before the largest crowd that ever witnessed a Derby here, when Donerail, a Kentucky colt, nipped Ten Point at the wire and won the thirty-ninth renewal of the Kentucky Derby. The winner, which has never shown startling ability as a 2-year-old, paid $184.90 for $2 in the pari-mutuel betting. The time was 2:04 4-5.

Eight starters faced the barrier, and spectators, who have witnessed runnings of the Derby for years, say it was one of the greatest exhibitions of a real horse race ever presented at a Kentucky Derby contest. In their belief that the West would win from the East in this premier turf event of America, Westerners had pinned their faith to Foundation, believing the Nasturtium colt to have the best chance to beat the top-heavy favorite, Ten Point, a L. Ste. Jack Point colt.

Ten Point Lead at Quarter.

When the horses passed the grand stand after running a quarter mile of the mile and a quarter course, Ten Point had been hustled into a short lead, with the others bunched closely behind him. At the turn Jockey Buxton had allowed his mount to take a commanding lead and at the mile Ten Point was three lengths ahead, with the others fighting hard and with about even chances.

As they rounded the last turn Jockey Goose began to force Donrail ahead and started after the leader. Whether a more determined ride by Jockey Buxton on Ten Point, would have stalled the fast coming Donerail was questioned, but the Kentucky colt steadily wore down the favorite in the stretch and just got up in the last three strides to win by a length. Gowell, a filly sired by Ort Wells, was third, and Foundation, second choice in the betting, and Pride of Kentuckians, finished out of the money.

Free Field Is Crowded.

Anyone who wants to see the Kentucky Derby may do so free of charge as far as the Jockey Club management is concerned and never before had the "free field" been so popular. Early in the day country folk came from near and far, spread their lunch and waited for the Derby. On the other side of the track grandstand and betting shed was crowded.

Donerail is by McGee out of Algie M. and is owned and trained by T. F. Hayes. Other starters were Lord Marshall, Jimmie Gill, Yankee Notions and Leo Chares.

The prices were Donerail, $184.90; $41.20 and $13.20.

Ten Point, $3.50 and $3.30.

Gowell, $14.10.

YALE WINS FROM PENN ON ERRORS IN 14TH, 4--2

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—By defeating the University of Pennsylvania baseball nine 4 to 2 today in a nerve-racking 14-inning struggle, Yale added another victory to her long string, the total now being 13 straight. Had Capt. Imlay of the Red and Blue been given proper support, however, the contest would have been a regulation nine-inning affair with a 1 to 0 shutout to his credit.

Pennsylvania scored in the second inning, but Yale tied the score in the sixth inning. In the fourteenth Imlay weakened and hit two men. Added to this, Pumpelly's single, a wild pitch and Minds' error allowed three runs to come in. Pennsylvania's best efforts to overcome the lead resulted in only one run. Score:

A Low Throw by Whitted Lets In Only Boston Run, While Squeeze Play Scores for Huggins' Team.

By Eddie O'Brien,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, May 10.

DARKNESS put an end to a desperate battle between the Cardinals and Braves this afternoon in the twelfth inning, when the score stood 1—1. A stubborn pitching duel between George Tyler, the Braves' southpaw, and Polly Perritt, who was helped by Harry Sallee, of the Cards, kept the fans on the qui vive for three hours, but finally the populace was turned out without a decision being rendered.

Only a bad throw by George Whitted, who is showing on third in lieu of Mowrey for Huggins' team, deprived the Cards of a brilliant victory. Whitted's costly error came in the fifth inning. One gone, Whaling walked. So did Tyler, Maranville tapped to Whitted, who passed to Huggins to head off Tyler. Hug dropped the ball, but when Whaling tried to score he was out at the plate, Hug to McLean. Tyler took third and Maranville second on the play. Then Myers rolled to Whitted who made a low throw to Koney, Tyler scoring.

Squeeze Play Saves Cards.

This lone run forced the game to a deadlock as the Cards could do no better than tie the count in the sixth. McLean singled and was forced by Perritt in this round. Perritt advanced on a balk and went to third on Whaling's wild throw to catch him naping. Then the squeeze play went through, Perritt scoring on Hug's perfect bunt towards first.

Today's game ended not only the most prosperous week the Braves have had in years, but it also was the fourth extra inning game on the Braves' field this week. Brooklyn and Boston battled 10 innings on Monday, and during the series which ended yesterday with the Pirates two of the contests went more than nine innings. Today's game was only a tie score, Boston winning the others.

Perritt was hit but seven times, but on the other hand Tyler passed more men than the Cardinal recruit. He allowed but five hits and was unhittable in the pinches.

PROBABLE PITCHERS FOR TODAY'S GAMES

Washington at St. Louis—Baumgardner or Leverenz vs. Hughes.

Philadelphia at Chicago—Brown vs. Cicotte or Lange.

Boston at Detroit—Wood or Collins vs. Mullin.

New York at Cleveland—Keating vs. Falkenberg.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

No games scheduled in East on Sunday.

The weather was the most severe for baseball that has struck Boston this season. The wind was very high and players and spectators alike were chilled to the bone. If weather conditions had been perfect there would have probably been a record-breaking crowd on hand, as the locals' work the past week has been phenomenal.

Maranville, known as "the rabbit," was easily the star of the game. He handled all kinds of batted balls to his left and right and had not a single slip-up. His stops off Huggins and Oakes over second were of the most sensational kind and his capture of Oakes' Texas leaguer to center in the seventh was a pretty play.

Koney fielded splendidly, having a clean slate in the field, and though failing to hit safely, he was purposely passed in the ninth, when Magee had received a pass and stolen second.

Sallee, who relieved Perritt in the tenth, after the latter had been taken out to let Mowrey hit for him, struck out the entire Boston side and also the first man up in the eleventh. The following two men, Devlin and Rariden, both hit line drives to right and left, but they were straight at the fielders.

McLean Gleans Three of Five Hits Off Southpaw Tyler, Koney Off Stride

But five hits were made off the Boston southpaw in the 12 sessions, and of these three were made by Larry McLean, the big catcher driving out singles in the third and sixth innings, and getting in a two-bagger after two were out in the last inning. He retired from the game after reaching second, Wingo being sent in to run for him and finding struggle was brought to a close.

Perritt Lacked Control.

Opposed to Tyler in the first part of the game was Perritt, a right-hander with all kinds of smoke, but with rather poor control. But he had the Braves hitting at bad ones all the way through, so the latter defect amounted to but litle. He was batted safely in seven of the nine innings he pitched, but at no time were the Braves able to bunch their hits, and none were more than of single base value.

Tyler started the game by walking Huggins, but the St. Louis manager was forced by Magee and the latter was caught off first and run down, two plays most fortunate for the Braves, as Whitted followed a few moments later with the first Cardinal hit of the day. He could not get beyond first base as Tyler steamed up and easily fanned Konetchy.

Balk Helps Cardinals.

About the only difference between the Boston and the St. Louis tallies was that a balk entered into the making of the latter, while the former resulted entirely from fielding blunders.

Stallings had both Rudolph and Tyler warming up before the game, but finally chose the latter. The wisdom of his selection became apparent long before the grueling struggle was brought to a close.

Kansas Easily Defeats Nebraska.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 10.—On a field of mud and with a slight drizzle of rain, the track team of Kansas University won from Nebraska today 73 to 36. With the exception of the 440-yard dash, which Zumwinkle won with ease, Kansas captured all the events. Nebraska was proficient in the jumping, shot put, discus throw and pole vault; but even in these was hardly up to her standard.

TIGERS DEFEAT AGGIES

Nicholson Wins Three Events, but Is Tied for Individual Honors by Gates.

By Rex Magee.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 10.—Missouri defeated the Kansas Agricultural College in a dual track and field meet today, 80 to 29. The day was cold with a drizzle and the track was slightly heavy at the pole.

The Aggies led off by a first in the 100-yard dash, but Missouri soon had everything her way. The visitors did not enter men in the high hurdles and the broad jump.

The meet was more the Missouri Tigers against Gates and three other Aggies. Only four visitors figured in points. Gates tied with Capt. Nicholson, a St. Louis boy, of Missouri, for individual honors, each annexing 15 points.

Tosses Weight in Overalls.

Thatcher, Missouri's weight man, hurled the discus, dressed in overalls and a sweater instead of a track suit, yet he ranned next with 13 individual points.

Guy Kirksey, a St. Louis boy, gathered 11 points.

Terry of Missouri ran a beautiful race in the two-mile. By a steady pace he kept a few feet in the lead of Collins of the Aggies, until the last lap, then the plucky little Tiger let out and forged ahead to the straightway, where he finished by a spectacular sprint and plenty of yards to spare. Groves, the Tiger football man, turned the surprise of the day when he beat Shepard, of Missouri for second in the high hurdles.

Pole vault—Talbot, Missouri, and Floyd, Kansas Agricultural, tied. Height, 10 feet 8 inches.

High hurdles—Nicholson, Missouri, first; Groves, Missouri, second.

Mile run—Hutto, K. A. C., first; Wickham, Missouri, second. Time, 4m. 40 1-10s.

Walter Johnson Has Won Six Outings This Year; Falkenberg Ranks Next

Walter Johnson, the fireball king of the Nationals, and Cy Falkenberg, the "comeback" kid of the Naps, are having a close tilt for pitching honors in the American League. The Washington wonder is in the lead with six victories in as many games played. Falkenberg has won his five outs.

Earl Hamilton, the Brown's left-hander, had won three successive outs up to Thursday when he was trimmed by the Mackmen. The figures including Wednesday's games:

CALIFORNIA RUNNER PUTS UP 110-METER RECORD

BERKLEY, Cal., May 10.—A new American inter-collegiate record in the 110-meter hurdles was set here today by Fred Kelly of the University of Southern California in the annual Pacific Coast conference meet. His time of 15s. flat, ties the world's record made by Forrest Smithson, the former Olympic champion, and bettered by 1-5 of a second, the mark set in 1908 by A. B. Shaw of Dartmouth.

C. W. MANSUR WINS GOLF TOURNEY AT GLEN ECHO

In a handicap sweepstake tournament, medal play against blind bogey, C. W. Mansur yesterday at Glen Echo won first place with a gross score of 84. He had a handicap of seven strokes, bringing his net total to 77. A. H. Hitchgins turned a card of 93 and, aided by a 16-stroke handicap, tied Mansur's mark. Dr. E. H. High with an 89 less 12, also got 77. T. Carter Jr., with an 82, had the best gross of the day.

MAGEE AND OAKES SHINE

Outfielders Are Both in Charmed Circle According to Latest Swatting Figures.

Latest figures on the National League batting scramble divulge the interesting fact that a Cardinal substitute outfielder is far out in front of the mad procession. Teddy Cather, who shows in right field for Huggins only when the enemy nominates a southpaw, has a batting average of .605. Harry Sallee, the portside curver, is next in order, with .400.

The improved sticking of Oakes and Lee Magee is one big reason why the Cards are hobnobbing with the elite. Oakes has a mark of .315, while Magee measures up to .310. Steve Evans, usually a harsh hitter in the spring, hasn't played in many games, and his batting average is low. The figures, including Wednesday's game:

CUBS CELEBRATE EVERS' DAY BY BEATING GIANTS

NEW YORK, May 10.—Chicago defeated New York 2 to 1 today. Both Demaree and Cheney pitched fine games. Only three hits were made off the New York youngster, but he was poorly supported.

The Cubs scored in the sixth on a scratch hit by Evers, a muff at second by Fletcher, Phelan's sacrifice hit and Saier's sacrifice fly. The Giants tied in the seventh on singles by Fletcher, Doyle and Herzog, though the locals would have retired without a run but for a muff at second by Evers. Evers then drove home the winning run with a triple in the eighth, after Miller reached second on a bad throw by Herzog.

It was Johnny Evers' day at the Polo Grounds, about 500 citizens of Troy being present to welcome Chicago's new manager to New York. They paraded the field with a band before the game. Evers was presented with a silver loving cup, a cane and several floral pieces. The biggest crowd of the season in New York saw the game. Score:

CAPT. KUH LEADS MAROON RUNNERS TO EASY VICTORY

CHICAGO, May 10.—Capt. Kuh led his University of Chicago athletes to 75—45 victory over Northwestern at Marshall Field today. His work in winning three firsts was the feature of the meet. Parker was also a good point winner for Chicago.

It was the first time the new track and field at the midway had been used, but the marks made today will be "track records" probably for a very short time, because they were not up to standard.

OLSON AND NUNAMAKER EXPLAIN FIGHT TO BAN B.

CLEVELAND, O., May 10.—President Johnson of the American League will soon have in his possession the letters of Third Baseman Olson of Cleveland and Catcher Nunemaker of Boston describing the fight between the Boston and Cleveland players here after last Wednesday's game. They were mailed today, both players minimizing the importance of the affair.

NATIONALS' FIREBALL KING HAS PITCHED 52 2-3 SCORELESS INNINGS

WALTER JOHNSON

ALTHOUGH Walter Johnson, by blanking the White Sox, 1—0, yesterday, ran up a total of 52⅔ consecutive scoreless innings pitched, he did not set a new world's record, as many sharps thought.

True, he surpassed Jack Coombs' famous mark of 46 consecutive runless rounds, made in 1911, but, digging in the archives, statisticians have found that in 1904 Doc White of the Sox went 56 innings without yielding a run. Johnson, who is in St. Louis today, needs only four more innings of shut-out ball to surpass records for all time.

It is pertinent to remark, though that Doc White's great string of runless innings was broken by the Browns back in 1904 and that Johnson will next attempt to add to his string in a game against these same Browns. A year ago Johnson's winning streak—when he was after Marquard's record—was smashed by the Browns at Sportsman's Park.

Johnson now is only 3 1-3 innings shy of the major league record of runless rounds. The complete figures of the respective marks of Johnson and White follow.

White's 1904 Record.

Aug. 23.—Against New York, 1 inning.
Sept. 5.—Against Detroit, 9 innings.
Sept. 12.—Against Cleveland, 9 innings.
Sept. 16.—Against St. Louis, 9 innings.
Sept. 19.—Against Detroit, 9 innings.
Sept. 25.—Against Philadelphia, 9 innings.
Sept. 30.—Against New York, 9 innings.
Oct. 7.—Against St. Louis, 1 inning.
Total—56 innings.

On Aug. 23, New York defeated White, but did not score in it's last inning. On Oct. 7 St. Louis broke his shut-out record by scoring in the second inning.

Johnson's 1913 Record.

April 10.—Against New York, 8 innings.
April 19.—Against New York, 9 innings.
April 23.—Against Boston, 9 innings.
April 25.—Against Boston, 1 inning.
April 30.—Against Philadelphia, 9 innings.
May 3.—Against Boston, 2 2-3 innings.
May 5.—Against Boston, 5 innings.
May 10.—Against Chicago, 9 innings.
Total—52 2-3 innings.

On April 10 New York scored on Johnson in the first inning on a hit by pitched ball, a fumble by Gandil and a single. Johnson's next opponeet will be the team which broke White's string.

WORLD'S NO-RUN MARK IS HELD BY WILHELM

WHILE Doc White of the White Sox is recognized as holding the major league record of 56 innings pitched without being scored upon, the world's record for such performance is held by Irving Wilhelm of the Rochester (International League) team. Wilhelm made this record in 1907 while with the Birmingham team of the Southern League. He was not scored upon by his opponents for 59 successive innings.

PHILLIES HAND PIRATES SIXTH STRAIGHT DEFEAT

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—Pittsburg sustained its fifth straight defeat on its Eastern trip when Philadelphia won today's game, 6 to 0. Rixey made his season's debut and was hit for eight singles in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings, but the visitors were unable to score. Seaton took Rixey's place with one out in the eighth and the bases filled.

The home team hit Hendrix hard in the first two innings, scoring three runs. O'Toole took Hendrix's place in the eighth and gave two passes. Ferry then went to the rubber and two sacrifices, a pass, Doolan's double and a wild pitch tallied three more runs. Score:

COBB DONS SUIT IN 6TH, BUT FAILS TO SAVE GAME

DETROIT, Mich., May 10.—In a thrilling 10-inning game today, New York defeated Detriot in the final game of the series, 10 to 9. Ty Cobb's secrifice fly in the ninth scoring Vitt, tied the count. Daniels brought in the winning run when Hartsell singled to center.

Cobb, whose eyes have been bothering him, was sitting on the Detroit bench in street clothes in the sixth inning, when his club began to forge toward victory. He donned a uniform and returned in time to bat for Louden in the ninth. He lifted a fly to Cree, who threw poorly to the plate and Vitt scored. Score:

DARTMOUTH BEATS PENN IN DUAL TRACK MEET

HANOVER, N. H., May 10.—Dartmouth defeated the University of Pennsylvania in the track meet here today by a score of 70½ to 46½.

Pennsylvania was successful in the dashes, Patterson winning the 100 and 200 yard events. Lippincott, the quarter mile, Madera the mile, and McCurdy the two mile. Braun of Dartmouth won both the hurdle events.

No records were broken but the time of the runs, especially the quarter mile in 50 2-5 seconds, was considered good against a strong wind and cold weather.

St. Louis Boy Clears 12 Feet 6 Inches in Pole Vault and Helps Team to Victory.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 10.—Yale nosed out Princeton, 60½ to 56½, in their annual track meet today. The high wind and cold weather made fast work impossible, but the meet was characterized by close races. Yale captured eight first places, as compared to five for Princeton.

Yale's greatest advantage lay in the field events, where she captured all but one first. The visitors took all three places in the hammer throw and the 120-yard hurdles. It was this latter event that proved the downfall of the Tigers. Bryan, Princeton's only representative to qualify for the final heat of the 120-yard hurdles, had the race well in hand and probably would have won, but he tripped at the last hurdles and fell.

Wagoner Saves Day.

Princeton captured the first two places in the broad jump. Yale had been conceded this event. Stickney of Princeton, ran a heady race in the mile and finished with a strong sprint.

Capt. Blewett Wagoner of Yale, a St. Louis boy, won the pole vault by clearing 12 feet 6 inches. He was virtually responsible for the Blue victory, as he annexed his event towards the close of the meet when Yale was being pushed hard. Fiske of Princeton gave Wagoner a keen argument.

100-yard dash—Won by Capt. Thomas, Princeton; Cornell, Yale, second; Rudell, Yale, third. Time, 10 3-5s.

120-yard hurdles—Won by Potter, Yale. Smith, Yale, second; Shaddon, Yale, third. Time, 16 4-5s.

220-yard hurdles—Won by Mason, Princeton; Potter, Yale, second; Bryan, Princeton, third. Time 27s.

220-yard dash, won by Cornell, Yale; Harland, Princeton, second; Thomas, Princeton, third. Time, 24 1-5s.

440-yard run—Won by Wilkie, Yale; Chaplin, Princeton, second; Wallace, Princeton, third. Time, 52 3-5s.

880-yard run—Won by Brown, Yale; McKenzie, Princeton, second; Cooley, Princeton, third. Time, 1m. 56s.

One mile run—Won by MacKenzie, Princeton; Curtis, Princeton, second; Smith, Yale, third. Time, 4m. 33s.

Two-mile run—Won by Stickney, Princeton; Morrison, Princeton, second; Lyman, Yale, third. Time, 10m. 3-5s.

Shotput—Won by Ross, Yale, 42 feet 5 inches; Longstrath, Princeton, second, 37 feet 5¾ inches; Baker, Yale, third, 37 feet 2¾ inches.

Pole vault—Won by Capt. Wagoner, Yale, with 12 feet 6 inches; Fiske, Princeton, with 12 feet 3 inches, second; Achilles, Yale, with 12 feet, third.

Hammer throw—Won by Talbot, Yale, with 138 feet 7½ inches; Pickett, Yale, with 135 feet 8¼ inches, second; Cooney, Yale, with 133 feet 8 inches, third.

Broad jump—Won by Benton, Princeton, with 21 feet 10 inches; Scudder, Princeton, with 21 feet 8½ inches, second; Matthews, Yale, with 21 feet, 8 inches, third.

High jump—Won by Douglas, Yale, with 5 feet 11¾ inches; Fox, Princeton, with 5 feet 10¾ inches, second; tie between Simons, Princeton, and Riggs, Yale, at 5 feet 6 inches, for third. This gave Yale 59½ points, which was half-point more than they needed to win.

SUPERBAS KEEP GOING AT EXPENSE OF REDS

BROOKLYN, May 10.—Six doubles, three triples and a home run were included in the 14 hits made by the Brooklyns off the Cincinnati pitchers today, the home team winning, 9 to 3.

Ragan pitched strongly and was splendidly supported after the first inning, when a wild throw by Miller let in two runs. Three fast double plays featured Brooklyn's fielding. Score:

JACKSON PASSED TO GET LAJOIE; RED SOX LOSE

CLEVELAND, O., May 10.—By taking today's game from Boston, 9 to 2, Cleveland won three out of four from the world's champions in the first series. The game was even until the sixth inning, when four hits, including Jackson's triple and an error, gave Cleveland six runs.

Speaker hit the first home run made at the local park this season in the first inning. In the fifth inning Jackson was purposely passed to get at Lajoie, the first time in many years such a thing has occurred. Lajoie hit to Wagner, whose toss to Yerkes was fumbled, two runs resulting. Score:

Walter Johnson Holds White Sox to Two Safeties

Washington Wonder Needs Four More Shutout Innings to Equal Doc White's Record.

CHICAGO, May 10.—Walter Johnson, the speedy pitcher of the Washington Club, added nine more innings to his record in holding his opponents runless by shutting out the local team today, 1 to 0. This gives him a total of 52 2-3 innings pitched, in which his opponents have been unable to score.

The record for runless innings is held by Doc. White, pitcher of the Chicago American League Club. White pitched 56 innings without allowing a score, nine years ago.

Johnson was opposed by Benz, and they gave a fine exhibition. The fielding behind Johnson, especially that of Moeller and Shanks, in the eighth inning, when Chicago had a man as far as third base with only one out, enabled Johnson to add to his record.

Johnson held the locals to two hits. The visitors made their one run in the fifth inning, when Shafer walked, Milan singled and Schaller dropped Laporte's long fly, allowing Schafer to score.

The day was the coldest of the season, but a very large crowd witnessed the game. Score:

TOUCHARD AND PELL LOSE IN FOUR STRAIGHT SETS

NEW YORK, May 10.—G. F. Touchard and T. R. Pell, candidates for places on the American international lawn tennis team, were beaten here today by W. M. Hall, paired with Haggett, the English professional, who replaced Karl Behr, in four straight sets at 6—3, 6—4, 6—3, 6—4. The day was cold and windy, which interfered with good play.

Before the trial match, the Australian players, who will meet the American team next month, held the courts, for the first time they have played here. S. N. Doust, captain of the team, paired with A. B. Jones, met Horace Rice and E. W. Hicks, the manager. They shifted a number of times playing singles, but no regular scores were kept.

EBBETS, IN BASEBALL 30 YEARS, TENDERED DINNER

NEW YORK, May 10.—Charles H. Ebbets of the Brooklyn National League Club celebrated his thirteenth year in professional baseball as an employe, secretary and club president, successively. He was the guest tonight at a dinner tendered him by citizens of Brooklyn. Plates were laid for 800.

Borough President Alfred E. Steers was the honorary toastmaster and the speakers included Supreme Court Justice Crane, the Rev. Dr. James M. Farrar, pastor of the First Reformed Church; John A. Heydler, secretary of the National League, and Chas. W. Murphy, president of the Chicago club.

HACKET AND LITTLE ARE WINNERS IN TENNIS GO

TUXEDO, N. Y., May 10.—H. H. Hackett and R. D. Little, together with N. W. Niles and A. S. Dabney, the Boston pair, were winners here today in the continuation of the Round Robin doubles.

The former pair, which is favored for a place on the American international team, defeated William A. Larned, former national champion, and R. D. Wrenn, at 13—11, 6—1, 6—4. Then the Bostonians defeated W. J. Clothier of Philadelphia and C. F. Watson Jr., at 10—12, 8—6, 6—3, 5—7, 6—3.

Jannus to Play Auto Polo.

The thrills of aviating not sufficing for Tony Jannus and Hugh Robinson, local birdmen, they're going in now for auto polo. A challenge to play this new sport was sent in and the Chicago team, one of the two teams now exhibiting at Priester's Park, has accepted it.

COLLINS PACES A. L. HIT-MAKERS WITH .460 MARK

SHOTTON LEADS BROWNS

Speeders Notch Is .328, While Pratt Is Struggling at .179.

Eddie Collins, the dashing second sacker of the Athletics, is showing the way for the American League batsmen. Participating in 17 games, he has put together the hefty average of .460. The only other performer in the .400 set is Olaf Henriksen of the Champion Red Sox, who in nine games is batting .438.

Joe Jackson, of the Naps, Tris Speaker of the Red Sox and Larry Lajoie of the Naps, loom up as Collins' most dangerous rivals. They are bunched in this fashion; Jackson .389, Speaker .388 and Lajoie .384.

Bert Shotton the speeder, is the Browns' leading hitter. He is out in front among the locals with a .328 mark, gathered in 20 games. In 22 games, Derrill Pratt has made only 15 hits for a .179 average. That's the reason the Browns haven't won more games.

The figures, including Wednesday's games:

Ames Runners Beat Iowa U.

AMES, Io., May 10.—Ames defeated the University of Iowa, 80 2-3 to 46 1-3, in the annual dual meet today. Shrader, star of the State university team, was declared eligible just before the meet started. He won two firsts.

Grinnell Easy for Drake.

DES MOINES, Io., May 10.—Drake University defeated Grinnell College in a dual track meet today, 76 1-3 to 49 2-3. Grinnell failed to score in two events, while, after the meet was won, Drake's men slowed down to save them for the meet with Iowa next Saturday.

Is A Wonder In the Blood

A Remedy That Has Shown a Most Remarkable Purifying Effect.

The word medicine is one of the most abused in our language. There are certain medicinal properties just as necessary to health as the food we eat. Take, for example, the well-known tonic medicine S. S. S. This famous blood purifier contains medicinal components just as vital and essential to healthy blood as the elements of wheat, roast beef, the fats and the sugars that make up our daily ration.

As a matter of fact, there is one ingredient in S. S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating each cellular part of the body to the healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. That is why it regenerates the blood supply; why it has such a tremendous influence in overcoming eczema, rash, pimples, and all skin afflictions.

And in regenerating the tissues S. S. S. has a rapid and positive antidotal effect upon those irritating influences that cause rheumatism, sore throat, weak eyes, falling hair, loss of weight, thin, pale cheeks, and that weariness of muscle and nerve that is generally experienced as spring fever. Get a bottle of S. S. S. at any drug store, and in a few days you will not only feel bright and energetic, but you will be the picture of new life. S. S. S. is prepared only in the laboratory of The Swift Specific Co., 127 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., who maintain a very efficient Medical Department, where all who have any blood disorder of a stubborn nature may write freely for advice and a special book of instruction. S. S. S. is sold everywhere by all drug stores, department and general stores.

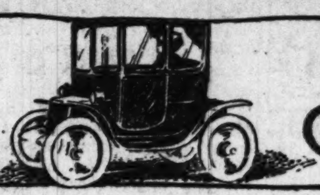
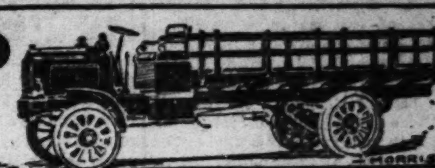
AUTOMOBILE NEWS.





CAR BOUGHT BY PHONE

An official of the Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation Co., which is building the great dam at Keokuk, Io., telephoned, long distance, Friday to the Halsey Automobile Co., that he wanted a Packard 30 pheaton, instanter, and two engineers of the company arrived in St. Louis Saturday morning and bodily "lifted" O. L. Halsey's private car. They started in it for Keokuk at 11 a. m. Saturday, expecting to reach there in nine hours, their standard running time.

The engineers of this company "beat the bush" in automobiles and run to East St. Louis much as an ordinary owner drives out to Union avenue. They drive into creek beds and over hideous roads, using high powered light cars for the service and get less than 1200 miles out of tires. They have 21 cars in their Keokuk garage and 10 of these are Packards.

ST. LOUISANS BUYING MANY AUTOMOBILES

Heavy sales of automobiles have been the rule during the past 30 days in St. Louis. The number of sales is almost unprecedented. It is confidently predicted by well posted automobile men that there will be 9000 cars on the streets of St. Louis by Jan. 1 next. Among the heavy sales reported are the following:

The General Motor Car Co., 3952 Olive street, reports the sale of 20 Hupmobiles last week, all delivered. Sales and deliveries were also made of three American cars, one coupe, one touring car and one "scout."

The De Luxe Automobile Co. sold last week Argo electric cars to Miss May Hager and Miss Clara Goodes and a Warren Six to Jackson Johnson, a Warren 35 to Hermann Stoffregen and another to Dorr & Zeller.

During the month of April, according to the report of Manager I. G. McNeice of the Cadillac Motor Car Co. of St. Louis, that company delivered 32 Cadillac cars in St. Louis and immediate vicinity.

During April the Rauch & Lang St. Louis company sold R. & L. electric cars to C. R. Chesboro, E. J. Marx, Prof. Jacob Mahler, Walter Marx, Mrs. Arthur Schaid, Adolph Singer, D. B. White and J. Singer and made deliveries.

E. C. Simmons, head of the Simmons Hardware Co., has just purchased a Big Six Locomobile from the Locomobile Co. of Missouri. Little Sixes were sold to Lindell Gordon and C. A. Stocke.

Sales of Stanley steamers have recently been made by the South Side Automobile Co., to Tho. R. Apple and A. A. Phillips of Webster Groves and the American Bakery Co., the latter a 1500-pound delivery car.

USED CARS GO ABROAD

"What becomes of all the pins?" is no greater problem than "what becomes of all the second-hand automobiles?" It now develops that a vast number of used American automobiles are shipped to Europe, South America, India and other countries, where the craze for "the latest model" is not so strong. Officials of the Mitchell factory say that they receive many orders for parts of their cars which were built seven and eight years ago, from far distant countries, indicating that those cars were sold there second-hand and are still in use there.

CUT A RECORD 3 HOURS

J. A. Hutchason, president of the General Motor Car Co., 3958 Olive street, is advised of a new record made by a Hupmobile. On April 23 a Hupmobile "32" roadster, driven by E. W. Johnson of Fresno, Cal., cut three hours and five minutes off the record for the valley route between Los Angeles and San Francisco. Johnson drove the little car through in the remarkable time of 14 hours flat, averaging approximately 40 miles per hour. The best previous record for the trip, which has been essayed for record purposes by virtually every car sold on the Pacific Coast, was 17 hours and five minutes. This record, which stood for more than two years, was made by a much larger car than the Hupmobile.

According to the San Francisco papers, which make much of the achievement of the Hupmobile, Mr. Johnson says that the record was due entirely to a perfect freedom from mechanical difficulties. The only stop on the way was due to a spark plug wire jarring loose and this was fastened again in five seconds.

Many swollen streams were encountered between Los Angeles and Bakersfield and these were forded on the high. The maximum speed attained on the trip was 57 miles per hour. Mr. Johnson figured to hold his average at 40, but when conditions made it necessary to slow up he made it up on the next good stretch of road.

CAR TO SELL UNDER $400

Something new has happened in the Indianapolis automobile manufacturing world. This one is a "cyclecar," patterned after similar vehicles in Europe. This is a two-cylinder car with a seat in front for the driver and one behind him for a passenger. It looks and acts like an automobile and will sell for under $400 and will make 40 miles to the gallon of gasoline, with 8-10 horse-power motor. Another type of body is for delivery purposes. The car can be geared to 65 miles an hour. It has wire wheels and 106-inch wheel base and 28-inch wheels. The motor will start from the seat and has gasoline in a cowl tank and a single headlight, mounted over the pivoted front axle. The manufacturer will be the Economy Car Co., Indianapolis.

Comfort Plus—

This superb car is, first of all, a thing of absolute comfort, as easy to ride in as the finest upholstery, long easy springs and proper balance can make it.

More than that, it is reliable, durable,—undaunted by the most abominable going—these are vital to your safety.

An Unapproached Reliability Record

For three years this car of comfort has won the stiffest of all Try-out Tours — the Classic Chicago Reliability Run — 1910, 1911, 1912.

The last was a tour around Lake Michigan which led for miles through a rocky wilderness. This was covered with a perfect score—not a penalty!

Then, too, the Moline won the trophy for its class in the Glidden Tour of 1910 which was run through the swamps of the south and the gumbo of the west, with less total penalties than any car of any class.

Such is the record this sturdy car bears—a wonderful reliability record.

In the hands of the individual owners it holds the world's record for perfect reliability. We ask for an opportunity to demonstrate to you.

THIRTY-ONE CARS ENTER WORLD'S GREATEST RACE

Dare Devil Drivers to Compete in 500-Mile Grind May 30 at Indianapolis Speedway.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 10.—The entry lists for the third annual 500-mile International Sweepstakes Race, which will be held at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, May 30 have closed, and 31 cars, representative of the best the United States and Europe have to offer, are now registered for this event. The entries to date, with the drivers, are as follows: Stutz, Anderson, driver, Stutz, Merz, driver; Nyberg, H. Endicott, driver; Keeton, Burman, driver; Mason, Evans, driver; Mason, Tower, driver; Unknown, driver not nominated; Stutz, Herr, driver; Sunbeam (English), Guyot, driver; Henderson, Knipper, driver; Fox special, Wilcox, driver; Smada, Adams, driver; Peugeot (French), Goux, driver; Peugeot (French), Zucarrelli, driver; Amel, Liesaw, driver; Schacht, Jenkins, driver; Mercer, De Palma, driver; Mercer, Bragg, driver; Mercer, Wishrat, driver; Mercedes-Knight (German), Pilette, driver; Special-Knight, Pennebaker, driver; Tulsa, Clark, driver; Mercedes (German), Mulford, driver; Isotta (Italian), Grant, driver; Isotta (Italian), Tetzlaff, driver; Isotta (Italian), driver not nominated; Case, Disbrow, driver; Case, B. Endicott, driver; Case, Nikrent, driver; unknown, driver not nominated; Mason, Haupt, driver.

Greatest Race in History.

This list of entries is proof of the fact that racing interest is steadily growing, and that this year's event will be the greatest speed contest ever held at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, if not in the world. Seven more cars are entered this year than were entered last, and 12 more will line up for the Indianapolis race than will participate in the French Grand Prix, which is the greatest race held in Europe.

The fact that the Indianapolis Motor Speedway has steadily gained in popularity until today it is the center of the world's motor races is probably the reason why the European races have lost much of their luster, while the manufacturers and drivers have turned their eyes towards America. All of the foreign cars entered for the Indianapolis race have been Grand Prix favorites, and the drivers who are coming to this country rank as the best in Europe

Track Scene of Activity.

The speedway now presents a scene of activity which has the real race time flavor. Every day a new team is added to the drivers' colony, and the test cars of local automobile factories, which usually do their testing on the big track, have been ruled off in favor of the racers. Race spirit is rift, and hundreds of people go to the speedway every day to see the speed monsters in action. The preliminary battle of cylinders, while lacking in the fierceness of the real contest, is extremely interesting, and much depends upon the practice the teams get prior to the race. The track is now in perfect condition, and every pilot feels sure that he will be able to lower all previous speedway records this year.

The prize money for the winner of the 500-mile race is divided into 10 prizes, the first being $20,000.

The Two Previous Races.

Following are the cars that finished in the first 500-mile race in 1911, in order as they finished: Marmon, Lozier, Fiat, Mercedes, Marmon, Simplex, National, Amplex, Knox, Jackson, Stutz and Mercer. There were 28 other cars entered, but only the first 12 were counted.

Last year—1912—the cars that finished and the order in which they crossed the tape at the conclusion of 500 miles of running were: National, Fiat, Mercer, Stutz, Schacht, Stutz, White, Lozier, National, Knox. Only the first 10 were counted last year.

BIG COAST ROAD RACE

The big Los Angeles-San Francisco road race is scheduled for July 4. Many entries have already been made. The prize money is attractively large in amount. Barney Oldfield will drive a Mercer and Omar Toft a Simplex. The other entries are two Cadillacs, a Cole and Apperson and two Simplex cars.

REGAL FACTORY EXPANDS

Another big expansion in the Regal Motor Car Co. has just been effected through an increase in capitalization from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000. Of this sum $2,600,000 has been subscribed and paid in, leaving a balance of $40, to be used at any time thought necessary in the extension of the company's activities.

The men who organzed the Regal back in 1907 and fostered it until a foreign trade, ranking second among American car manufacturers, has been developed, remain in active control of the company. The Board of Directors includes Charles R. Lambert, John Lambert, Bert Lambert, Fred W. Haines and Harold H. Emmons. Mr. Haines, who has been general manager of the company since its organization, was elected president and general manager.

The Regal has been received with great favor in England, where it is familiary called the "R. M. C." on account of the association of the trademark with royalty. More than 1000 Regal underslungs will be shipped to Great Britain this year. A chain of agencies encircling the globe was completed last summer. Regals are now sold in Johannesburg, Australia, New Zealand, Hongkong, St. Petersburg, Tokio, Calcutta, Borneo and other out-of-the-way places.

AUTO DEALERS TO DINE

The first of the series of monthly dinners to be given by the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers Association, will be held at the Jefferson Hotel Tuesday night, at 6:30. There will be addresses by several men of importance in the trade and by C. Porter Johnson, a well-known local attorney. These dinners will be a regular feature of the association's business in future, one each month, and they will be conducted along serious lines for the intimate discussion of trade topics. The dinner committee is Joseph A. Schlecht, Jackson agent, and W. C. Anderson of the Ford Motor Co. President Samuel Breadon, Pierce Arrow agent, will preside. The board of directors of the association will meet 30 minutes before the dinner.

NO LET-UP ON THE ALCO

NEW YORK, May 10.—Leigh Best, vice-president of the American Locomotive Co., today issued the following statement: "In view of conjectures now current because we have not before announced our plans for this season, I desire to state that we have never entertained the idea of discontinuing the manufacture of Alco motor trucks, motor cars and taxicabs. Quite to the contrary, we have started a vigorous campaign and intend to go after this business stronger than ever.

"As far as possible, we plan to segregate the automobile department from other branches of the American Locomotive Co., placing the manufacture and sales distribution of Alco motor trucks, cars and taxicabs under a separate organization, with the backing of the American Locomotive Co."

AUTO NEWS AND GOSSIP

W. Ashley Gray, who for a number of years has been connected with the Dorris Motor Car Co., has joined the sales force of the Lindsay Motor Car Co., who are local agents for the Premier, Page-Detroit and Fiat line of cars. Mr. Gray, who is one of the best posted automobile men in St. Louis will give his attention to selling the Premier Six.

Manager Edwards of the J. M. Shock Absorber Co., 3131 Locust street, has found a large demand for the J. M. Shock absorber developed because of the opening of spring when trips into the country over country roads begin to be thought about this absorber eliminates the "thank-y-mam."

Albert Stern, agent for the Great Western and the K-r-i-t lines of cars, has removed his sales rooms to 4376 Olive street.

Thomas Clements, vice-president of the Woods Motor Vehicle Co., Chicago, manufacturers of the Woods electric car, was in St. Louis last week in conference with local manager Ralph Doak with a view to increasing the local sales of this car.

LIMOUSINE TOUR NEW FAD

Limousine tours constitute a new motoring fad which has been inaugurated for the first time in America by Nat Goodwin, the actor, who is known in every section of the United States. While Europeans have toured in their enclosed town cars or limousines, the idea is comparatively new to this country. Goodwin, at Los Angeles, Cal., purchased a large six-cylinder Hudson limousine, beautifully appointed, for the purpose of touring Southern California.

With several members of his theatrical company he will do the unusual thing in motoring by traversing the roads of Southern California and seeing the scenic attractions to be found in that section in a town car.

The car he selected to do his touring in is very large and comfortably seats seven people. It is a very powerful automobile and is luxuriously fitted. It has a full complement of dome lights and is upholstered in imported broadcloth.

ELWOOD'S RECORD RUN

To meet the urgent demand for more commodious salesrooms the Locomobile Co. of Missouri has leased the building next east of its present location, 3033 Locust street, and will in a couple of weeks have the two joined into a handsome salesroom and service depot. Manager A. L. Elwood of the company last week made what he maintains is the record for time between Bonne Terre and St. Louis. The run from the outskirts of Bonne Terre to Carondelet was made in one hour and 45 minutes running time.

AGENTS FOR ALLEN CAR

The agency for the Allen car has been placed for the St. Louis trade territory with the Mound City Buggy Co. of which Joseph A. Schlecht is president. This company also handles the Jackson car. The Allen is built by the Allen Motor Car Co., Fostoria, O., and sells, fully equipped for $1350. The equipment includes electric starter and lighting plant, 3¼x5 inch stroke and bore, left drive and center control, 34x4 inch tires, demountable rims, 112-inch wheel base, 36-horse power motor.

TO SELL CHANDLER SIX

Announcement is made of the placing of the agency for St. Louis and territory for the Chandler Six with the Overland Automobile Co., 3210 Locust street., St. Louis. This car is built in Cleveland by the Chandler Motor Car Co., of which C. A. Emise, F. C. Chandler and other top notch automobile men are the moving spirits. With every item of equipment which a high-class car should have, the handler is to sell at $1785.

MOONS GO TO AUSTRALIA

American manufacturers have been favored with a large part of the Australian business and the Moon Motor Car Co. has just closed an agency with a large dealer in Melbourne, who will distribute Moon cars throughout Australia. They are making their first shipment of cars this week, and Mr. McDonald, vice-president, states they will probably ship 200 cars to Australia during the 1914 season.

MORE GAINS IN AUTO WANTS

Last month the Post-Dispatch gained nearly 400—391 to be exact—automobile wants, as compared with the same month a year ago.

The Post-Dispatch April count was 1646 separate automobile wants, or 79 more than were printed by THREE of its four competitors COMBINED.

This Post-Dispatch record is almost TWICE the number printed by the two other St. Louis evening newspapers, with their combined total of 845.

In this, as in all other classes of want ads, results determine the medium and St. Louisans know the result medium.

ACCESSORY MEN TO MEET

The next regular meeting of the Motor Accessory Trade Association of St. Louis will be held at the Marquette Hotel, Wednesday evening, May 21, following a dinner at which a large number of guests are expected to sit down. The occasion will be the nomination of officers to serve for the ensuing year. The election will occur one month later, or at the June meeting.

Several candidates for president are in the field, under the grooming of their friends. The association has grown in importance within a year and its membership has nearly doubled; there being now 72 firms on the roster. Those who are being advanced for president are Allen Clark of the Vehicle Top and Supply Co., John M. Shuford of the Continental Motor Co. and Bart S. Adams and it is said that two or three others feel amply equipped to fill the position.

PERFECT SPRING BALANCE

The Locomobile Five Ton Truck is so balanced that when five tons are placed on it, the chassis is perfectly level. The springs have been designed to a nicety to carry their alloted load. When loaded the truck rides as smoothly as a touring car; far more smoothly than when running unloaded.

In many other ways the Locomobile Five Ton Truck has been constructed with perfect balance at all points. The frame is tapered toward both ends. The transmission box is hung in just the right place. The motor is placed just a certain distance back of the radiator, and the seat which is above the motor is placed just far enough forward to allow the body to be loaded with a nice balance.

BREAKING SALES RECORDS

In three of the four weeks of April, the Studebaker selling organization in the United States broke the sales record of the second week in June, 1912, in which the high mark of former history had been set. Complete returns for April will indicate the retail sale of over 5000 Studebaker cars, according to Assistant Sales Manager Philp.

COST $1.33 IN TWO YEARS

F. H. Fahrenkrog of the Kardell Motor Car Co., St. Louis, is advised that a Long Branch (N. J.) piano and sewing machine man, who does a lot of plowing through Jersey mud, has used a Reo Model H truck for two years, with a cost for repairs during that time of $1.33, all of which came in one week. This is almost the record for economy.

SMITH HEADS INDIANIANS

The resignation of C. B. Warren, president of the Indiana Automobile Manufacturers' Association, has been accepted by the Board of Directors and H. O. Smith of Indianapolis, president of the Premier Motor Manufacturing Co., a man of national importance in the automobile world, was elected as head of the organization which is making motor car history by its coming tour to the Pacific Coast and its boost of the rock highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Carl G. Fisher, the Indianapolis millionaire sportsman of Speedway and Prest-O-Lite fame and the originator of the plan of automobile manufacturers to build an all-the-year-round highway across America, was chosen as a member of the Board of Directors and R. P. Henderson, builder of Henderson cars, was selected as tour treasurer.

The tour of this association from Indianapolis to the Pacific Coast will pass through St. Louis, arriving here the evening of July 3. The tourists, 200 of them, will remain over night as the guests of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers Association and the Motor Accessory Trade Association.

PUNCTURE-PROOF TIRE

The Duplex Inner Tire Co., of which Stanton Palmer is general manager, will remove in a day or two to Compton avenue and Locust street, and will begin actively the manufacture of the Duplex inner tire. This part air, part filler tire, consists of an outer layer, next to the casing, of a resilient tire filler that cannot be punctured to damage it, and inside that is an ordinary air inner tube, which is inflated. This gives air resiliency and protection of three inches of "filler" against punctures. Leading St. Louis men are the stockholders in this new company.

CLUB DIRECTORS TO MEET

The Executive Committee of the Automobile Club of St. Louis will meet at the club headquarters, Planters Hotel, Fourth and Pine streets, Monday afternoon, May 12, at 12:30 o'clock, for the purpose of installing the newly elected officers and to plan the work of the club for the year.

The club will make an active membership campaign, with a view of increasing the membership to 2000 or more. Through the concentrated efforts of the members of the club, road improvements, suitable legislation and many other measures for the benefit of all automobilists have been brought about, and every automobile owner should support the movement by being a member of the organization. The dues are nominal and the benefits tenfold. The Missouri Tour Book and the Year Book of the club are of great value to any automobilist. The Year Book is now on the presses and will be in the hands of the members within a short time.

No-Rim-Cut Tires 10% Oversize

Oversize Means This

Ten per cent extra air capacity over hooked-base clincher tires.

It means the same as extra width, which costs you extra money. It means, on the average, 25 per cent more mileage.

No-Rim-Cut tires, with this 10 per cent oversize, cost no more than clinchers.

More Than 10%

The oversize of No-Rim-Cut tires is more than 10 per cent.

Actual comparison with six makes of clinchers shows the average oversize 16.7 per cent.

That means that you get in No-Rim-Cut tires about one-sixth more air capacity than you get in clinchers. And air is what carries the load.

You get this extra without extra cost. For No-Rim-Cut tires now cost the same as standard clincher tires.

Then Add This

You also get in this new type a tire that can't rim-cut. A clincher tire can and does.

Statistics show that 23 per cent of all clincher tires become rim-cut.

Those are the reasons why clincher tires must go. Men will not stand this rim-cut ruin when a new-type tire prevents it.

Men are bound to demand an oversize tire when they know what it adds to their tire mileage.

No-Rim-Cut tires now outsell all others. Their sales are doubling over and over.

When you know these tires, as legions do, you will never buy any others. Come let us show them to you.

United States Tires are good tires

One or two strong points can no more make a strong tire than a good carburetor or a good transmission can make a good car.

The ideal tire is a combination of all the desirable features it is possible to put into a tire.

United States Tires have gained the enviable reputation among the trade and among the men who know tires of being good tires in every respect.

These good qualities can be summed up in a single phrase—

They cut down tire bills

Four-factory co-operative methods of manufacture have combined in this one tire all of the qualities that go to make up a good tire in a way that has never before been approached by any tire maker.

Mileage has been raised to an unprecedented point.

The fabric strength has been increased practically 50 per cent. by a process used exclusively by the United States Tire Company.

The tread is made of the toughest rubber stock known to the industry.

Flexibility and resiliency has been increased to a marked degree.

In fact United States Tires are giving a character of service that is a revelation to those who are using them for the first time.

SCHOOL LEAGUERS FINISH DIVISION CHAMPIONSHIP

Hodgen and Clinton Tie for Honors in One Division and May Play It Off.

AMES WINS 4TH STRAIGHT

Each of the Eight Division Winners Will Receive Banner Next Saturday.

Here are the winners of the division championship of the Post-Dispatch Public School Baseball League:

Bryan Hill, Cote Brilliante, Hodgen or Clinton (a tie), Ames, Marquette, Arlington, Madison and Sigel.

Each of the eight division winners will receive a banner and next Saturday they will begin a final schedule for the championship of the city. In preceding years a pennant has been given to the team winning the city championship and gold medals to each of nine players and two substitutes. The same prizes or others of equal value will be awarded this year.

The final games in the schedule for the division championships were played yesterday. The Harney Heights team defeated Field in a 10-inning game by a score of 14 to 13. Harney Heights was two weeks late in getting into the league and has played only two games and won both. Marquette, the team that wins the championship in this division, has played four games and won all of them, though one was played over and does not count in the standing. If Harney Heights had been in the league one week earlier, its team probably would have given Marquette a hard fight for the division championship.

Harney Heights Can Hit.

In the game yesterday Joe Hall and George Tons of the Harney Heights team each hit for a triple, two doubles and a single. Hall won the game with his triple in the tenth inning, with a runner on third base. Schulz pitched a good game for Harney Heights.

Ames won its fourth straight game, defeating Franklin 13 to 9. Edward Zirkel pitched all four games for Ames. In the contest yesterday Ames got an early lead, scoring three runs in the first inning, two in the second and three in the third. Franklin played a good uphill game, and several times threatened to overtake Ames' big lead.

Arlington overwhelmed Clark and kept its record clean by winning its fourth straight, 21 to 6. Robert Egan, Arlington's pitcher, was the star hitter. He got five hits out of five times at bat. Tom O'Brien, the Arlington manager, and Norman Kinsman also did some heavy hitting.

Penrose, the ex-champions of the league, won from Farragut, 13 to 9. Seven runs were scored by Farragut in the ninth inning after Golder, Penrose's crack pitcher, had retired. Golder struck out 14, making a total of 72 strike outs in the four games that he has pitched this year.

Clinton and Hodgen Tie.

Clinton, by beating Chouteau yesterday, 22 to 6, is a tie with Hodgen for the championship in its division. Clinton and Hodgen should arrange to play off the tie some day after school this week, so that the team that wins can contest in the final schedule, which starts next Saturday.

Wassef of Clinton got three hits in the Clinton-Hodgen game. Bazett of the same team got four hits.

Hodgen defeated Rock Springs and pulled the latter down from the leadership in the division, with a five-run rally in the eighth inning. The final score was 14 to 8. In the eighth inning, with two on base, Zink, the Hodgen left fielder, hit a home run. The game was featured with many star fielding plays.

Jackson won from Columbia, 26 to 6. Harry Hoffmann, manager of the Jackson team, hit a home run, a triple, a double and a single. There was also heavy hitting by Elmer Buesing, Robert and Henry Pierce and Schlitto.

Ninth Inning Hit Wins.

Cote Brilliante won from Marshall, 12 to 11, in a hard-fought game. In the ninth inning, with Raymond Craig on second base, Otto Broeden of Cote Brilliante knocked out a triple and scored what proved to be the winning run. Pomroy Quiley got a home run. Carl Pfunder pitched a good game for Cote Brilliante.

Madison won from Shepard, 12 to 8, in a game featured by the heavy hitting of Admie, Pickert and Brock. Brock also pitched a good game for Madison.

Sherman defeated Lafayette, 9 to 6. There was some heavy hitting by Artmann, Goodwin, Werre and Siebert of the Sherman team. Sherman has lost only one game this year, that being to Sigel, the winner of the championship in the division.

NEW ARBITRATION TREATY SOUGHT WITH BRITAIN

Bryan Will Ask Renewal of Present Convention, Leaving Canal Tolls Out.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Secretary Bryan soon will begin negotiations with Ambassador Spring-Rice of Great Britain looking to a renewal of an arbitration treaty between the United States and Great Britain. The present treaty expires June 5. As was stated in the Post-Dispatch April 23, Secretary Bryan will negotiate for a treaty without any consideration of the Panama Canal tolls controversy between the United States and England.

It was under provisions of the existing treaty that Sir Edward Gray, the British Foreign Minister, proposed arbitrating the canal tolls act, but Secretary of State Knox held that the controversy had not reached a point where arbitration should be considered. He said he hoped the matter would be settled by diplomatic negotiations. For a time it was believed that Great Britain would not agree to a renewal of the existing arbitration treaty unless the United States agreed to arbitrate the tolls question, but subsequent action by the then British Ambassador, James Bryce, dispelled this.

U. S. WASTING MILLIONS, SAYS CRITIC OF BUYERS

Representative Asks Investigation of Forty Bureaus Which Manage Federal Purchases.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Charges that the present method of making purchases of supplies for the Federal Government open the way to graft "for parasites of large and small degree," were made in a letter which Representative Bathrick of Ohio filed today with the House Committee on Rules and Ways and Means. The letter was a plea for his measure, recently introduced to provide authority for special committee on buying and selling.

Mr. Bathrick named 40 bureaus and bureau chiefs that he says should be investigated at once by a committee on buying and selling with a view to reforms. Mr. Bathrick stated there should be one central point and authority for the purchasing of the million dollars or more of Government supplies. "I believe we are wasting millions of dollars," said he.

Smith, Provost of the University, presided, and addresses were made by Lawrence F. Flick of this city and Dr. Hermann M. Biggs of New York.

The degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred on Phipps and a similar honor on Dr. Edward L. Trudeau, founder of the Adirondack Cottage Sanitarium.

GOV. CRUCE AFTER THE PROSE POETRY LAURELS OF MAJOR

Oklahoman Sky-Hoots Into the Empyrean in a Mothers' Day Proclamation.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., May 10.—Gov. Major of Missouri has nothing on Gov. Cruce of Oklahoma in his tendency to indulge in flowers of rhetoric and verbal bouquets. This State will observe "Mothers' day" tomorrow under a gubernatorial proclamation, the authorship of which the Missouri executive might well envy the executive of Oklahoma. Following are some of the choicest sprays of eloquence plucked from the Cruce garden of posies:

"To him whose feet have been cast in paths that are pleasant paths; who has drunk deep of life's most pleasing cups; in whose ears the sweet laughter of his children ring; upon whose lips the warm kiss of innocent love has been planted; within whose heart there beats a joyous rhythm that cheers him on his way—this proclamation is addressed.

"Likewise, it is addressed to him upon whose soul there is a blight; upon whose hearing despair beats its doleful tattoo; whose feet are sore and bleeding from contact with the sharp stones that have met them, when they sought, as best they might, to climb the rugged ways; upon whose lashes sorrow's tears are wet; who has found the burden heavy and the recompense light, the sowing arduous and the reaping lean.

"And to her who is good and pure and fair within is this proclamation addressed; to her whose softening influence has restrained us when we would have been harsh; whose words have given us courage when we would have been afraid; whose whisper has counseled us when we would have been cruel.

"And to her, likewise, who is steeped in sin; who is wanton in her desecration; who defies the laws of man and scoffs at the laws of God—likewise to her is this proclamation addressed.

"For there is one common plane upon which men may meet without dispute; one common cause in which women may bow.

"MOTHER is that cause.

"Therefore, I, Lee Cruce, Governor of the State of Oklahoma, do hereby proclaim that Sunday, the 11th day of May, is hereby set apart as Mothers' day—a day upon which our people are requested to honor that friend who is ever a friend—MOTHER."

Operations Avoided

Thousands of surgical operations are performed every year in our great city hospitals upon women afflicted with serious female troubles. Sometimes the operations are successful and sometimes they are not; sometimes they are necessary, many times they are not.

It is safe to say that a very large percentage of surgical operations for female troubles may be wholly avoided. This statement is amply proven by hundreds of letters constantly being received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., of Lynn, Mass., and the following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock of Paw Paw, Mich., relates her sad experience, which is only one of thousands that are constantly occurring. Had she taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at first, as she finally did, her dreadful hospital experience would have been avoided.

Here is her own statement: Paw Paw, Mich.: "Two years ago I suffered very severely with womanly ailments. I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for several months without much relief, and finally sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks, and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and advise my friends who have any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. Orville Rock, Paw Paw, Mich.

If you are ill don't drag along until you are advised to have an operation, but remember that for thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills and has saved a vast army of women from surgical operations. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not at least give this famous medicine a trial.

A HANDSOME REWARD WILL BE GIVEN to any person who will prove that any of our testimonial letters constantly being published in the daily newspapers are not genuine and truthful, or that any of these women were paid in any way to give their testimonials or that the letters were published without their permission or that all the original letters did not come to us entirely unsolicited. THE LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO., Lynn, Mass.

T. R. CAN BE KING (OF ALBANIA) IF HE WILL ASK FOR JOB

"He Has Only to Approach Us," Says Leader of Nation's Hunt for Strong Monarch.

"MAN MY COUNTRY NEEDS"

Hope Is Expressed Former American President Will Avail Himself of the Opening.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
Copyright, 1913, by Press Pub. Co. (New York World.)

LONDON, May 10.—The Post-Dispatch and New York World are in a position to offer the throne of Albania to Theodore Roosevelt. Negotiations have already been carried to the point that the Colonel has only to signify his willingness to accept and the crown is his.

"If Roosevelt desires the kingship of Albania we will put him ahead of all others who have been named. I myself would certainly vote for him.

"Roosevelt is one of the most extraordinary men in the world, being by nature on a higher plane than mere princes."

This was the emphatic statement made today by Ismail Kemal, Provisional President of Albania and leader of the delegation from the Albanian people authorized to find for them a ruler acceptable to the ambassadorial conference of the Powers. Kemal accompanied his words with dramatic gestures, as if placing Roosevelt firmly on the throne.

The Post-Dispatch and the World correspondent's audience with Kemal took place in the Hotel Cecil, where he is stopping, accompanied by co-delegates Louis Guracnochi, Minister of Education, and Nogga Konitsa and Deletgus. They greeted the Post-Dispatch correspondent with marked cordiality and courtesy. Kemal is a white-haired, white-bearded gentleman, with slow, dignified speech and courtly manner. His son, who is with him, is a short, dark young man about 30, alert and vivacious. Garacnochi is the tallest of the delegation, standing over six feet. He is wiry and strong, with a bronzed complexion and a heavy black mustache. Nogga is a diplomat, suave, polished and reserved. Konitsa and Deletgus are military in appearance, with swarthy features and well-knit bodies.

Interested in Suggestion.

They all showed the greatest interest in, and were evidently agreeably surprised by, the Post-Dispatch suggestion as to Roosevelt. Ismail Kemal said, with a pleased smile:

"This is truly an American idea, but why should Roosevelt care about becoming a ruler of Albania when he is already almost a King in his own country?"

The correspondent explained that the prospect of the Albanian kingship seemed more immediately tangible. Kemal was tickled at the novelty of the suggestion, which he accepted as complimentary to his country. The other members of the group bent eagerly forward on their chairs, anxious not to miss a word of the conversation, which was conducted in French, as the delegates speak little English. The correspondent suggested some of Roosevelt's particular qualifications for the position. For instance, he would be entirely untrammeled by European influences. Kemal agreed, saying:

"What you urge is true—that Roosevelt would be free from influences of dynasty, such as would beset others named, who might have their own axes to grind."

The correspondent pointed out that Roosevelt possessed great strength of character and would stand no nonsense from abroad, being like the Albanians themselves, a born fighter. To this Kemal replied:

"That is true. Roosevelt is a great, courageous and upright man; he possesses exactly the character suitable for our king."

Sprung From the People.

Then the correspondent named monarchs sprung from the people who had won imperishable fame, whereat Kemal shrugged his shoulders as if to say that he was unable to controvert the incontrovertible. He added:

"I agree that Roosevelt is an extraordinary man, fit to cope with an extraordinary situation, and that he is the man my country needs at this moment, when we require a strong man. Roosevelt has only to approach us. I don't propose him, but if he will propose himself, that is a different matter. You have suggested his name to me and my answer is, why not?

"There is no man more fitted than he to step into our throne. I tell you, if Roosevelt will suggest himself, we will put him in front of all others. There is no special form of etiquette to be observed in presenting his candidacy, for in the crisis which Albania now faces we cannot stand on ceremony as to the manner in which Roosevelt's name may be submitted to us."

The correspondent remarked that Roosevelt was not a man to stand on ceremony, if he wanted a thing. He was no slave to etiquette any more than the Albanians. Kemal continued:

"Roosevelt is a great hunter, and our people are famed as followers of the chase, so that this chord of sympathy would bring us together."

Tahir Kemal added enthusiastically: "If he does consent to stand, I will go and fetch him. I wish greatly to visit the United States."

Up to Roosevelt Now.

Then momentary doubt seemed to seize Ismail Kemal, who asked: "I know Roosevelt is suited by character, training and ability, and that he could adapt himself to any circumstances, although history has shown that imported princes have seldom been able to do this satisfactorily, but would he have sufficient money? I have never heard that he is one of the American millionaires. He would need thousands and thousands of dollars to maintain a court, even in Albania. That is a point which, unfortunately, we must consider in choosing a king."

The correspondent ventured to suggest that the Republican party, out of gratitude to Roosevelt's past services, would doubtless be willing to subsidize him as long as he remained in Albania. Kemal rejoined:

"Ah, that is well. Your suggestion interests us deeply. I hope Roosevelt will avail himself of the opening we give him through the Post-Dispatch to become ruler of our country."

Kemal was unable to say how much longer the delegation will stay in London, but it probably will be for at least ten days. At present they are awaiting the issue of the ambassadorial conference. The next move lies with Roosevelt.

NOTED EASTERN LAWYER KILLED IN AUTO WRECK

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 10.—Donald G. Perkins, one of the leaders of the Connecticut bar and a partner of Judge Lucius Brown of Norwich, and Mrs. Perkins were instantly killed in an automobile accident at Branford this afternoon, and Mr. and Mrs. Noah Rogers of Norwick, who were with them in the car, were badly injured. The party was motoring from Norwich to visit Donald G. Perkins Jr., at Westport, and speeded up to reach New Haven in time for lunch.

Judge Perkins was driving the car himself over a freshly made road. The wheels slid a little over the edge of the hard surface and Mr. Perkins gave the wheel a twist to bring the machine back in line. The steering gear broke and the car plunged at an acute angle and turned over twice, going down a steep bank.

Mother Stanislaus Tells of Recovery

Any person who may doubt the merits of Eckman's Alterative, a remedy for the Throat and Lungs, which has brought about many complete recoveries, should investigate the case of Mother Stanislaus of St. Anne's Convent, Sanford, Fla. She writes:

Convent of St. Anne, 800 Oak Av.,
Sanford, Fla.

"Gentlemen: In February, 1911, four doctors examined my throat and pronounced the necessity of an operation. Having heard at Peekskill, N. Y., Motherhouse of the Sisters of St. Francis, where I was visiting, of Eckman's Alterative, I determined as a last resort to try it. After taking four or five bottles large pieces of diseased tissue came away. I continued the Alterative, to my grateful and daily relief. In ten months I was restored to perfect health. I would be glad to write or talk to any person who may have a doubt about it. I would like them to see and hear from my own lips, if they so desire, all I would say of it."

(Signed) MOTHER M. STANISLAUS.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by Raboteau Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph Drug Co. and other leading druggists. BACKACHE A WARNING ALL SHOULD HEED

It Is One of the First Signs of Kidney Troubles, if Neglected, Serious Diseases Follow

No one can be well and healthy unless the kidneys work properly and keep the blood pure. When they become clogged up and inactive, nature has a way of warning you.

Backache is one of the first symptoms. You may also be troubled with disagreeable, annoying bladder disorders; have attacks of lumbago or rheumatism; become nervous, tired, and feel all worn out; puffy swellings show under the eyes or in the feet and ankles, and many other symptoms are noticed. If they are neglected, dropsy, diabetes, or Bright's disease, which so often prove fatal, may result.

It is not only dangerous, but needless for you to suffer and endure the tortures of these troubles, for the new discovery, Croxone, quickly and surely ends all such misery.

There is no more effective remedy known for the prompt cure of all such troubles than this new scientific preparation, because it removes the cause. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and linings; cleans out the clogged up pores; neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause those terrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter and sift the poison out of the blood and drive it from the system.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case. Three doses a day for a few days is often all that is ever needed to cure the worst backache, relieve rheumatic pains, or overcome kidney affections.—ADVERTISEMENT.

HOUSE ASKS NAMES OF THOSE INDORSING JUDGES

Bill Is Passed Which Embodies Policy of Having President Use Publicity.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Carrying an indorsement of the policy of having the President make public the indorsements of candidates appointed to Federal judgeships, the House today passed a bill creating a new district judgeship in the Eastern District of Pensylvania. The purpose of the bill is to take care of one of the present judges incapacitated by ill health.

Republican Leader Mann sought to embarrass the Democrats by offering an amendment that the President shall make public the indorsements of the persons apointed to the new judgeships. During the first Taft administration the Democrats voted for bills carrying similar clauses. On today's vote the Democrats divided and the amendment was adopted on rollcall vote, 180 to 84.

COUNTY OFFICIALS WILL NOT GIVE UP STRATTON

Sheriff at East Peoria Says He Will Hold Convict for Michigan Burglary.

PEORIA, Ill., May 10.—Tazewell County officials declared today that they would not surrender Clyde Stratton, the convict who escaped from Leavenworth prison by crawling through a sewer, to the Federal authorities, but would hold him for an alleged burglary at Mackinaw.

Sheriff Flugell declared Stratton had admitted his identity and confessed to many robberies. He was arrested with a companion near Danvers last week.

He is said to be a graduate of Purdue University, and to be a member of the Beta Theta Pi.

He admits robbing a farmhouse near Allentown, Ill.; a store at Tremont, Ill.; a store at Mackinaw, Ill., and a store at Danvers, Ill.

Stratton was serving a five-year sentence for the robbery of the Postoffice at McCool, Ind., when he escaped from the Federal prison. He crawled half a mile through an 18-inch sewer.

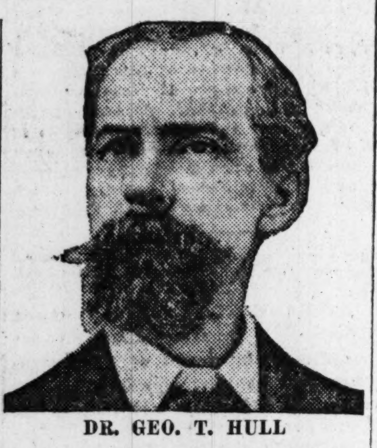
The Staple Medicine for All Families

From Infancy to Old Age a Reliable Family Laxative Is Most Needed—Try This One



DR. GEO. T. HULL

It is inconceivable in this day of general intelligence that any family would be without a simple remedy for the minor ills of life, for often by giving such a remedy in time a serious disease can be frustrated and a life saved.

For example, if at the first sign of a cold a simple laxative-tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin were given the beginning of a serious lung affection or of a typhoid fever might be avoided. And also in headaches, nervousness, etc., a small dose of this remedy would relieve the congestion and replace distress with comfort. Mothers give it to tiny infants and little children, and grown people take it with equally good effect.

Thousands of good American homes are never without it, among them the home of Dr. Geo. T. Hull, Prop. Hull Drug Co., Prue, Ok. Dr. Hull has for a number of years recommended Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in his practice and writes that "for stomach and bowel disorders, worms in children and a general laxative-tonic it has no equal." Syrup Pepsin saves the health of the family, and it saves doctor's bills. It is a guaranteed cure for any form of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, constipation, indigestion, biliousness, gas on the stomach, headaches, drowsiness after eating, etc. Have no hesitancy about giving it to any member of the family, however young or old, for it contains nothing injurious to the youngest person.

A bottle can be obtained at any nearby drug store for fifty cents or one dollar. The latter size is more economical and is bought by those who have already convinced themselves of its merits. Syrup Pepsin users learn to discard pills, salts cathartic and purgative generally as they are too great a shock to any average system.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

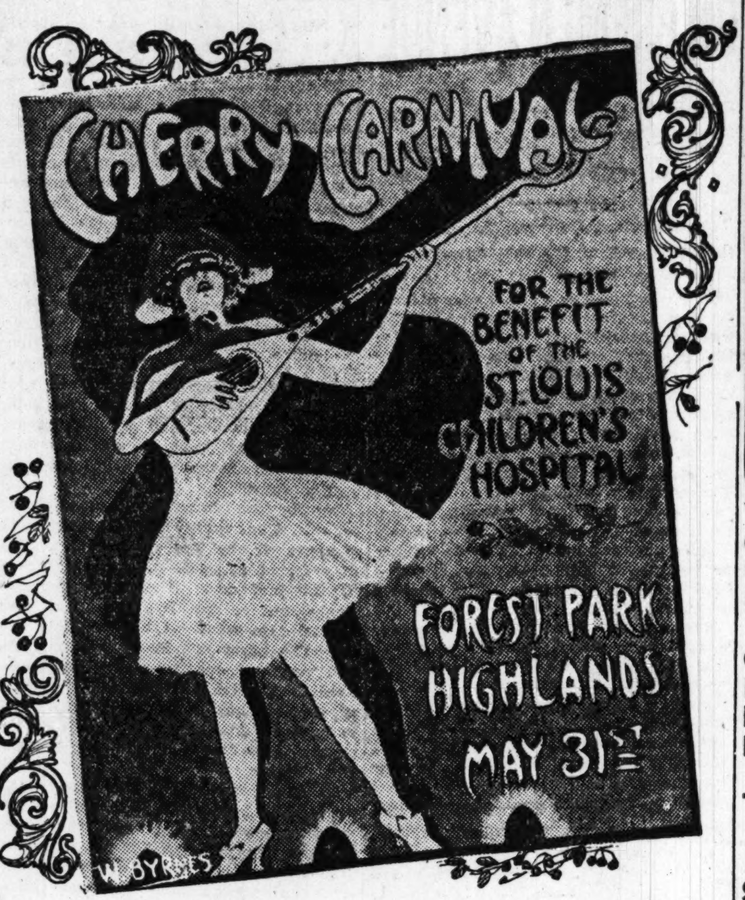
Cherry Carnival at Highlands for the Children's Hospital



Official Buttons for Novel Benefit on May 31 to Be Red Cherry Pins.

A Cherry Carnival, novel and picturesque to an uncommon degree, will be given for the benefit of the St. Louis Children's Hospital at Forest Park Highlands Saturday afternoon and evening, May 31, with many society matrons and maids taking part in the worthy enterprise.

All costumes worn by the women in charge of the various booths and amusement devices will have cherry red and white as their dominant color tone, and all decorations will be of cherry red and white, thus effectively carrying out the idea suggested by the carnival's title.

The official buttons will be red cherry pins. Mrs. Otto Mersman, chairman of the Button Committee, expects to realize a handsome amount from the sale of these fascinating little souvenirs. She feels sure that the "cherry buttons" will become even more popular than the "Boost St. Louis buttons" of the civic betterment movement. The entire proceeds of the carnival will go to the St. Louis Children's Hospital, the great charity that cares for the sick children of the poor.

Prize for Wonderful Baby.

Then, as another novelty, Mrs. Ford Thompson will have charge of a real baby show. A handsome prize will be offered for the most wonderful baby, the announcement reads, and many entries of beautiful babies are confidently expected. Most interesting of all, the baby show judges will be selected from among the most eligible Racquet Club bachelors.

Another novel idea is the Cabaret, which will be a memorable feature of the Cherry Carnival. Mrs. Hugh Jones and Mrs. Charles Parsons Pettus have been engaging the vaudeville features of this cabaret entertainment for several weeks. With all the talent of the Dramatic Club and The Players at their command, they feel sure of being able to present one of the brightest and best vaudeville programs ever seen in this city.

Mrs. Charles Cummings Collins will have charge of the dancing pavilion and is arranging a brilliant entertainment. She has almost promised to have Jean for the evening performance. Don't you know who Jean is? Well, well, well! Not to know Jean in smart society circles is equivalent to being yourself unknown!

In Charge of Booths.

The complete list of booths and amusement features, with the chairman of each booth committee, is:

Theater—Mrs. Rice and Mrs. Stix, with Miss Alice Martin directing the dancing features.

Circle swing—Mrs. Dwight Filley.

Japanese rolling balls—Mrs. Louis Le Beaume.

Dancing pavilion—Mrs. Charles Cummings Collins.

Swimming pool—Mrs. William A. Stickney.

Candy—Mrs. Arthur Gale.

Baby show—Mrs. Ford Thompson.

Cabaret—Mrs. Charles Parsons Pettus and Mrs. Hugh Jones.

Buttons—Mrs. Otto Mersman.

The Executive Committee in charge of the Cherry Carnival is: Mrs. Harvey Mudd, chairman of carnival; Mrs. Bagnell, Mrs. Thomas Niedringhaus, Mrs. George Markham, chairman of concessions; Mrs. Louis Marion McCall, chairman of tickets; Miss Julia Rumsey, chairman of Publicity Committee.

It is a new way. It is something absolutely different. No lotions, sprays or sickly smelling salves or creams. No atomizer, or any apparatus of any kind. Nothing to smoke or inhale. No steaming or rubbing or injections. No electricity or vibration or massage. No powder; no plasters; no keeping in the house. Nothing of that kind at all. Something new and different, something delightful and healthful, something instantly successful. You do not have to wait, and linger and pay out a lot of money. You can stop it over night— and I will gladly tell you how —FREE. I am not a doctor and this is not a so-called doctor's prescription—but I am cured and my friends are cured, and you can be cured. Your suffering will stop at once like magic.

I Am Free—You Can Be Free

My catarrh was filthy and loathsome. It made me ill. It dulled my mind. It undermined my health and was weakening my will. The hawking, coughing, spitting made me obnoxious to all, and my foul breath and disgusting habits made even my loved ones avoid me secretly. My delight in life was dulled and my faculties impaired. I knew that in time it would bring me to an untimely grave, because every moment of the day and night it was slowly yet surely sapping my vitality.

But I found a cure, and I am ready to tell you about it, FREE. Write me promptly.

RISK JUST ONE CENT

Send no money. Just your name and address on a postal card. Say: "Dear Sam Katz. Please tell me how you cured your catarrh and how I can cure mine." That's all you need to say, I will understand, and I will write to you with complete information, FREE, at once. Do not delay. Send postal card or write me a letter today. Don't think of turning this page until you have asked for this wonderful treatment that can do for you what it has done for me.

HOTEL PLAN FOR TWELFTH-OLIVE CORNER REVIVED

W. J. Holbrook Negotiating an Exchange for Forsythe Boulevard Property That Interests Men Willing to Invest in Project in Downtown District.

W. K. BIXBY URGED TO BUILD ON HOME SITE

John H. Bogue Reported to Be Financing Hostelry for Fourteenth and Locust Streets—A. E. Schmid Declines $400 a Foot in 1400 Block on Chestnut.

By Berry Moore

Realty and building in the downtown section soon will be reawakened with several big operations if the program of the leaders does not go awry.

Plans are under way for the improvement of several corners in this area and in uptown St. Louis with hotel and office buildings.

W. J. Holbrook, it is understood, is forming a syndicate to erect at the southwest corner of Twelfth and Olive streets, an 18-story hotel building. The venture, exclusive of the site, will cost more than $1,000,000. The corner is owned by W. K. Bixby. At present it is occupied by an old hotel building.

The deal, it is said, involves the transfer of a large tract of land lying along the south side of Forsyth boulevard and on the west side of Pennsylvania avenue. The tract is held by John Fowler of the Liggett estate and others. They compose, it is said, a sextette of millionaires who, according to reports, will provide the capital for the building.

Fowler admitted to a Post-Dispatch reporter that somethnig like this might happen, but declined to go into details. "About next Tuesday I may be in position to tell you something," he said.

Plan for Big West End Building.

Incidentally, there was a plan under way several months ago, to build, on the block occupied by the W. K. Bixby residence at King's Highway and Lindell boulevard, a combined hotel and theater, but it was decided that the time was not propitious for a project of this magnitude.

Friends of Bixby are urging him to rebuild this imposing site with a monumental structure of this character. The proposed improvement, it is said, Bixby contends, would require a prohibitory figure.

The value of the tract as a hotel site lies in its King's highway and Forest Park frontage. It is the opinion of real estate men that sooner or later it will command $1,000,000.

A hotel is proposed by John H. Bogue for the northwest corner of Fourteenth and Locust streets. The capital for this project, it is understood, is being solicited from Washington avenue and Locust street interests.

The site, which overlooks Library Park, is regarded as one of the most attractive in downtown St. Louis for a large improvement of this kind.

Bogue Associated With Brown.

Bogue is vice-president of the Seventeenth Street Realty Co., of which George W. Brown is president, and which has been a factor in the development in both Locust street and Washington avenue, between Twelfth and Eighteenth streets.

Bogue is withholding details of the project which, he explains, is as yet not assured.

According to reports, negotiations have been practically completed for a site on the north side of Locust street, west of Fourteenth, for a new building for the Bagnell Automobile Co. While it is understood a sky scraper is not projected, the plans, it is said, provide for a building that will be a marked addition to the street.

The company occupies quarters at 416 Olive street, regarded as out of range of the automobile traffic.

The auction whereby 49x155 feet, occupied by a three-story building at 1520 Locust street, was to have been highest bid was $725 a front foot. N. S. Wood, who represented the owners, the heirs of the late John H. Gay, declined to accept this price.

At a special commissioner's sale five years ago the Locust street holding was knocked down at $1010 a front foot but the sale was not completed.

Chestnut Street Values Growing.

An offer of $400 a foot has been rejected for 25x109 feet at 1421 Chestnut street, improved with a two-story brick tenement. According to William A. Meager Real Estate Co., 50 feet, including the Schmid holding, was wanted as a site for an eight-story commercial building. This Chestnut street block has a future value based on the plan for the opening of the block on the south as a plaza for the new Municipal Building.

There is a perceptible movement towards Chestnut street, the chief highway of vehicle traffic, a preference being displayed for sites on Chestnut rather than on Pine street, which formerly was in the ascendency.

Several propositions for a lease and for the purchase of the southwest corner of Grand avenue and Morgan street, the site of the home of the late J. E. Kaime, have caused Nat S. Kaime and George Kaime of Los Angeles, its owners, to visit St. Louis.

In each instance, it is said, that the site is wanted for a big improvement. There is a frontage on Morgan street of 170 feet, by a depth along the south line of Morgan street of 550 feet.

A four-story building known as the Colonial Bachelor Apartments, with stores and a cafe on the first floor, occupies the Grand avenue frontage of the site. The west half is vacant.

The exception area of the site has attracted the attention of speculators and investors, who it is said are bidding against one another.

Numerous Improvements Nearby.

This section of Grand avenue has been the center of great development, recent improvements including the Metropolitan building and the Princess Theater Building at Grand avenue and Olive streets, and the Grand Central Theater Building at Grand and Lucas avenues.

Recently the "For Sale" board has been removed from the Grand Avenue Presbyterian Church and it is surmised that contracts for the leasing or transferring of the property have been executed.

A few months ago the site was sought for a large hotel building, the Nichols-Ritter Realty and Financial Co., agents of the property, disclaim knowledge of a sale of the property.

A lot 25x127 feet on the east side of Eighth street, south of Cass avenue, was sold by Charles P. Mason, secretary and treasurer of the Board of Education, to Edwin M. Eisen, for $135 a front foot. A private offer of $110 a foot had been made on the property, but it was sold at auction to the highest bidder, in accordance with the requirements of the board. Mason was the subject of congratulations on the part of the fraternity after the sale, the price being a record for this locality.

Seek Church Site in University City.

A site on Pennsylvania avenue, in University City, is sought by Laage Real Estate Co. for a site for a Catholic church.

An offer of $75 a foot, it is reported, has been refused by the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. for a lot at the corner of Berlin and Pennsylvania avenues, in the Ames district, which is to be subdivided this summer. Churches, it is understood, will be barred from this addition by the restrictions. About 4000 feet in the Ames tract have been sold from subdivision plans, the purchasers in each instance being required to build immediately on every fifth lot.

The subdivision project was promoted by the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., and Elmore Cave & Co. The proposed subdivision will not be known as West Parkview, but rather as Ames Place, it is said. No official announcement has been made to this effect.

BUNGALOWS OFFERED ON VERY LIBERAL TERMS

H. T. Woodward Puts On Special Sale of Good Homes at Coshocton.

H. F. Woodward has put on a special sale of bungalows at Coshocton.

The subdivision is located in the Walnut Park district, which is being rapidly built up with homes of the better class.

The bungalows are of the substantial kind and are being offered at attractive prices and on easy terms.

To Grow Hair on a Bald Head

BY A SPECIALIST.

Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair who, having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair-grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomfort. Yet their case is not hopeless; the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and is also unequaled for restoring gray hair to its original color, stopping hair from falling out and destroying the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be put up by any druggist: Bay Rum, 6 ounces; Lavona de Composee, 2 ounces; Menthol Crystals, one-half drachm. If you wish it perfumed, add half to one teaspoonful of To-Kalon Perfume, which unites perfectly with the other ingredients. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists, and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics.—ADV.

UPTOWN MARKET TO COST $500,000 IS PROJECTED

Sites on West Side of Grand Avenue Under Consideration for Building Modeled After Pittsburg Union Market.

A $500,000 Union Market building is projected by local capitalists for uptown St. Louis, according to announcement yesterday by E. M. Nevins of the Nevins Real Estate and Investment Co. Several sites on central Grand avenue are under consideration for this building. The sites considered include the block of the Masonic Temple Association, on the west side of Grand avenue, extending from Windsor place to Bell avenue and west to St. Alphonse street, and the southwestern corner of Grand avenue and Morgan street, 175x550 feet, together with the adjoining property on the south.

The corner holding is owned by Nat S. and George J. Kaime of Los Angeles, clients of the Hildenbrandt-Noble Real Estate Co. They are in the city to consider offers for this property.

The building is to be modeled after the Union Market of Pittsbrug, with the exception of the dome. In addition to groceries, vegetables, meats and dairy products, the sale of kitchen utensils, iceboxes, stoves and kindred household goods is proposed.

Nevins estimates that every citizen who avails himself of the prices of this market will save from 40 to 50 cents a day, the saving in rent and in delivery reducing the cost of the commodities.

With sanitary and vermin-proof provisions, this building promises to be a model of its kind. It will be two stories high, and will occupy a site 400x500 feet. The finish will be in enameled brick. There will be booths and stalls in the interior, which will be rented at from $35 to $40 per month.

Space surrounding the building will provide for wagons of 1200 farmers or truck gardeners, who will be at liberty to sell direct to consumers.

Arrangements have been perfected for the launching of several important enterprises in St. Louis.

The Wagner-Stierlin Piano Manufacturing Co. has been organized as a successor to the Stierlin Piano Co., which suspended a few months ago. A five-story building, 75x100 feet, at 4816 Kossuth avenue will provide for the plant, which will manufacture both note and player pianos. The new company was organized by Norris R. Fill, who is one of its incorporators, and is headed by George W. Wagner.

The Burne-Bowe Pie Co. will erect a building at the northeast corner of Twenty-second and Mullanphy streets. The site is 150x130 feet. The company has had a branch on an adjoining lot several years. The new building is to be a model bakery, with shower baths and rest rooms for the employes.

WASHINGTON PARK, EAST SIDE TRACT, RAPIDLY BUILDING

Many Lot Buyers Put Up Homes and Find Employment With Manufacturing Plants.

Washington Park, East St. Louis, is attracting investors and homeseekers from many parts of the country. Hundreds of lots are being sold to persons who find employment with the Granby mills, the General Chemical Co. and other big plants which are being established on the tract.

Most of the purchasers are building. The indications are that Washington Heights will soon be a flourishing community of homes. Lots that were bought in this tract a year ago for $4 a foot are being sold for $10 and $12 a foot, according to the Harding Sikking Co., the promoters.

The property is at the northeast corner of the city limits and is reached by the East St. Louis Traction Co. cars. Washington Heights will be tapped also by the Mississippi & Alton, the new belt line which has been planned, it is said, to dislodge the Terminal Railway Association in that territory.

Building Shares Mature.

TERMINAL IS BUYER OF WILSON TRACT ON BREMEN AVENUE

Property Sold Under $150,000 Deed of Trust Brings $324,000, or $1 Square Foot.

The Terminal Railway Association is the purchaser of the rectangular tract at Bremen avenue and Hall street, which was knocked down under a $150,000 deed of trust to an employe of the Title Guaranty Trust Co., for $324,000, or $1 a square foot. The title to the tract was held by Peter Wilson.

The Terminal, it is understood, is negotiating for more land in this district, with plans for extensive improvements. According to stories in realty circles, a swap of Terminal and McKinley tracts, both of which have extensive holdings in this locality, lying in alternating parcels, is contemplated.

Since its purchase of the Peter Wilson, or Bremen avenue tract, the Terminal has purchased an adjoining parcel held by G. A. Nieman.

The terms of the foreclosure sale provided for an initial payment of $100,000 and for the remainder in one and two years.

James Rohan, vice-president of the Title Guaranty Co., acted for the Terminal and Robert Kaime of the J. E. Kaime & Bro. Real Estate Co., for the mortgagor.

Fins and Feathers

WRITTEN BY JOCK BELLAIRS

ANGLERS generally hear so many stories they come to believe the queerest yarns. This one from William Lawler must be accepted by stream and still-water anglers because Lawler came in with promise of an affidavit if he was doubted. Lawler discovered that Mr. Frog is a cannibal and has his ideas on the disappearance of a ten-pound eel and likewise about 10 goggle-eyes of good size.

Lawler, Ben Reeves, John McKenna and Sam Levy went out to Leslie, on the Bourboise, after they got word that stream fishing was good. They stopped with some farm folk who proved to be splendid entertainers and they caught in four days a few fine bass, one being a four-pounder, some nice goggle-eye, plenty of catfish, two eels, one the 10-pounder, and a rub of frogs. The fish were kept in one live box, the eel in another and the frogs in still a third.

One of the frogs was an immense fellow. The party noticed that frogs disappeared one and two a night. But they forgot to question the matter until the last day. Then 10 goggle-eye slipped out of the live box and the big eel also went. After due deliberation the party concluded the goggles had reasoned matters out and had floated sidewise out between the slats of the live box (you can believe it, if you want to). But the eel was a puzzle until Lawler reckoned out the frog matter.

He says when the dividend came the party each had half a dozen nice frogs to bring home, besides what was eaten. He took his home and there were six. When he got up in the morning there were only five. That set him thinking. He killed all the frogs and dressed them. In the stomach of the big one he found part of the remains of the missing frog.

"That's the first time I ever knew a frog would eat a frog," suggested Lawler, "and I wonder if that eel could have been placed in the frog box by mistake and been eaten by the frog?"

Hundreds Out on Dismal Sabbath.

Last Sunday was a dismal day for the anglers, yet hundreds made their way to Creve Coeur Lake, to the creeks here and there, to Murdock Lake, Chouteau Slough, Eagle Park, Horseshoe Lake, Spanish Lake and Beaver Dam Lake, not to speak of dozens of other spots along the various railroads. The returns were dismal, like the day. Stream fishermen are ecstatic because the reports indicate splendid fishing everywhere. One fine party went up to whip the Meramec. The party began at Billy May's "Outlook." In Indian Creek they bagged some dainty bass. Then, while most of the crowd went on up the Meramec, the minority returned. These say one more freshet will bring the bass up the streams, and that the angler will be in clover. My information is that all the Missouri streams are fishable right now. The water is too clear in places, but mainly the sport is good. Even the Bourboise may be threshed with expectation of reward.

Russell E. Gardner, Russell Jr., Samuel C. Davis and Charles Scudder were part of a party that tested the Illinois River. They went up on the yacht Santa Claus. The river was high, but fishable, being clear and still. Some nice crapple and a few bass were caught. When the fishing was bad the party resorted to clay pigeon shooting. They went as far as Beardstown.

Oscar Dane, Vital Garesche, Frank Otey and Griff Yore made up a party which went up to Eureka and fished in Big River. They caught a few eatable fish, but say the gars were fierce. The catch of gars was so good the party, as the anglers have the story, put up a joke on Frank Talbott. They sent him a batch of the "pike," and it is said Talbott had the gars served as dainties. The fishermen who sent them did not attend the feast.

Beaver Dam Lake gave good returns to a fine crowd. At the lake Host Frank L. Rhodes cared for Charles Anderson and wife, W. F. Horner, B. F. Donnavant, Jack Lazier, F. C. Drews, A. P. Goodman (Posey Sam), J. C. Bellmeyer, J. R. Pelty, Louis Bauer, E. Schmid, Charles Hotze, Dr. A. Rothschild, Sam Smith, Fred Ahrens, Joseph Foster and Edward Seyfit. All caught plenty of fish. Harry Benham, who always spends two weeks at a time at the place, landed three bass which pulled down the scales to seven pounds. He used the Yellow Bird.

Ed Behnken and Ed Rudolph went up to the Piscatorial Club at Firma. They came back covered with bumps and declaring the mosquitoes drove them from the lake. John Schaeffer and Charley Dees went to half a dozen places, and came home to complain about the water being bad. J. Anders landed 53 crappie at Eagle Park and allowed friends to count them. Dees and Schaefer can take notice of this.

The Hebert Hunting and Fishing Club at Moellenbrock's, Horse Shoe Lake, gives its first outing of the season today. At the last meeting this club decided on the very sensible plan of taking out a fishing license for each member. H. Hiffmann is president and J. Breuer, secretary-treasurer of the club.

L. E. Green & Sons Discontinue Business.

L. E. Green & Son, who for the past 30 years have conducted a high-grade, exclusive millinery emporium at 408 North Broadway, catering to the ultra trade, have retired from business. The entire stock of trimmed millinery, plumes, ribbons, trimmings, veils, veilings, laces and millinery accessories, has been purchased by Famous & Barr Co., who will move the merchandise to their store and dispose of it in a special sale event, which they will announce soon. The corps of efficient salespeople and trimmers who have been associated with the house for many years have been retained by the Famous & Barr Co. and will be found there after Monday of this week.

The retirement of this concern marks the passing of one of St. Louis' oldest retail houses, and it is a strange coincidence that an even older house should take up and continue the millinery service which they have given during all this time.

STATE PHTHISIS HOSPITAL

Although buying the land and erecting buildings, the State does not propose to pay for the upkeep. Cities and counties sending patients will be required to pay the cost of maintenance.

FAUST'S FULTON MARKET OBTAINS NEW LOCATION

Four-Story Building at 1105 Locust Has Been Leased for 10 Years.

The four-story building at 1105 Locust street has been leased by the Mercantile Trust Co. to Faust's Fulton Market for a term of 10 years. Contracts have been let for alterations, fixtures and equipment that will insure the most elaborate quarters in the city.

The lessee, which is now located on North Fourth street, will take possession of the new building next fall.

The Locust street building is owned by Thomas Dunn.

Stores of the highest class are taking possession of Locust street between Twelfth and Sixth street, the indications being the thoroughfare soon will vie with Olive street as a retail center of trade.

Faust's Fulton Market enjoys the most exclusive patronage of any of the markets in the city, the more central location having been obtained to facilitate the dispatch of its business.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

WEST WALNUT MANOR LOTS ARE GOING FAST

Extension of Car Lines Adds to Attractiveness of Residence Suburb.

Sales of lots in the town of West Walnut Manor have been a feature of subdivision activity. Since the cut in the prices to $4.50 and $7.50 a front foot, 25 or 30 lots have been disposed of, the buyers being principally homeseekers. Between 500 or 600 lots in the subdivision remain unsold.

There have been erected in this tract several hundred homes and many business buildings and more improvements are in prospect. Plans have been completed for the extension of the St. Louis & Jennings railway, a feeder of the Union avenue or Bellefontaine line, south through the subdivision to the top of the hill. The location at Florissant avenue and the city limits is attractive for homeseekers.

A special sale of the lots is scheduled for this week. Salesmen will be on the ground today.

PRESIDENT VISITS TOMB OF GEORGE WASHINGTON

Spends Several Hours With Mrs. Wilson Wandering About the Old Estate.

MOUNT VERNON, Va., May 10.—President Wilson, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, paid his first visit since becoming President to the George Washington Home, and stood for some minutes with bared head before the tomb of the first chief executive.

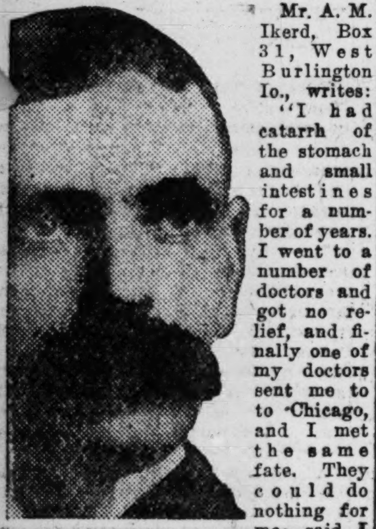
The President motored from Washington and spent a couple hours wandering over the old homestead and estate, being shown about by members of the Board of Regents of the Ladies' Mount Vernon Association, who deferred the business of their annual meeting during the visit. He praised the manner in which the estate had been preserved through the efforts of the association.

Eugene Bertran Suffers Stroke.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Eugene Bertran, a veteran newspaper man, widely known in Western cities, suffered a stroke of apoplexy tonight and is in a grave condition at the Polyclinic Hospital. For several years he has been on the New York World.

HIS CASE WAS HOPELESS

Could Hardly Eat. Gradually Grew Worse. Relieved by Peruna.



Mr. A. M. Ikerd.

Mr. A. M. Ikerd, Box 31, West Burlington Io., writes: "I had catarrh of the stomach and small intestines for a number of years. I went to a number of doctors and got no relief, and finally one of my doctors sent me to Chicago, and I met the same fate. They could do nothing for me; said I had cancer of the stomach and there was no cure. I almost thought the same, for my breath was offensive and I could not eat anything without great misery, and I gradually grew worse.

"Finally I concluded to try Peruna, and I found relief and a cure for that dreadful disease, catarrh. I took five bottles of Peruna and two of Manalin, and I now feel like a new man. There is nothing better than Peruna, and I keep a bottle of it in my house all the time."

The five special trains, with a total of 89 cars, carrying the Barnum & Bailey Circus arrived at the Big Four Railway's freight yards in St. Louis this afternoon, and the great exhibition, giving two performances daily, opens its week's engagement at Handlan Park tomorrow afternoon.

This mammoth circus gathers from all parts of the world the picturesquely entertaining, edifying and thrilling features which constitute its program at every performance. It comes now from an overwhelming triumph in Madison Square Garden, New York City, where it delighted immense audiences and was pronounced the best ring show ever seen in the metropolis.

This season's performance in the great arena begins with a dramatic spectacular pageant entitled "Cleopatra," in which is told with colorful pomp and majesty the vivid story of the first meeting of Egypt's beautiful Queen with Marc Antony, the fiery Roman General who fell a victim to her wiles. The impressive spectacle is presented with a cast of 1250 characters, 700 horses, elephants and camels, a grand opera chorus of 300 voices and 350 dancing girls.

The big novelty features this year will be the Mikado Troupe of Royal Japanese athletes and jiu-jitsu experts; Josefsson, the Icelandic Glima wonder; Miss May Wirth, the beautiful Australian horsewoman who performs startling equestrian feats, and a baseball club composed of elephants who play the national game to the keen delight of all old-time "fans."

Many striking features are to be presented in the arena. Among them are Cliffe-Berzac and his donkey circus; the Weiss Troupe of acrobats; the Flying Neapolitans, in their sky-high flights; the Dekoes Troupe of Risley acrobats; Lupeta Perea, queen of the high trapeze; the world's most famous equestrians, including Fred Derrick, who has been described as "the Apollo Belvidere of the circus arena;" Orrin and Victoria Davenport, with their beautiful horses, in an up-to-date bareback and pad-riding exhibition; the Wirth Family, equestrians; Charles Siegrist, who turns somersaults from the back of one swiftly moving horse to the back of another; Ella Bradna, in a unique equestrian act; the Georgetty Troupe, European equilibrists; the Schiavoni Troupe, in a balancing novelty; and the Ten Viennese, mostly women, who give a most captivating aerial performance high up in the canvas domes, flying from perch to perch with the ease and grace of forest birds.

The joyousness of Circus Week will begin with the free street parade which is scheduled to start from the show grounds at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Much that is amusing, interesting and entertaining is promised in this street pageant, which represents an outlay of more than $2,000,000. The cages containing wild animals will be so arranged as to give the public a full view of the menagerie collection as the parade passes along the streets.

The route of the parade is as follows: Grand and Laclede avenues on Grand avenue, to Washington avenue, to Broadway, to Chouteau avenue, to Jefferson avenue, to Market street, to show grounds.

RURAL CREDIT SYSTEM IN U. S. IS LUBIN'S WORK

Rome Paper Says Californian Is Responsible for Extension of European Idea.

ROME, May 10.—In extending greetings to the American Commission on Agricultural Co-operation, the "Tribunal" says:

"The idea of applying in the United States the European system of rural credit is due to Davis Lubin of California, the originator of the International Institute of Agriculture. The initiative in the present work of the American Commission is due to the same institute, which thus fulfills the mission confided to it by King Victor Emmanuel.

"America, the land of strong enterprise and steel fibers, comes to learn something from Europe."

The legitimate PAID circulation of the Post-Dispatch in St. Louis and its suburbs is greater than that of ALL other English Dailies COMBINED.

AUTO FRIGHTENS HORSES; WOMAN SERIOUSLY HURT

Mrs. Anna Ross Is Probably Fatally Injured by Being Thrown From Buggy.

Mrs. Anna Ross, wife of John S. Ross of 202 East Powhattan street, Upper Alton, Ill., received injuries in a runaway last night which it is feared will result fatally. Her husband and 8-year-old son, Howard, were also injured.

The three were driving in a buggy through Rock Springs Park when the horse took fright at an automobile and ran away. Ross was thrown out first and run over. A little further the boy was thrown out. Mrs. Ross was thrown out at Bloomfield and Gold streets.

She was carried into the home of J. P. Hanlon, 999 Bloomfield street, and was later taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. Her skull is fractured and she has severe bruises. Ross' leg was sprained and he was bruised about the body. The boy's face was cut.

The Four Months of 1913

(JANUARY, FEBRUARY, MARCH AND APRIL)

create further new records for the

POST-DISPATCH

in both Circulation and Advertising

Circulation averages for four months:

Sunday exclusively	319,524
Daily (exclusive of Sunday)	180,020
Daily and Sunday	199,783

These are the highest general averages for the same relative period—ever attained by the POST-DISPATCH in the 35 years of its history.

IN ADVERTISING

the POST-DISPATCH has broken all records of its own, and completely wipes out those of all other St. Louis papers for the same period.

Actual agate measurement (less cheap contract legal) of the St. Louis newspapers for the four months was as follows:

POST-DISPATCH	13,212	columns
Globe-Democrat	7660	"
Republic	5607	"
Times (no Sunday)	5367	"
Star	3185	"
POST-DISPATCH excess over Globe-Democrat	5552	columns
POST-DISPATCH excess over Republic	7605	"
POST-DISPATCH excess over Times	7845	"
POST-DISPATCH excess over Star	10,027	"

An advertiser should buy newspaper space as he would buy merchandise. He must consider first the quantity and second the quality of circulation, if he hopes to get the maximum of results for a given expenditure.

IT IS RESULTS THAT COUNT

Over 80 per cent of the circulation of the daily is in the City of St. Louis and its immediate suburbs.

It sells over 145,000 papers in the City of St. Louis and its suburbs every day. There are 142,000 English reading families in the city.

This shows it blankets its home field as does no other metropolitan daily in the United States.

$100 CONTEST ON MISSOURI'S ATTRACTIONS

Third Week Brings Out Many Convincing Replies.

THREE weeks remain for contestants for the $100 prize for the best 10 reasons why people should come to Missouri. The contest will close May 31. Following are examples of reasons received during the past week:

A Newcomer's Reasons.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I enclose herewith my ten reasons why people should come to Missouri, but really there is only one and that is the first, the rest only tell why. I am not expecting the prize as I realize these are not very flattering to Missouri. It shows her to be a backward State (outside of St. Louis) but it is the truth nevertheless, especially in the Ozarks, and ought to be known.

BERTHA A. CAMPBELL.
A Newcomer,
Dixon, Mo.

Why People Should Come to Missouri:

1. Because Missouri needs men of brains, money and up-to-date business methods to open up her resources.
2. Soil, rich in minerals, is being used to yield a meager living by agriculture.
3. Vast forests are being used for tie timber at 25 cents per tie, when lumber is so valuable.
4. A natural Eden, there is no organization for marketing fruit, hence there is a great loss.
5. An ideal country for poultry and eggs, very little is marketed; also due to lack of organization, co-operation and high freight rates.
6. Beautiful in scenery, with its valley and mountain, the "cow path" is still used for a road.
7. Adapted to stock raising, there is no organization. The grower takes what the "stock man" offers.
8. The largest and most valuable crop, children, neglected. Their three to six months school year often interrupted by various demands at home or by impassable roads.
9. A dearth of carpenters, masons, plumbers and members of other trades, causes the native to live in the most primitive manner.
10. The artisan, school teacher, stock-raiser, road-builder, organizer, gardener, poultry raiser, fruit grower, lumberman and mine prospector will find rural Missouri virgin soil. Come and bring Twentieth Century methods.

A NEWCOMER.

A Self-Sustaining State.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

People should come to Missouri:

1. Because Missouri has as good a climate and soil as can be found anywhere.
2. Because Missouri has many retired farmers and business men.
3. Because Missouri is the place where you will forget all of your troubles.
4. Because when you need help you can always get it in Missouri.
5. Because if you come to Missouri you won't regret it.
6. Because Missouri is a self-sustaining State.
7. Because there is a home in Missouri for you if you come for it.
8. Because many foreigners have become rich in Missouri.
9. Because it is your duty to locate where you can do the best.
10. Because honesty is our policy in Missouri.

G. H. TUKE.
Boonville, Mo.

Reasons in Rhyme.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

1. The first reason is because
The State is ruled by strict laws
And as I have never been in any of the rest,
Of course I like Missouri the best.

2. Missouri is, I should guess,
In the middle of the U. S.

3. Because it is bounded by the Mississippi on the east,
And can easily be reached.

4. Because it has one city that
Ranks fourth in size
Which is large and beautiful to human eyes.
St. Louis is this city and everyone knows
This is where the crowd goes.

5. Missouri has lots of farms,
On which you can raise oats, wheat, rye or corn.

6. Because it has its coal mines,
Underground and elevated street car lines.

7. It has the largest shoe factories in the world.
You can see the flag.

8. It is a manufacturing center,
And is easy for ships to enter.

9. If I was far, far away
I could not stay,
For in Missouri I was born and raised,
And cannot give it enough praise.

10. In Missouri you never go broke;
This is not a joke.
If you want to act wise,
Come to Missouri before sunrise.

C. H. CALBREATH,
6?3A Bruno avenue, St. Louis.

Tells Why Chicks Die.

F. C. Reefer, the poultry expert, of 1891 Main street, Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free a valuable book entitled "White Diarrhea and How to Cure It." This remarkable book contains some new scientific facts on white diarrhea and tells how to prepare a simple solution that cures this terrible disease overnight. Everyone interested in poultry should certainly write Mr. Reefer for one of these free books. ADVERTISEMENT.

I commenced Jan. 3, 1910, and after taking 3 lessons took dictation, Jan. 10, was able to use entire system Jan. 18; completed March 11, 1910. (Signed) Herman Beckmann, 1221 Pine st. MARYLAND TERRACE
Will St. Louis Reach the Million Population Mark?

Certainly it will and that before long, too. It's growing more rapidly right now than you may think. Not in its history have conditions been so favorable to the progress of St. Louis as now—the very conditions that insure a city's prosperity.

When are you going to buy your suburban home? Don't wait for the city to reach the million population mark. If you do you'll be regretting lost opportunities.

Maryland Terrace, when St. Louis reaches the million mark, will be built up solidly. Thousands who could now well afford to secure a Maryland Terrace lot on our easy monthly deposit plan will regret having missed the opportunity when the price advances far beyond their reach.

Go out and see Maryland Terrace right away—study the advantages of its location, its health insuring elevations, beautiful surroundings and excellent transportation service.

Take the Olive (University) car and ride direct to the property or take advantage of the delightful automobile drive to Pennsylvania avenue.

TOMBRIDGE AGENCY

If you want a big residence bargain at about two-thirds of its value, look at this: 4978 Magnolia av., one block west of Tower Grove Park and King's highway; it is a two-story brick residence; it has three rooms on first floor and three rooms and bath on second floor, cemented cellar, lot 23x200; now, here is the great point to consider: The house is well built, but if it had been kept in good repair, we could easily sell it for $3200, but because it needs about $150 in repairs, we have cut the price to $2400 and if you can pay all cash we make a further cut of $100. If you buy this and put about $150 into repairs, we can sell it for you again at $3000 and will make a quick sale; if you are looking for bargains, don't miss this one; take Tower Grove car to King's highway and then walk three blocks north to Magnolia; make us an offer.

Northeast corner Hartford and Alfred av., lot 30x140, a beautiful cottage, standing near alley on Alfred st., front just one-half block south of Arsenal st.; front lot is vacant; fine corner for any business; both streets are fully improved and alley is now being made; look at it and make us offer. Washington Park Booming!

Factories Costing $3,000,000 Building

3000 Workmen Coming

1000 Houses Needed at Once

Washington Park is not a 20 or 30 acres subdivision, depending entirely on the growth of a community. It is a Great Combination Factory and Residence District Development — a model factory district and a beautiful residence section, side by side, located in and backed up by the fastest growing city in the United States—East St. Louis, Illinois. Three big factories are already located which will employ thousands of skilled workmen—more factories are coming, because our model manufacturing district has got anything in the world beaten to a frazzle for facilities. A thousand houses for rent and for sale are needed NOW, and values are climbing with the location of each new improvement. A public park and driving boulevard are established. Paved streets and street car line to center of district are already built.

This is an industrial development—value building for workingmen and investors. Whether you have $1.00 or $1000, here's your chance to make money.

B. A. Worthington, Pres. of the C. & A. R. R., in a public speech, Monday, said:

> "East St. Louis enjoys a natural advantage of position which could not be improved upon. A great farming district, underlaid with almost inexhaustible mineral resources—a combination that occurs nowhere else on the face of the earth in such bountiful profusion—is a material promise of immeasurable worth. As a manufacturing, concentrating and distributing center the future of this commonwealth holds greater promise than any city in the world. There is nothing impossible for East St. Louis."

That's why we grow. The big men see it. Why don't you—and get busy?

PARKVIEW

Compare PARKVIEW of today with PARKVIEW of one year ago. Did you ever see such an improvement? Each year PARKVIEW has grown more beautiful until today it is one of the most attractive Residence Parks in America.

A visitor from the EAST, after walking through Parkview and looking at the different homes, said: "While we have many beautiful Residence Places in the East, I have never seen a Residence Park where the general Architectural beauty of the Homes compares with that in Parkview."

We have only THIRTY-ONE unsold lots and when these are disposed of and improved in harmony with the 243 Residences now in Parkview, the "picture will be complete."

The lots we have for sale are very desirable ones.

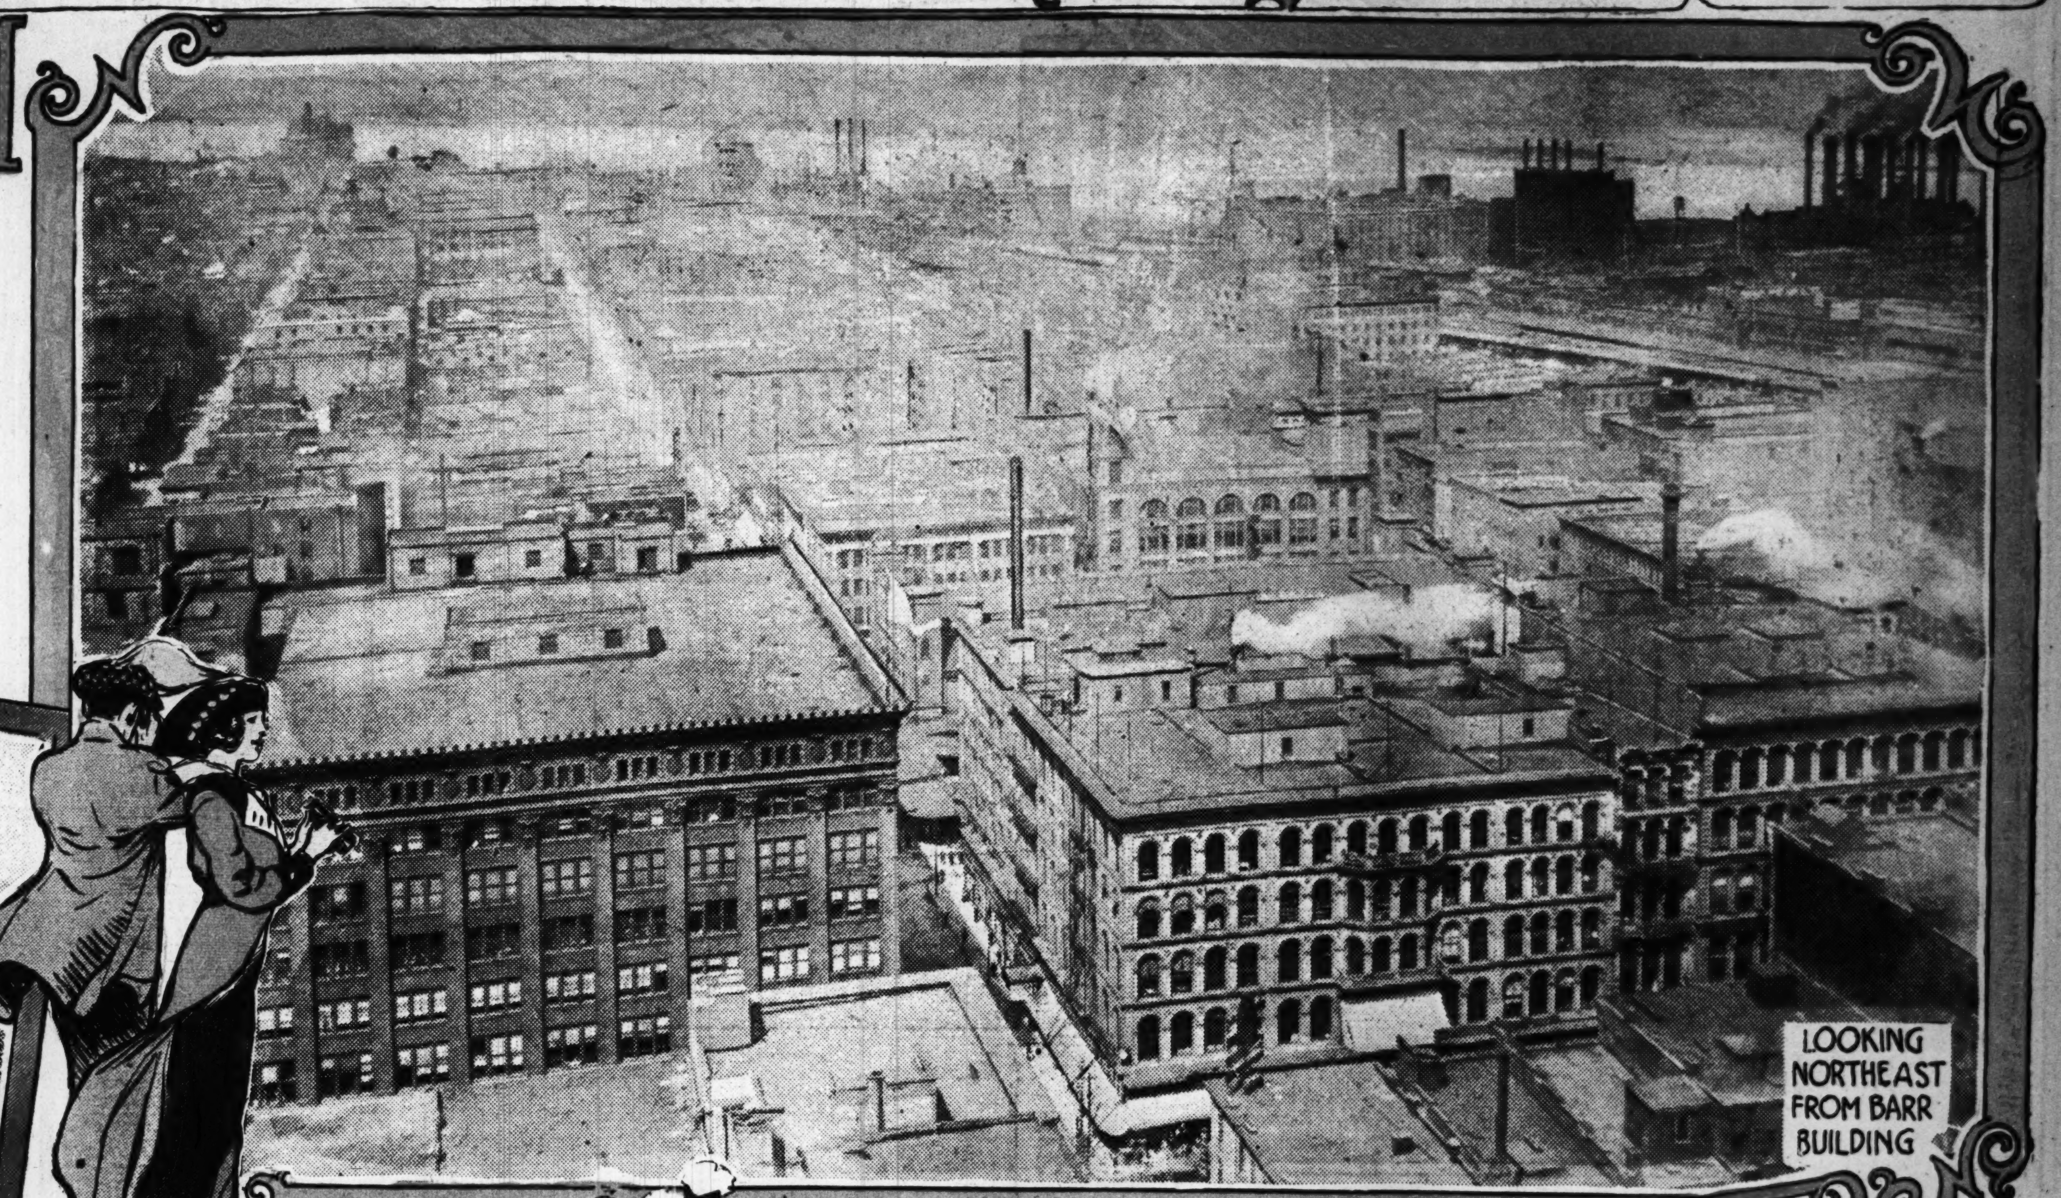
ST. LOUIS FROM THE TOP OF THE BARR BUILDING



LOOKING NORTHEAST FROM BARR BUILDING

VIEW NORTHWEST, from BARR BUILDING.

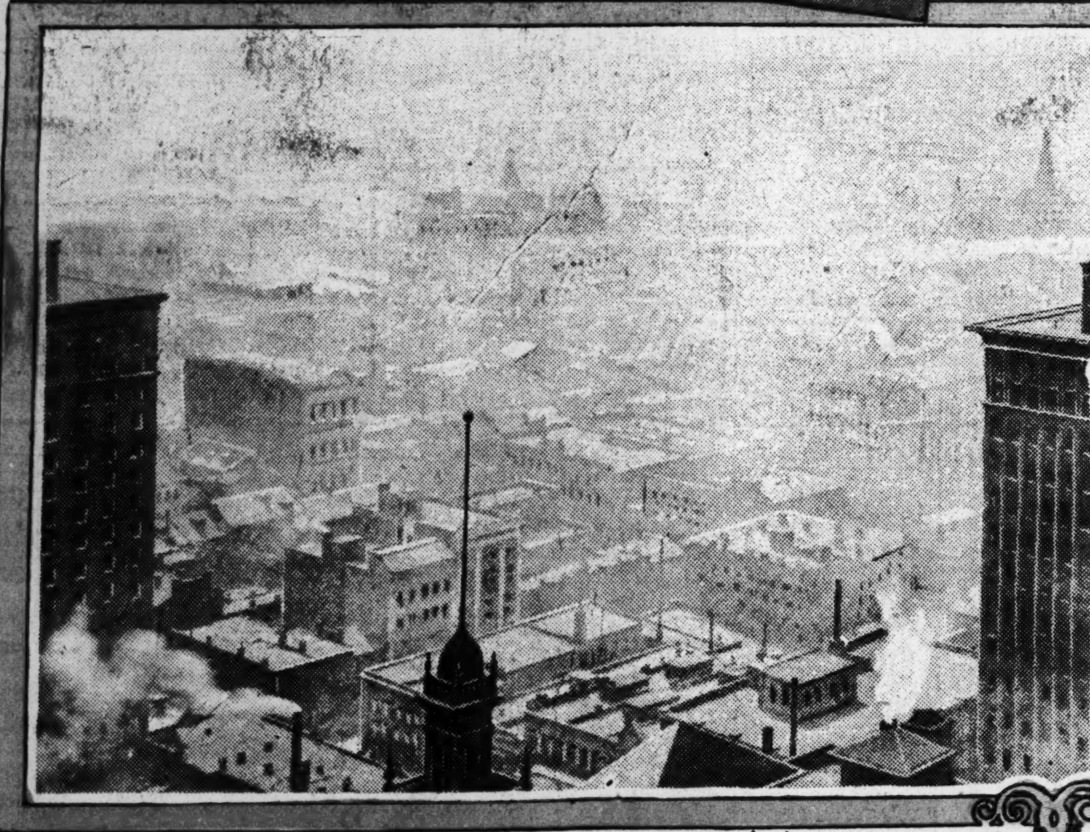
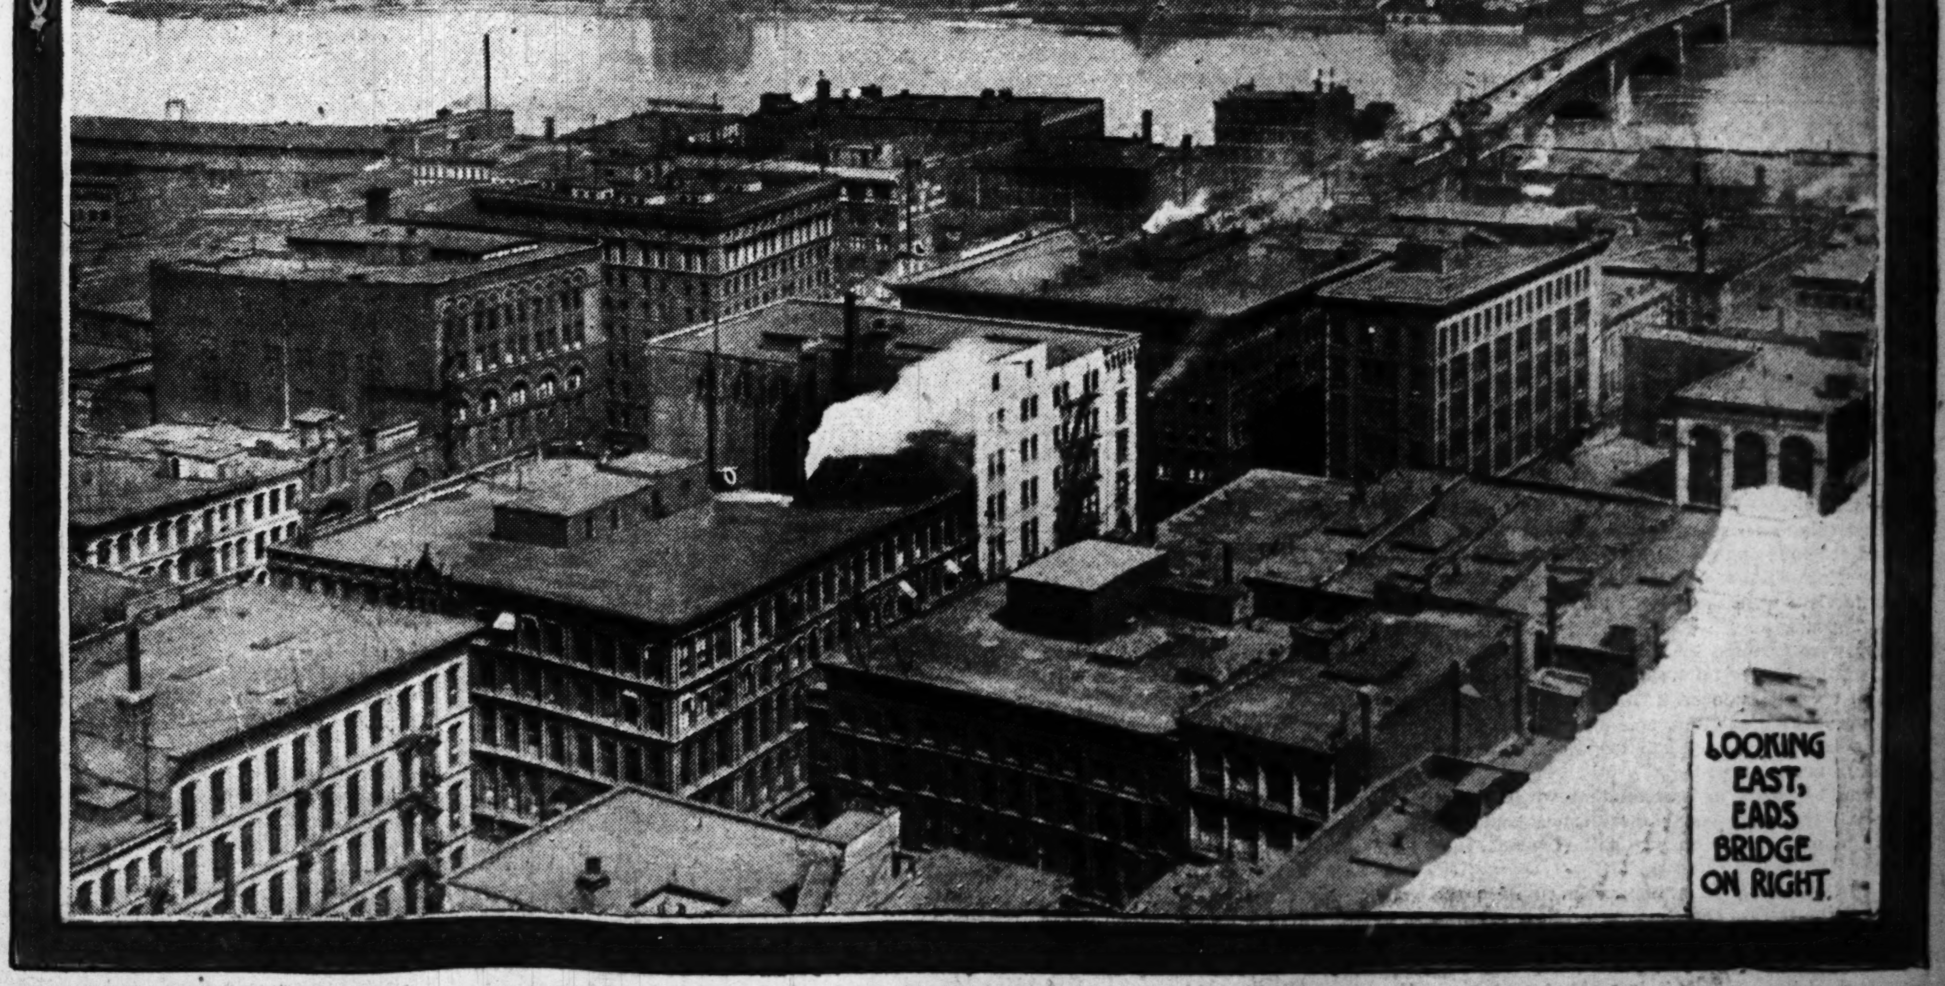
VIEW WEST LOOKING UP OLIVE STREET.



LOOKING SOUTHWEST, TOP OF HOLLAND B'LD'G in FOREGROUND.

NEW BARR B'LD'G. (RAILWAY EXCHANGE B'LD'G)



LOOKING EAST, EADS BRIDGE ON RIGHT.

ST. LOUIS has been inspected from nearly every point of view, but the unique photographs upon this page, which were taken by a Post-Dispatch photographer, display the city as beheld from an entirely new vantage—the top of the lofty Barr Building now approaching completion.

The panorama unrolled beneath the eye from this towering height at first glance seems a confused potpourri of skyscrapers, towers, roofs and canyon-like streets in which even the man who knows his downtown St. Louis may momentarily find himself astray.

Take, for instance, the photograph in the lower left-hand corner. How many St. Louisans would be able at once to identify the steeple surmounted by a flagstaff which rises in the foreground? It it the tower of the Holland Building, which, of the thousands who pass the Seventh street structure every day, it is probable scores have never even seen.

The Wright Building in the right foreground will probably be recognized without difficulty, as will the old Four Courts Building in the center and the city hall at its right. Over the background hovers a mist indicating that the Mill Creek Valley is hidden beneath.

The picture in the upper left corner displays a thick maze of roofs, church steeples and dwellings. A clew to the labyrinth may be found in the twin-towered church near the center. It is St. Joseph's Catholic Church, at Eleventh and Biddle streets. Far away in the background stretch the spans of the McKinley Bridge.

Sixth street is represented only by a chasm in the picture in the upper right-hand corner of the page, the busy avenue itself, with its thronging lines of street cars, being concealed by the stone walls which arise on either side.

The spacious distances compressed in these bird's-eye views may be estimated from this, that the low-ranging structure with towers at the corners and with arched roof, which seems to lie immediately beneath the battlements of the Barr Building, is really the Union Market, four blocks away. The group of great department stores in the vicinity of S th street and Washington avenue will be quickly identified.

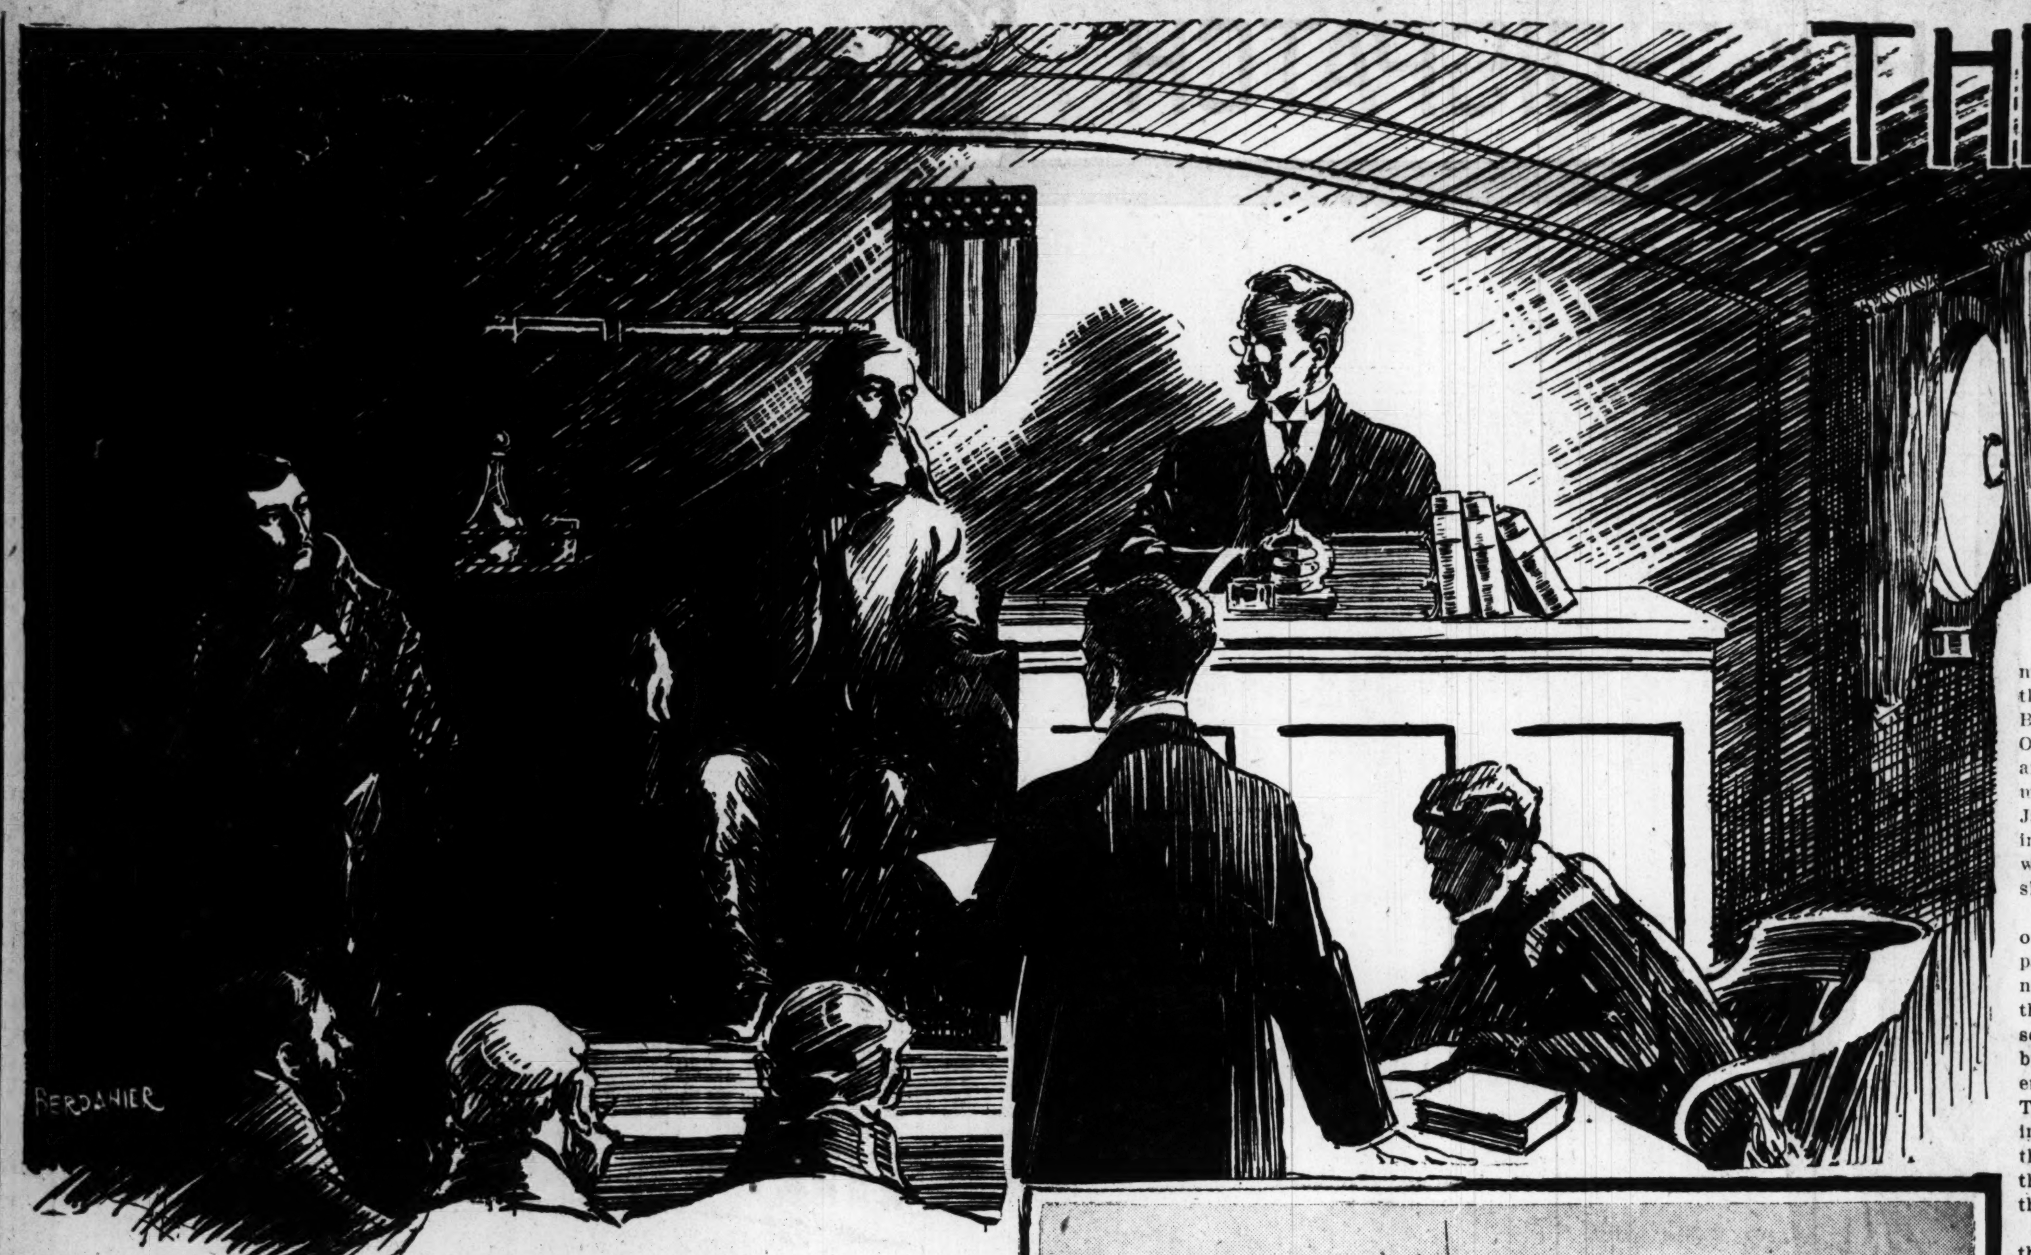
The giant Eads Bridge spanning the mighty Mississippi seems a plaything set over a little rivulet in the striking photograph at the lower right hand. The size of the grain elevators on the East St. Louis river front may be estimated from the bulk they retain at this perspective.

A central point in the maze of edifices in the foreground from which the buildings may be identified is the Boatman's Bank, at Fourth street and Washington avenue, which may be recognized by its rounded facade at the southeast corner. About it is piled what seems a heap of blocks, which prove to be the large hardware, furniture, carpet and dry goods houses which cluster in the vicinity.

How much difficulty there was in obtaining these pictures is shown by the fact that the photographer was compelled to wait for more than a month for favorable weather to arrive. Several times he ascended to the top of the building only to find that the view beyond three or four blocks in every direction was masked by a thick haze of mist rising from the river. Because of the recent abatement campaign, he was little hampered by smoke, save for that drifting across the rive from East St. Louis.



THE LAST CRUISE OF THE "FLOATING COURT"

The World's Strangest Craft, Which Transports Itself to Scenes of Crimes by Steam Power, Soon Sets Out for Alaska, Where Sailing Tribunal, Plying From Port to Port in Past Years, Has Been Terror to Wrongdoers and Ended Crime Wave by Bringing Malefactors to Swift Justice

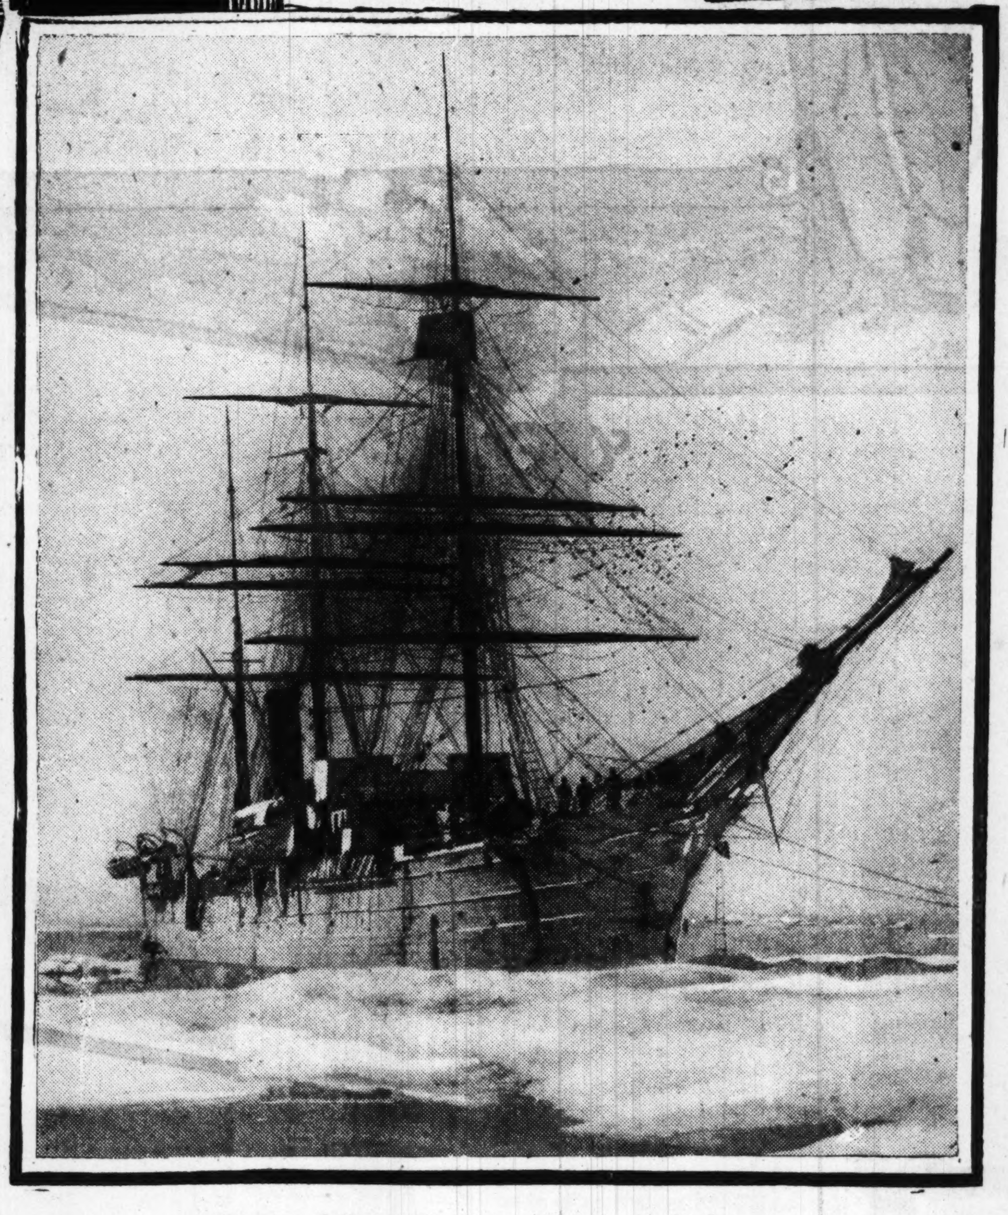
ORDERS have been issued by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo for the Government's "floating court" to hold itself in readiness for a tour of the icy waters of Alaska for the purpose of dispensing justice in our Northwestern possession. Instructions have been sent to the commanding officer of the United States Revenue cutter Thetis to be prepared to report at Valdez not later than July 13, to take aboard a Judge, together with his court officials over a field of the Federal district of Alaska. During July and August, and well into September, the Thetis will touch at many points at which the court will hear and adjudicate both civil and criminal cases.

This year's expedition of the "floating court" will be the fourth one that has been made into Alaskan waters. The Thetis reached San Francisco recently from its winter station at Honolulu and her commanding officer, Capt. C. S. Cochran, will be ready to take the court on its cruise beginning about the middle of July.

The "floating court" is a creation of the Department of Justice and the Treasury Department. Organized four years ago, its operations have resulted in stamping out crime in Alaska to a very appreciable extent.

Owing to the inaccessibility of a vast majority of the towns on the Alaskan coast, and the difficulty presented in bringing criminals to trial, it was determined that this "court" should be brought to the scene of the crime where justice could be meted out to the offenders without months and sometimes years of delay.

Before the creation of the "floating court" Alaska had been the haven of the worst class of criminals. They represented all types and nations. They have been characterized by Federal officials whose business it has been to enforce the laws as the "scum of the earth." They came mostly from San Francisco and Seattle in ships bound for the cannery section of Alaska. They were given a certain amount of employment and then turned loose on the community where they were guilty of every crime in the criminal code, and on account of the ease with which they made their get-away, very few, if any were ever apprehended and brought to trial.



Revenue Cutter Thetis in ice block in Arctic Ocean.

But the "floating court" has succeeded in putting a stop to this wave of crime in Alaska. Offenders are beginning to realize that they will be punished and punished in quick order. Murderers have received life sentences at the hands of the court and highwaymen have been given their just deserts. Rarely has any guilty party escaped.

The "floating court" has also proved a very valuable addition to Uncle Sam's law-enforcing agents in Alaska in that it has been the means of saving thousands of dollars which have heretofore been paid out as witness fees. Distances are great in Alaska, and it is a difficult matter to bring together witnesses to a crime without entailing great expense on the Government.

The last cruise of the Thetis with the "floating court" aboard, left Valdez at daybreak on the morning of July 15, 1912. The members of the court consisted of Judge Thomas R. Lyons, Assistant Prosecutor J. Lindley Green, Deputy Clerk Thomas S. Scott, Court Reporter Ralph A. Robertson, Deputy Marshal George R. Goshaw, and Attorney O. A. Tucker, who looked after the defense of those who were brought to trial. The Thetis steamed down Prince William Sound.

A stop of three hours was made at Seward on court business on the morning of July 16. From Seward the Thetis proceeded to Iliamna Bay, where Judge Lyons, who was not a good sailor, was put ashore so as to avoid a long stretch of the trip by water. Judge Lyons made the trip overland and down Iliamna Lake to Naknek. From Naknek he went up to Dillingham where court was to be held on one of the cannery tugs. Judge Lyons was accompanied on his overland trip by Messrs. Scott and Robertson.

The Thetis proceeded from Iliamna Bay down Shelikof Strait and arrived at Delarof Harbor, Unga, July 20. Here the Assistant District Attorney and a Deputy Marshal were landed on court business and were so occupied until midnight, when they returned to the vessel.

The Thetis continued from Unalaska with the members of the United States District Court on the afternoon of July 25 and headed for Bristol Bay. On July 27 the American schooner Maid of Orleans was boarded by the party from the Thetis and at the request of the master and upon recommendation of the surgeon of the vessel, took off James McDonald, seaman, who was pronounced insane, for transportation to Nushagak, where he was turned over to the United States Commissioner for commitment.

The Thetis arrived off Naknek on the morning of July 28 and anchored in the bay. The court party was sent ashore in a launch. On the afternoon of July 29, the court party returned on board the Thetis with six witnesses and Captain Peterson of the ship Star of the Chila, who was detailed by Superintendent Nelson of the Alaska Packers Association cannery at Naknek to pilot the Thetis to Nushagak. At 4 o clock the next morning, the Thetis got under way and steamed up the Nushagak River, arriving at Dillingham in the afternoon of July 29, to await the return of the District Court.

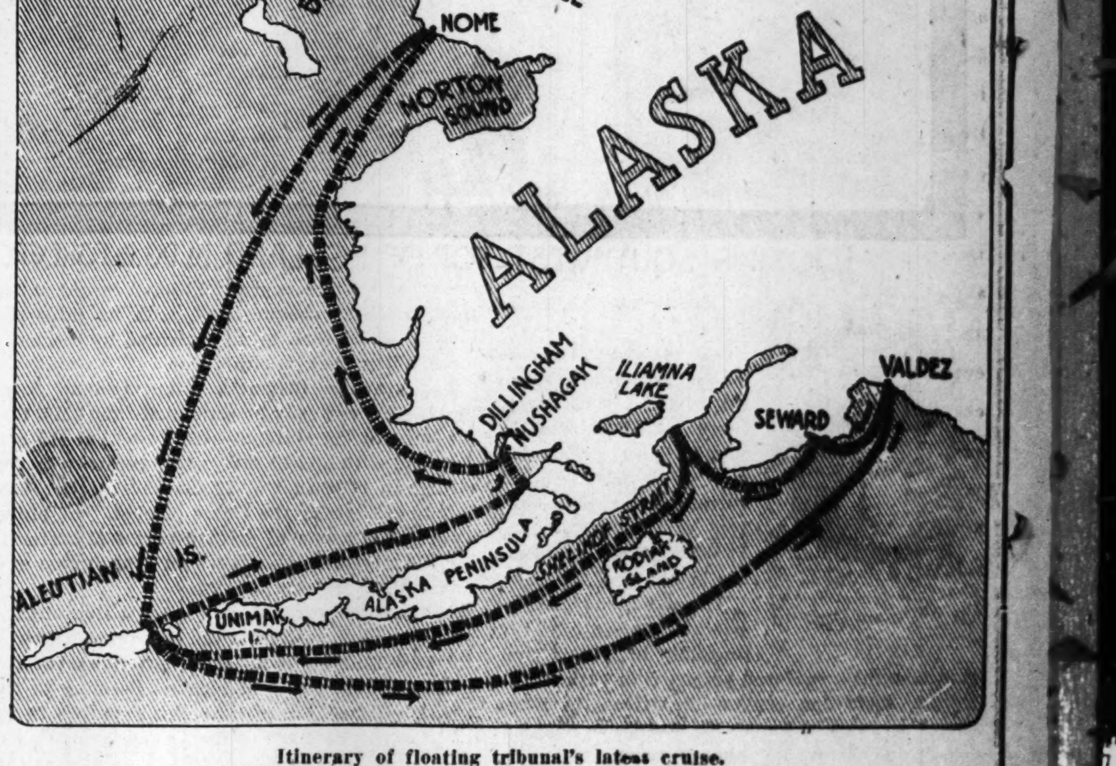
On August 9, Judge Lyons and the members of the court returned on board the Thetis, with the following guards and prisoners:

N. H. Atkinson, B. Gray and J. Dunn, guards; F Fragome, D. Flores, M. Sato, E. Kolikane, F. Wallelupi and F. Mathieson, prisoners. Both grand and petty jurors were sworn in at once and in three days the grand jurors had returned six indictments, all for serious offenses. Four of those indicted were found guilty in the trials which followed at the rate of one a day and sentence was imposed. Frank Fragome got life imprisonment for murder; D. Flores was sentenced to 10 years for murder; M. Sato, six years for murder and Edwin Kolikane, a Hawaiian, 18 months for assault with a dangerous weapon.

All the business of the court was done between the afternoon of July 29 and the morning of August 8, and the following day the Thetis sailed for Nome, 660 miles away, where Judge Lyons convened a special session of court in that division on August 15.

The other members of the party visited the shore but on account of a storm coming up suddenly they were unable to return to the Thetis until the evening of the sixteenth, when the vessel got under way for Port Clarence to fill her tanks with fresh water. The Thetis returned to Nome on the afternoon of the 18th.

Three sailors from the wrecked schooner Dwyer requested passage from Teller to Nome, but as the weather conditions might have prevented a landing at Nome and the sailors were unwilling to be brought to Unalaska, they were advised to await the arrival of the revenue cutter Bear.



Itinerary of floating tribunal's latest cruise.

While at Nome the District Attorney furnished a copy of a telegram relative to alleged illegal fishing on Attu Island. A copy of this message was transmitted to Capt. W. F. Reynolds, commanding the Behring Sea Fleet.

At the request of the Marshal of the Second Judicial District, Captain Cochran, in command of the Thetis, attended a conference with him and the Assistant District Attorney regarding a murder on Nunivak Island. As there was a strong probability from the information at hand that the murder was not on the island but on a trading expedition in the mainland, it was decided at this conference to hold the matter over until later when the Marshal would confer with the commanding officer of the revenue cutter Bear.

The Thetis steamed from Unalaska on August 3 and good weather was encountered until the morning of the 4th. Just after passing Unga Island, the weather shot in so thick that it was necessary to come to anchor. In the afternoon the wind increased to such an extent that anchorage was unsafe, and the Thetis got under way and anchored between Fox Island and Deer Island. At 4 p. m. of the 5th the wind increased in force and hauled to westward, making the anchorage very bad. Again the Thetis got under way, and anchored in King's Cove, where it rode out a gale with both anchors down.

On the morning of the 6th of September, the wind having moderated, the Thetis got under way and steamed to eastward through the inside passage. It cast anchor in Popof Strait. At noon on the 8th of September, the Thetis came to anchor in Delarof Harbor, Unga Island and landed the court officials. The officials having completed their work by 2 o'clock of the same day, the Thetis got under way and arrived at Kodiak on the morning of the 11th, where the court officials were again landed.

At 3 o'clock of the same day the Thetis sailed for Seward. At 10 p. m. a fresh northeast gale sprung up with a rapidly falling barometer and a rough sea. The Thetis was hove to. At noon on the 12th of September the wind moderated somewhat, but owing to the rough sea the Thetis was cruised to half speed until 10 p. m. by which time the wind had shifted and was blowing a fresh gale with a rough sea. This continued until the afternoon of the 13th, when the Thetis was headed for Deward.

At 11 p. m. of the same day a message from the United States Marshal at Valdez was received on board the Thetis stating that he desired to send the prisoners out on the United States ship Alemeda, so it was necessary for the Thetis to reach Valdez Sunday morning. At midnight of the 13th, the course of the Thetis was changed to make the entrance to Prince William Sound. Upon arrival here, all the prisoners, guards and court officials left the Thetis and the "floating court" for last year had concluded its labors.

This year, the court will be in charge of Judge Peter D. Oldfield of the Valdez District. The same itinerary has been mapped out, and the Thetis will again be in command of Captain Cochran.

The Thetis was originally a whaler. She was built in 1881 at Dundee, Scotland. In 1884 she was fitted out as a part of the Greeley relief expedition, and was the flagship of Lieutenant Schley, who was a member of the party. The other vessels accompanying the relief expedition were the revenue cutter Bear and the Alert, the last named having been loaned by the Canadian Government. The Greeley relief party left New York in April, 1884, and returned with the survivors to Portsmouth, N. H. in August of the same year.

The Thetis is a bark-rigged, wooden vessel, of 1250 tons. She is 188 feet long, draws 17 feet of water, and carries three guns. She has a complement of 70 officers and crew.

THIS DINOSAUR HAD SAWS ON BACK

THE various parts of the skeleton of the armored dinosaur found near Canyon City, Colo., by M. P. Felch, have been assembled and mounted by C. W. Gilmore, and may now be seen in the new building of the National Museum at Washington. The fossil skeleton is 20 feet long and weighs about a ton.

It is of the Jurassic age, and is scientifically termed Stegosaurus stenops, Marsh. The Stegosaurs, or plated lizards, are among the most singular of all animals. Even in the strange group of dinosaurs they are exceptionally odd.

Their bodies were long and tapering, beginning at a small, actually diminutive, head, swelling to a rather thick middle, and again growing smaller toward the long conical tail, which looked like a combination of those of a kangaroo and lizard. Their forelegs were short and added to their kangaroo appearance.

They were armored by horny patches and buttons, set into a very thick skin, giving the appearance of an old-fashioned nail-studded door. The tails were armed on either side near the tips with large spines which varied in length from several inches to nearly three feet.

It can be easily understood that when swung by a tail 10 feet in length these spines could inflict terrible wounds on any animal which ventured within reach.

A further defensive armor extended from the head to the tail, in the shape of a series of large thin, sharp-edged plates, arranged vertically in rows, causing the back to resemble huge crosscut saw blades. When it is realized that these plates rose from the back to the height of two feet in some cases, that they were firmly imbedded in the beast's tough skin, and that they were covered with a growth of horn making them still longer, it may be imagined what a forbidding and warlike appearance these Stegosaurs presented.

It is hard to believe that they lived on grass and other plants alone, although the form of their teeth indicates that such was the case.

They were probably of a low order of intelligence, as they have extremely small brains. Doubtless they only possessed sufficient sense to enable them to walk about, eat and sleep. It is for this reason, perhaps, that they were so well protected. Not being in the least clever or even wise enough to protect themselves, they were encased in a suit of armor calculated to make their enemies, if they had any, very cautious about attacking them.

FACTS ABOUT INFLUENZA ❧ ❧

WHILE there has not been an actual epidemic of influenza or "la grippe" this spring, there has been a very large number of cases, especially in the form in which the nose and throat are affected. One of the greatest specialists in New York, speaking of this the other day, said:

"We really know little more about la grippe today than we did when it first made its appearance. There is no doubt that it is a distinct disease and to be treated as such, but it has this peculiarity—that it masquerades as any one of a dozen other diseases. It searches out and attacks whatever organ is weakest or most susceptible. A person with a delicate throat will have it in the form of laryngitis or tonsilitis. One with delicate lungs may have it as pneumonia, bronchitis or pleurisy. In other persons it is the kidneys, the stomach or the liver that is attacked.

"There is one bacillus, the streptococcus, that is always found in la grippe. It is an active bacillus and easily communicated from one person to another. This is why la grippe is so contagious. But, fortunately, the streptococcus perishes quickly outside the body, and that is why the contagion is easy to avoid and why as soon as the patient is cured all danger of contagion vanishes.

"Persons with la grippe should sleep alone, with open windows, they should not kiss others, nor should they go into closed apartments where there are crowds. These are all the precautions necessary, however, and there is no need of fumigation or the use of disinfectants other than gargling the throat and rinsing the mouth with some such wash as this: Four teaspoonfuls of water mixed with one teaspoonful each of listerine and peroxide of hydrogen."

Prior to the present war, Adrianople had a population of 70,000, half of whom were Turks, the rest Bulgarians, Armenians and Jews.

Motor omnibuses in which a gasoline engine operates a dynamo to provide the motive power are proving successful in London and Liverpool.

Twelve thousand structures of various kinds were erected in New York City in the last year, representing an expenditure of $207,000,000.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT'S STORY OF HIS LIFE

"Battling Nelson Once Expressed Commiseration," Says Author, "Because, as President, I Did Not Get Anything Like the Money Return That He Aggregated During the Same Term in the Ring"

"The VIGOR of LIFE"

WHEN obliged to live in cities, I for a long time found that boxing and wrestling enabled me to get a good deal of exercise in condensed and attractive form. I was reluctantly obliged to abandon both as I grew older. I dropped the wrestling earliest. When I became Governor, the champion middleweight wrestler of America happened to be in Albany, and I got him to come round three or four afternoons a week.

Incidentally I may mention that his presence caused me a difficulty with the Comptroller, who refused to audit a bill I put in for a wrestling mat, explaining that I could have a billiard table, billiards being recognized as a proper Gubernatorial amusement, but that a wrestling mat symbolized something unusual and unheard of and could not be permitted. The middleweight champion was, of course, so much better than I was that he could not only take care of himself but of me too and see that I was not hurt—for wrestling is a much more violent amusement than boxing. But after a couple of months he had to go away, and he left as a substitute a good-humored, stalwart professional oarsman.

© 1902 BY CLINEDINST, WASHINGTON, D.C

Col. Roosevelt on horseback.

The oarsman turned out to know very little about wrestling. He could not even take care of himself, not to speak of me. By the end of our second afternoon one of his long ribs had been caved in and two of my short ribs badly damaged, and my left shoulder blade so nearly shoved out of place that it creaked. He was nearly as pleased as I was when I told him I thought we would "vote the war a failure" and abandon wrestling. After that I took up boxing again.

> "Once I invited an entire class of officers who were attending lectures at the war college to come on one of these walks; I chose a route which gave us the hardest climbing along the rocks and the deepest crossing of the creek; and my army friends enjoyed it hugely—being the right sort, to a man."

While President I used to box with some of the aids, as well as play singlestick with Gen. Wood. After a few years I had to abandon boxing as well as wrestling, for in one bout a young captain of artillery cross-countered me on the eye, and the blow smashed the little blood-vessels. Fortunately it was my left eye, but the sight has been dim ever since, and if it had been the right eye I should have been entirely unable to shoot. Accordingly I thought it better to acknowledge that I had become an elderly man and would have to stop boxing. I then took up jiu-jitsu for a year or two.

When I was in the Legislature and was working very hard, with little chance of getting out of doors, all the exercise I got was boxing and wrestling. A young fellow turned up who was a second-rate prize-fighter, the son of one of my old boxing teachers. For several weeks I had him come round to my rooms in the morning to put on the gloves with me for half an hour. Then he suddenly stopped, and some days later I received a letter of woe from him from the jail. I found that he was by profession a burglar, and merely followed boxing as the amusement of his lighter moments, or when business was slack.

Naturally, being fond of boxing, I grew to know a good many prize fighters, and to most of those I knew I grew genuinely attached. I have never been able to sympathize with the outcry against prize fighters. The only objection I have to the prize ring is the crookedness that has attended its commercial development. Outside of this I regard boxing, whether professional or amateur, as a first-class sport, and I do not regard it as brutalizing.

Of course matches can be conducted under conditions that make them brutalizing. But this is true of football games and of most other rough and vigorous sports. Most certainly prize fighting is not half as brutalizing or demoralizing as many forms of big business and of the legal work carried on in connection with big business. Powerful, vigorous men of strong animal development must have some way in which their animal spirits can find vent.

When I was Police Commissioner I found (and Jacob Riis will back me up in this) that the establishment of a boxing club in a tough neighborhood always tended to do away with knifing and gun fighting among the young fellows who would otherwse have been in murderous gangs. Many of these young fellows were not naturally criminals at all, but they had to have some outlet for their activities.

"Young Christians' Shoulders Sloping Like Champagne Bottles."

In the same way I have always regarded boxing as a first-class sport to encourage in the Young Men's Christian Association. I do not like to see young Christians with shoulders that slope like a champagne bottle.

Of course boxing should be encouraged in the army and navy. I was first drawn to two naval chaplains, Fathers Chidwick and Rainey, by finding that each of them had bought half a dozen sets of boxing gloves and encouraged their crews in boxing.

When I was Police Commissioner, I heartily approved the effort to get boxing clubs started in New York on a clean basis. Later I was reluctantly obliged to come to the conclusion that the prize ring had become hopelessly debased and demoralized, and as Governor I aided in the passage of and signed the bill putting a stop to professional boxing for money. This was because some of the prize fighters themselves were crooked, while the crowd of hangers-on who attended and made up and profited by the matches had placed the whole business on a basis of commercialism and brutality that was intolerable.

I shall always maintain that boxing contests themselves make good, healthy sport. It is idle to compare them with bull fighting; the torture and death of the wretched horses in bull fighting is enough of itself to blast the sport, no matter how great the skill and prowess shown by the bull fighters. Any sport in which the death and torture of animals is made to furnish pleasure to the spectators is debasing. There should always be the opportunity provided in a glove fight or bare-fist fight to stop it when one competitor is hopelessly outclassed or too badly hammered.

But the men who take part in these fights are hard as nails, and it is not worth while to feel sentimental about their receiving punishment which, as a matter of fact, they do not mind. Of course the men who look on ought to be able to stand up with the gloves, or without them, themselves; I have scant use for the type of sportsmanship which consists merely in looking on at the feats of someone else.

Some as good citizens as I know are or were prize fighters. Take Mike Donovan of New York. He and his family represent a type of American citizenship of which we have a right to be proud. Mike is a devoted temperance man, and can be relied upon for every movement in the interest of good citizenship.

This Marriage was solemnized between us, Theodore Roosevelt in the Presence of us, Cecil A. Spring Rice

Emily Tyler Carow

Certificate of Col. Roosevelt's marriage in London, in which he gave his profession as "ranchman."

I was first intimately thrown with him when I was Police Commissioner. One evening he and I—both in dress suits—attended a temperance meeting of Catholic societies.

It culminated in a lively set-to between myself and a Tammany Senator who was a very good fellow, but whose ideas of temperance differed radically from mine, and, as the event proved, from those of the majority of the meeting. Mike evidently regarded himself as my backer—he was sitting on the platform beside me—and I think felt as pleased and interested as if the set-to had been physical instead of merely verbal. Afterwards I grew to know him well both while I was Governor and while I was President, and many a time he came on and boxed with me.

Battling Nelson was another stanch friend, and he and I think alike on most questions of political and industrial life; although he once expressed to me some commiseration because, as President, I did not get anything like the money return for my services that he aggregated during the same term of years in the ring.

Bob Fitzsimmons was another good friend of mine. He has never forgotten his early skill as a blacksmith, and among the things that I value and always keep in use is a penholder made by Bob out of a horseshoe, with an inscription saying that it is "Made for and presented to President Theodore Roosevelt by his friend and admirer, Robert Fitzsimmons."

I have for a long time had the friendship of John L. Sullivan, than whom in his prime no better man ever stepped into the ring. He is now a Massachusetts farmer John used occasionally to visit me at the White House, his advent always causing a distinct flutter among the waiting Senators and Congressmen. When I went to Africa he presented me with a gold mounted rabbit's foot for luck. I carried it through my African trip; and I certainly had good luck.

On one occasion one of my prize-fighting friends called on me at the White House on business. He explained that he wished to see me alone, sat down opposite me, and put a very expensive cigar on the desk, saying, "Have a cigar." I thanked him and said I did not smoke, to which he responded, "Put it in your pocket." He then added, "Take another; put both in your pocket." This I accordingly did.

Having thus shown at the outset the necessary formal courtesy, my visitor, an old and valued friend, proceeded to explain that a nephew of his had enlisted in the Marine Corps, but had been absent without leave, and was threatened with dishonorable discharge on the ground of desertion. My visitor, a good citizen and a patriotic American, was stung to the quick at the thought of such an incident occurring in his family, and he explained to me that it must not occur, that there must not be disgrace to the family, although he would be delighted to have the offender "handled rough" to teach him a needed lesson; he added that he wished I would take him and handle him myself, for he knew that I would see that he "got all that was coming to him."

Then a look of pathos came into his eyes, and he explained: "That boy I just cannot understand. He was my sister's favorite son, and I always took a special interest in him myself. I did my best to bring him up the way he ought to go. But there was just nothing to be done with him. His tastes were naturally low. He took to music!" What form this debasing taste for music assumed I did not inquire; and I was able to grant my friend's wish.

Swimming the Potomac on "Point to Point" Walks.

While in the White House I always tried to get a couple of hours' exercise in the afternoon—sometimes tennis, more often riding, or else a rough cross-country walk, perhaps down Rock Creek, which was then as wild as a stream in the White Mountains, or on the Virginia side along the Potomac.

My companions at tennis or on these rides and walks we gradually grew to style the Tennis Cabinet; and then we extended the term to take in many of my old-time Western friends such as Ben Daniels, Seth Bulloch, Luther Kelly, and others who had taken part with me in more serious outdoor adventures than walking and riding for pleasure.

Often, especially in the winters and early springs, we would arrange for a point to point walk, not turning aside for anything—for instance, swimming Rock Creek or even the Potomac if it came in our way. Of course under such circumstances we had to arrange that our return to Washington should be when it was dark, so that our appearance might scandalize no one. On several occasions we thus swam Rock Creek in the early spring when the ice was floating thick upon it. If we swam the Potomac, we usually took off our clothes.

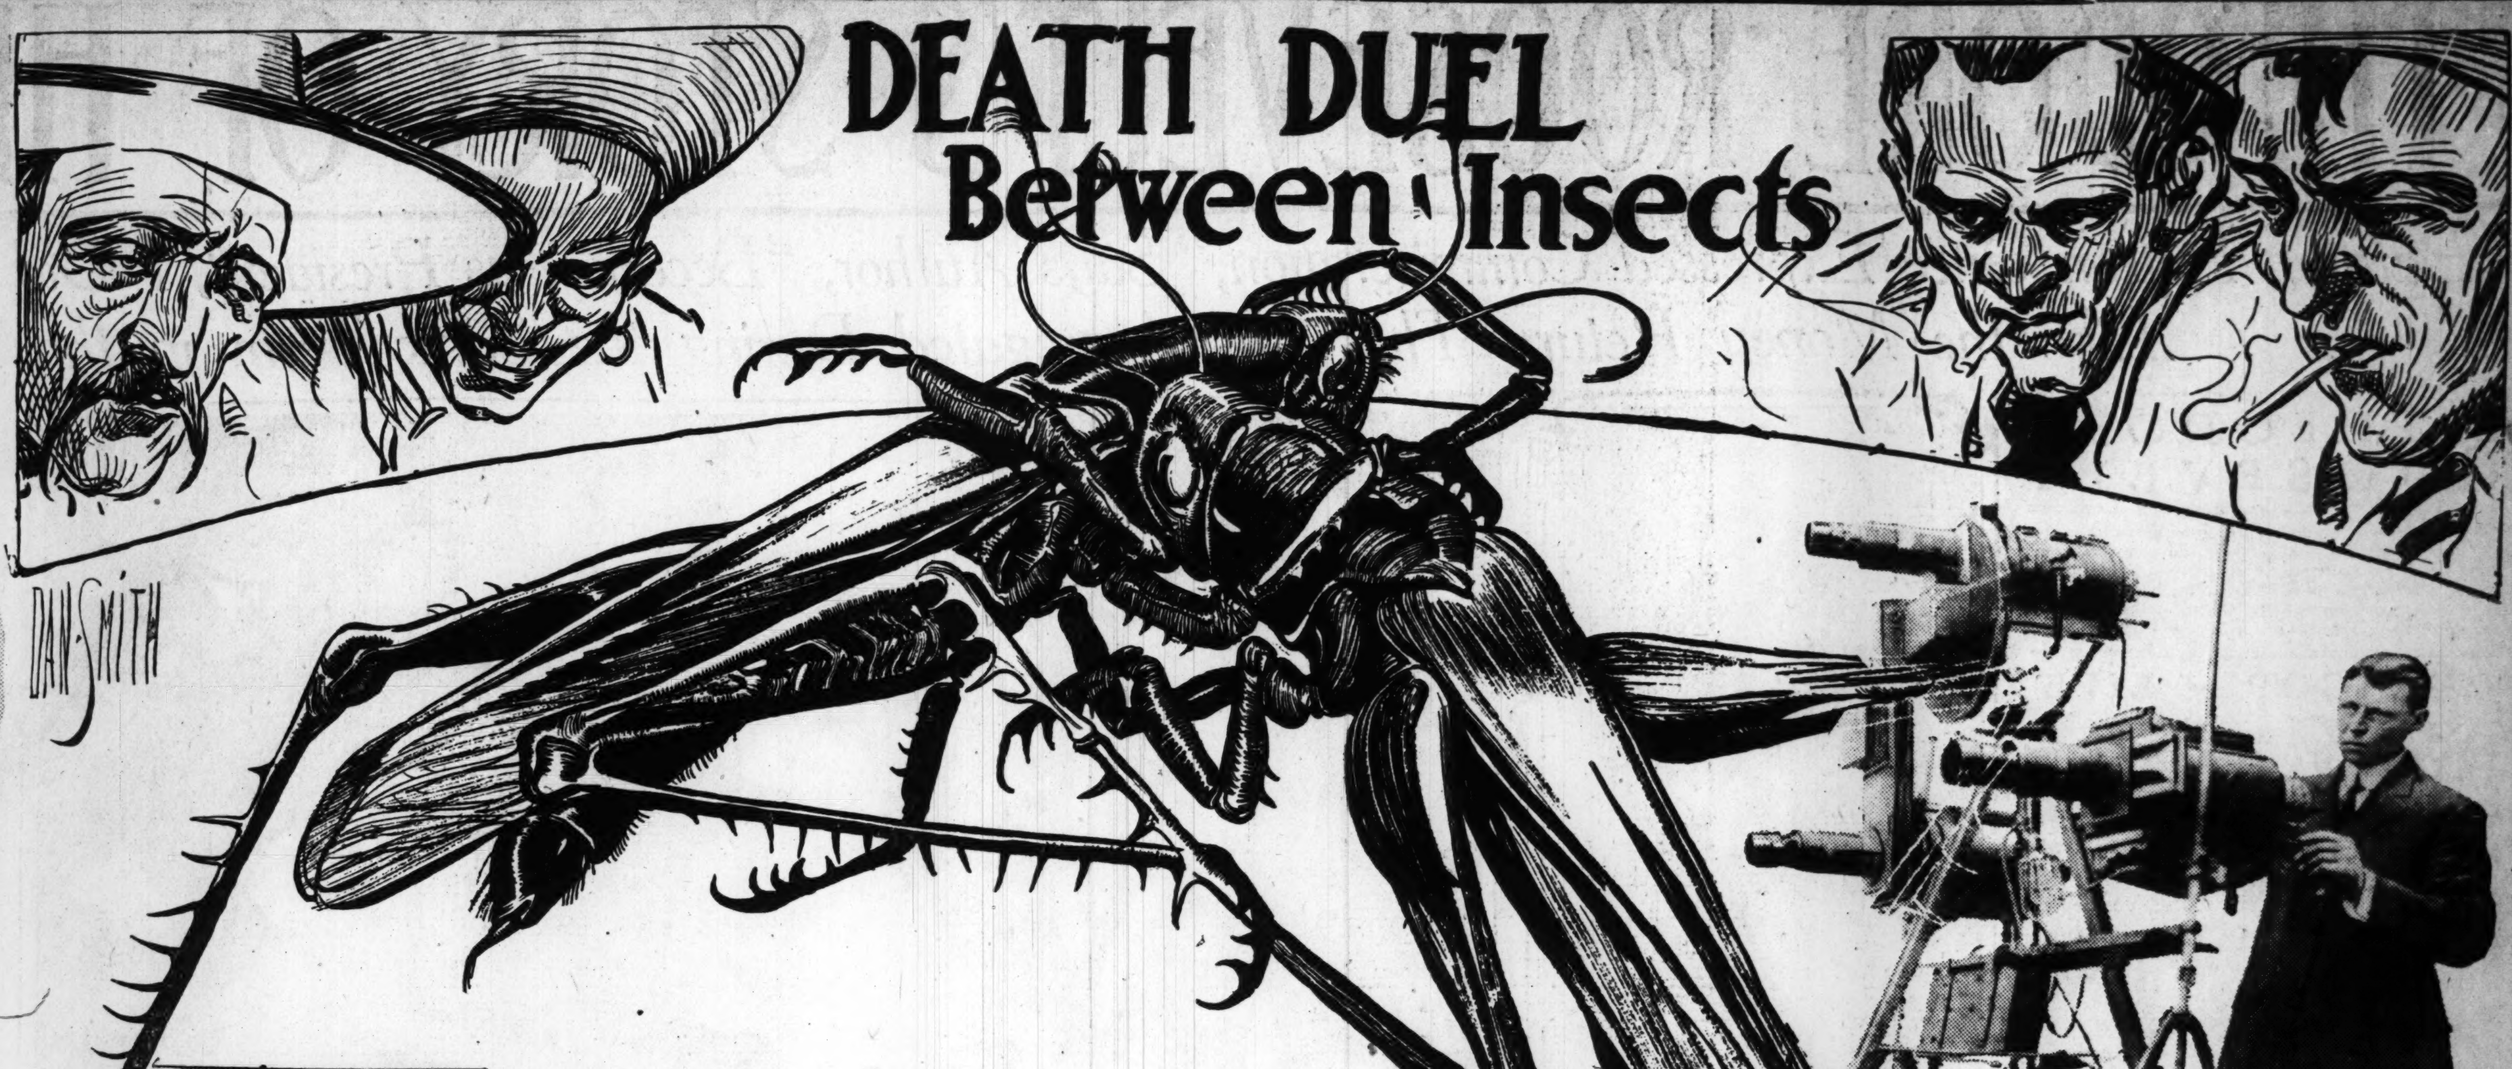
We liked Rock Creek for these walks because we could do so much scrambling and climbing along the cliffs; there was almost as much climbing when we walked down the Potomac to Washington from the Virginia end of the Chain Bridge.

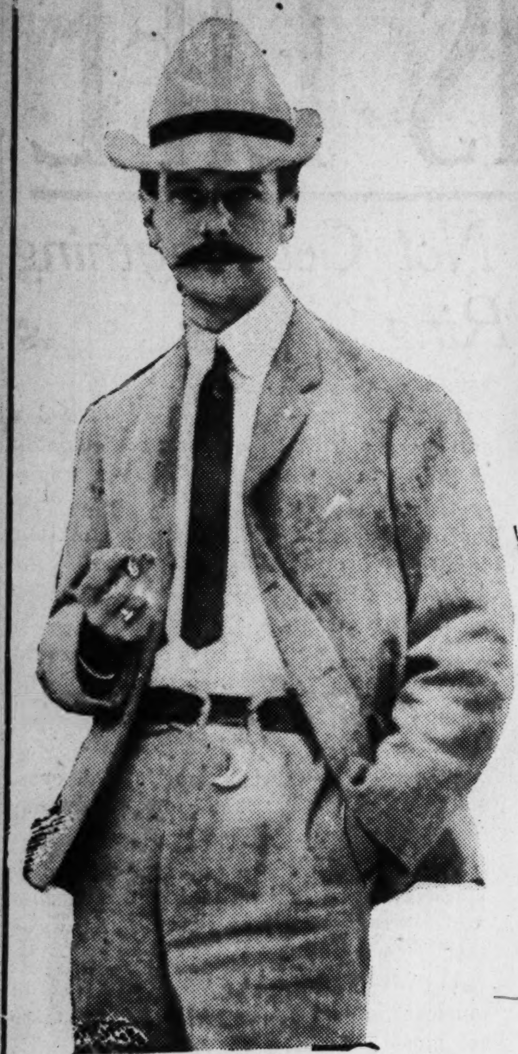
Once I invited an entire class of officers who were attending lectures at the War College to come on one of these walks; I chose a route which gave us the hardest climbing along the rocks and the deepest crossings of the creek; and my army friends enjoyed it hugely—being the right sort, to a man.

Theodore Roosevelt

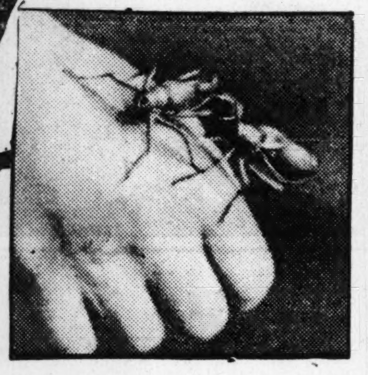
"How to win success" might be the title of the ensuing chapter of Theodore Roosevelt's own story of his life, which will appear in this magazine next Sunday. It is chiefly the success, not of the man of genius, but of the average normal man of which the author writes; and he insists, for all his distinguished career, that it is this class to which he himself belongs. "I have never won anything," he confesses, "without hard labor and the exercise of my best judgment and careful planning and working long in advance."

DEATH DUEL Between Insects





RAY L. DITMARS.



An insect battle to the death.

Mexican horned toad pursuing beetle.

New motion picture machine with "moonlight" lamp for recording lives of nature's smallest peoples.

Newly Invented Motion Camera, With Lamp to Produce Moonlight Effect, Records and Throws on Screen Vastly Enlarged Pictures of Desperate Conflicts and Ruthless Tragedies of Nature's Tiniest Races

INSECTS and reptiles are now making their debut in the "movies" under impresario Ditmars of the Bronx Zoo, New York City.

A finish flight by heavyweight grasshoppers from the West Indies is one of the sporting novelties which Prof. Ditmars projects upon the screen, in magnified proportions, that make the hoppers look like gamecocks, to liven up his educational illustrated lectures on natural history.

In the same moral and instructive entertainment this wizard of the motion camera can show you such unaccustomed wild-fire dramas as a Texas king snake exterminating the poisonous coral ditto; the horned toad of Mexico lying in wait in the sand, with only his head sticking out, until an unsuspecting beetle saunters past, to be snapped up like a worm by the early bird, and the gay moth in its spectacular act of bursting full-fledged from the cocoon.

This does not by any means exhaust the possibilities of Prof. Ditmars' magnified moving picture laboratory, where he has installed a vast, complex 20,000-candle power electric lighting system with sun and moon effects from batteries whose current is strong enough to put the naturalist permanently out of business if he did not insulate his feet by wearing rubber boots.

The necessity for such an elaborate lighting plant arises from the fact that most of the little creatures of the insect world in which Prof. Ditmars is working are nocturnal in their habits or shy of the garish daytime. Others are so short lived that their grubs or cocoons have to be watched night and day if the picture machine is to profit by their brief moment of activity. There is the caddice fly, for instance, which, after years of existence as a water grub, lives only two hours after hatching out and coming to the surface as a winged insect.

"The Japanese custom of utilizing crickets for burglar alarms," Prof. Ditmars tells us, "may have been the original suggestion from which I evolved my unique invention—the insect emergency call or walking alarm. This device is all that ever enabled me to get the moving pictures of the moths breaking out of their cocoons.

"I construct a large, hollow drum of brittle tissue paper which rustles at the slightest breath—a fly alighting upon it makes a sound like an elephant crossing Brooklyn Bridge. I place the drum with the cocoons laid out upon it by my bedside. As soon as a moth gets busy escaping from its prison the sound of its claws on the tissue paper of the drum is magnified sufficiently to wake me out of a sound sleep. I turn on the lights and, with my camera always ready for instant action, am enabled to take my pictures and prepare a screen film, all within an hour's time.

"My work, as I have said, is in the unseen world of little things. It is a wonder world, indeed, with its social life, wars, politics, romances and adventures, the duplicate of our own as reflected in the daily newspapers.

"Take, for example, the 'Progressive' or Bull Moose spider, as he may be called, of the West Indies. I have magnified slides showing the female of this species carrying a thousand of her young around on her back until they grow big enough to shift for themselves, when they proceed to turn around and eat their own mother!

"The giant grasshoppers are also prevalent in the West Indies, where they are regarded as a serious sporting proposition. These creatures are active, powerful in proportion to their size and of exceedingly combative disposition. Apparently they would rather fight than eat up the crops and vegetation. They have spiked legs provided with spurs or gaffs, which they use as weapons against one another after the manner of trained gamecocks. A favorite pastime of the Carib sports is to match a pair of these insect champions against one another in a regulation contest, which is fought on the fingers of the human umpire's hand—often to his serious discomfort. There is liberal betting on the favorites.

Here is a suggestion worth the notice of vaudeville and museum managers who have from time to time, under obvious difficulties, exhibited "educated fleas." These same fleas, shown the size of poodle dogs in the magnified movies, would be regular top-liners.

Prof. Ditmars' screen photos are, of course, prepared with scientific care for exhibition before educational bodies. Even in this restricted field they have already proved immensely popular—and the art as yet is but in its infancy.

Even now its vast future is foreshadowed in the successful showing of screen pictures of the teeming life of infusoria and the battles of beneficent microbes with myriads of disease germs.

Strange Customs Vanish With Decline of Brazilian Indians

LIKE the American Indians, the Indians of Brazil are said to be fast passing away. There are still 400,000 of them in the whole of Brazil, occupying the stretches of that vast country almost exclusively. Dr. Iacerda estimated, when he was director of the National Museum, that within a century there would be not only no Indians alive in Brazil, but the whole colored population that originated there in slavery days would have disappeared.

The Brazilian Indians, despite the work of the Government and the special missions that have been organized to civilize them, are for the greater part savages, quite as much so in some sections, it is said, as when Amerigo Vespucci of Seville was sent out with an expedition by the King of Portugal in 1501. The first grewsome chapter of Brazil's history began then.

When the little fleet reached land two of the party were sent ashore to negotiate with a group of natives that they saw congregated on the hill. Several days passed and the sailors did not return.

Another was sent ashore, and in sight of the ship's company women came forward to meet him gathering about him and examining him in evident curiosity and wonder.

Suddenly another woman came behind him with a stake and dealt him a blow which brought him to the ground. Immediately he was dragged away, and the men among the Indian women rushed down to the beach and discharged a cloud of arrows at the sailors remaining in their boats.

Several guns were fired at the savages, who fled to the woods. The Indians cut the poor youth's body to pieces and boiled it within sight of his enraged comrades.

In his book on Brazil for 1911, which the Pan-American Union is now distributing, J. C. Oakenfull says of one tribe of these Indians, who live in rude bamboo huts about 7 feet high and 9 feet wide in the forests:

"They are not more than 5 feet 4 inches in height on an average, and their lower limbs have generally grown crooked. They cut off their coarse, black hair in front, and are ornamented with toucan feathers, stuck on with wax. Every Bugre pulls out his eyebrows and eyelashes and pulls down his under lip with a huge apendage, besides ornamenting himself, if fortune be kind, with a necklace composed of rows of teeth. They still carry stone axes, the counterparts of those used in prehistoric times in Europe.

"Attempts to civilize these wretched beings generally prove entirely vain.

"A peculiar characteristic part of the whole of the Indians is a deep superstition. They believe in lunar phantoms and beings of life, who are spirits of God. They are afraid of certain dark, shadowy forms, powers of ill, vengeful and awful, whom it is necessary to propitiate. These are supposed to be the souls of their ancestors. They call God Tupa, and they say that dead men's souls are converted into demons.

"They also believe in spirits of the deep waters, and are afraid of bathing in the dark, except in company, as traditions are current that many have been dragged down into the lakes and rivers, and never returned. In common with other primitive races, their natural powers of observation are very highly developed. Many of the tribes are capable of producing artistic ceramic ware, and they have some ability for wood carving and making grotesque masks. Some of them weave baskets and construct large canoes by the hollowing-out process, aided by fire."

There are 50,000,000 Moslems in India.

THE "TURKEY TROT" AS SOCIETY DANCES IT

Not Only Gay Debutantes, but Sedate Chaperons and Dowagers Are Swaying Through Bizarre New Measures in St. Louis, Such as "Tango" and "Texas Tommy," Which Have Stormed Most Exclusive Clubs and Balls and Culminate in Latest Novelty, the "Horse Trot."

It Looks Like a Hugging Match, but It's Only the Turkey Trot.

A CONSPICUOUS feature of the season just ended in St. Louis is the ardor with which the most exclusive society adopted, in its homes, balls and clubs, denaturized versions of dances which admittedly had their origin in the slum, in the cabaret and on the negro plantation. Previously these terpsichorean parvenus appeared only by stealth, but during last winter they emerged unabashed into the open and swept all before them.

The forerunner of what have been called the "zoological dances" was the "grizzly bear," said to have had its beginning on the famous "Barbary Coast" of San Francisco. Because of its origin and of the abuses to which it readily lent itself, it was denounced all over the country by ministers and judges. Dancing teachers attacked it as being not only indecorus, but ugly. Mayors banned it from public dance halls. Morality squads of policemen waged war upon it.

But the ursine step spread from coast to coast and crossed the ocean to England and France. Then it began to show itself in society circles supposed to be fastidious.

Venturesome young persons danced it under the cover of staircases and conservatories, much to the scandal, at first, of their elders. Finally its triumph was complete; it became a recognized part of every dance program; and sedate fathers and matrons themselves yielded to its seductive spell.

The "grizzly bear" was succeeded by an even more bizarre measure called the "turkey trot." It may have been designed to imitate the amblings of that barnyard fowl which spreads its plumage in pride until it happens to catch sight of its uncouth feet and awkward gait. With many of its Bohemian features expurgated, the "turkey trot," as danced in society, became a vehement exercise, requiring soundness of wind and limb.

This winter, finding that even the "turkey trot" began to pall, several society men and girls in St. Louis applied their intellects to the invention of something beside which the dance named for the Christmas bird would seem subdued and diffident. Their researches led them from the barnyard to the stable, and the "horse trot" was evolved. It is to the "turkey trot" as the galloping of a steed is to the mincing step of a turkey—a hilarious and boisterous romp.

These dances suggested a bon mot to Archbishop Glennon during the winter.

"I have never seen one of these dances in which the motions and attitudes of animals and birds are imitated," said he, "but I have gained some idea of them through pictures and the press.

"From what I gather I should say that one who accepts the theories of Darwin might properly say that such dances indicate a reversion to type."

The remarks were made in the course of a sermon which the Archbishop preached against "zoological dances." He declared that "God, who made man a little less than the angels, never intended that he should return to the animals or cultivate their habits or ape their attitudes."

The sermon closely followed a charity dance given by society folk in November, at which the two-step and waltz, to say nothing of the quadrille and cotillion, were utterly banished by the livelier mammalian and ornithological dances. A year before the question was asked with bated breath: "Are they proper?" But then the only query was: "Can you dance them?"

Although the names of the dancers were those most conspicuous in St. Louis' "Blue Book," a member of the police morality squad was detailed at the ball, and reported to Police Judge Kimmel that had the steps he beheld there occurred in a public dance hall, he would have arrested the performers.

Judge Kimmel took occasion to assert that if the dancers had been brought before his bar he would have fined them under the city ordinance forbidding unseemly acts in public places. "The offenders were doubly guilty because of their social standing," he said.

The dancers replied that the gay measures in which they indulged were thoroughly denaturalized and that all offensive features were expurgated. Among those who took part were Miss Marie Busch, debutante daughter of Adolphus Busch; Miss Ann Drew, Miss Virginia Foster, Miss Margaret Shapleigh, Miss Mildred Orthwein, Miss Kathleen Tirrill and Mrs. Charles Parsons Pettus.

St. Louisans who spent the winter away from home took the new dances with them. Photographs reproduced on this page show how Mr. and Mrs. Ephron Catlin Jr. were snapped in the act of dancing the "turkey trot" at Palm Beach, among other dancers from eastern cities absorbed in the same pastime.

Simultaneously with the so-called animal dances, several other eccentric steps were introduced and quickly became all the rage. Chief among these is the "tango," reputed to have originated in the Argentine Republic, to have traveled to the cabarets of Paris, and thence to have invaded the United States.

The word "tango" means in Spanish "a negro dance." Probably most of those who perform it and feel a thrill when they hear its name called do not know, as is related by persons who have visited the Latin-American countries, that when spectators wish to express their disapprobation of a dancer and to inform him that his steps are the climax of awkward gracelessness, they shout at him a word which is highly insulting. They shriek in derision: "Tango! tango!"

Its Anglo-Saxon parallel may be heard at a ball game when a pinch-hitter strikes out with three men on the bases to the accompaniment of yells of "Punk! rotten! You're on the bum!" If one could imagine a South American baseball fan, he would, at this catastrophe, cry "Tango!" to the unfortunate batter.

Be this as it may, the "tango" became the most popular dance of the winter. The influential Liederkranz Club attempted in vain to stem the tide. In its official yearly program, issued in December, occurred the following announcement:

"The daily press teems with illustrations and articles on the 'tango,' 'bunny hug,' and other dances of a similar nature that are now being indulged in by 'society.'

"We are proud to state, however, that the good old sedate Liederkranz cannot, and will not, tolerate these originations of the underworld, and though in this instance we may not appear so progressive as the hour demands, our spirit is too healthy and sound to follow the examples of those who in their desire for notoriety fail to note the boundaries of common decency in the art of Terpsichore.

It was only five months later, at a charity ball held in April, that the "good old sedate Liederkranz" tolerated not only the "tango," but that other "origination of the underworld," the "turkey trot." The "tango" was performed by none others than the former Miss Edwine Thornburgh, who was married last week to Sir Wilfrid Peek, Bart., and Misses Anna and Miriam Benoist.

Other dancing novelties which won more or less of popularity during the season were such eccentricities as the "Texas Tommy," another importation from Bohemia; the aeroplane glide, and the "Maori." Miss Ann Drew and Knox Taussig danced the aeroplane glide, designed to imitate the swooping volplanes of aviation, at the charity ball at Dreamland.

The most striking victories won by the "turkey trot" during the winter occurred at the annual balls given on the same night at the Mercantile and Columbian Clubs, both strongholds of conservatism. But the frowns of chaperons and the prohibitions of club managers could not prevent the younger set at both dances from performing the swaying measures to their hearts' content.

At the Mercantile Club the floor manager stood like a stern sentinel at the door to prevent the new dances from stealing inside. The ballroom floor was to admit only the conventional two-step, waltz and other old dances. But a rumor spread about that something worth seeing was happening in the corridors.

It proved that a number of young girls and their escorts had slipped away from the ballroom and were turkey-trotting in high gayety through the halls. The chaperons and floor manager threw up their hands in consternation. Soon the contagion resistlessly invaded the ballroom itself and before the evening was over half of the dancers were swaying and bending through the forbidden step.

The "turkey trot" made its appearance at the second dance at the Columbian Club ball, and after that practically nothing else was danced. Some of the more sedate matrons promptly protested, urging that the traditions of the club were being violated. The Floor Committee ruled that the "turkey trot" seemed to have the consensus of approval, and that the fair debutantes, whom the ball was given to amuse, could dance that or any other measure they wished.

After these two triumphs and the similar one at the Liederkranz Club the "turkey trot" and its kindred dances ceased to be "risque" and became strictly "au rigueur."

In keeping with the desire for "something new" which characterized the dancing season, was the invention of the new hesitation waltz last winter. Unlike its companions in novelty, the hesitation waltz is praised as a highly artistic improvement upon the simple waltz.

It was invented by Herbert Cost, a young St. Louis business man, who danced it in public several times with Miss Sue Lovett, his fiancee. It was first performed in public by Miss Drew and Clarence King at the Post-Dispatch "Cinderella" Christmas play at the Odeon, and instantly sprang into popular favor. Miss Drew also performed the hesitation waltz at a charity ball with Dwight Davis, Park Commissioner of St. Louis, as her partner.

The season was also prolific in solo dances performed by young society girls. Prominent among these were Miss Anita Gaebler and Miss Julia Bates.

The "pas seul" reached a climax of daring in a nightgown dance performed before a players' audience by Miss Marie Akins, daughter of the postmaster of St. Louis. In the part of a romantic sick factory girl in a one-act play, she arose from her cot in nightdress, with bare feet and limbs, and danced about the stage until she "fell dead," as the plot required. Even the Players, who are not easily shocked, could not repress a few gasps.

How fascinated society is by the new dances was shown a couple of weeks ago by an incident proving how close the trend in dancing is to the stage. At the Jefferson Hotel one night, after finishing her engagement at a nearby theater, a famous danseuse staged a cabaret show, assisted by a number of members of her company. At 2 a. m. the actors and actresses began turkey trotting.

The contagion of the dance was too much for a number of prominent young men and women who were sitting in the cafe as guests. Instantly they joined the stage favorites on the floor and society men and women, actors and actresses, chorus girls and professional turkey-trotters swirled in a medley of gaiety about the room. The entertainment continued until 4 a. m. Among those who took part were Miss Drew, Miss Alice Martin and Eddie Limberg.

WEIRD NAMES OF RAGTIME "HITS"

RAGTIME, which musicians have called "the negro's revenge for slavery," and African contortions like the cakewalk, reminiscent of the jungles of the Dark Continent, are accounted forerunners of the bizarre dances which have swept from the lowest to the highest strata of society, such as the "turkey trot" and the "tango."

The latest ragtime "hits," whose rollicking abandon makes them popular as music for the new dances, often bear titles which would make Mrs. Grundy stare and gasp.

Such are: "Everybody Loves a Chicken," "There Ain't Nothin' Doin' What You're Thinkin' About," "In My Harem," "Everybody's Doin' It," "The St. Vitus Rag," "Snookey Ookums," "All Night Long," "Rag Baby Mine," "My Little Lovin' Sugar Babe," and "Oh, You Cutie, You Ever, Ever Lovin' Child."

Appendicitis Operations.

"A CASE of appendicitis should be operated on as soon as ever the diagnosis is made—within the first 12 hours if possible," said Dr. Edmund Owen, addressing the Medical Society of London. "The patient will then not only get well almost for certain, but will get well very quickly."

This was the summing up of a paper on the necessity for immediate operation in all cases of appendicitis. A long debate followed, in whic surgeons and physicians from all parts of England took part, and the remarkable feature it was that there was not one dissentient vo However, some physicians still believe they c cure appendicitis without operation, but Owen insists that such a cure is only temporary, if it succeeds at all, and that in the vast majority of cases in which it fails an early operation would have prevented serious trouble and danger of death.

College Girls Own Seamstresses

Missouri University Girls at Work in Sewing Class Making Their Own Dresses.

Missouri University Students Enrolled in Dressmaking Classes Make Garments in Latest Modes for Personal Wear, and Even Take Washtub Course to Learn the Effect of Water and Soaps on Fabrics

MISSOURI UNIVERSITY has a class of 16 girls who are learning the art of making dresses. The course is not theoretical, but practical. Most of these girls make their own dresses for wearing to their classes. The young women who are studying designing and who do sewing are not farmers' daughters, but college girls who spend their summers in cities and who are popular in University society.

A sorority girl who led the grand march at the junior "prom" this spring, has completed an evening gown which she will wear to formal college entertainments. She is Miss Lura Bell Grigsby of Liberty, who was recently elected Ad Club Carnival Queen by the students, an honor given to one of the two most popular girls in school each year. Last year Miss Romaine Roach, the eldest daughter of Cornelius Roach, Secretary of State, made her own dresses, which she wore to classes all the year.

The first-year class in sewing is popular among the girls. They are taught the rudimentary principles of the dressmakers' art—how to sew stitches and how to cut dress goods according to patterns. About 60 girls usually join this class.

By the time they are prepared for advanced work the ranks of the class are always thinned. Many believe that they would rather study something else than sewing in the home economics department. Some think that cooking would be better, and join cooking classes.

The elementary class in sewing usually has to do a little washtub work to learn the action of water and various chemicals on fabrics.

It is a common sight to see some society girl, in the "washtub laboratory," take a garment out of the machine and run it through the wringer. Then a record must be made of the various compounds used. When asked why they are willing to learn this kind of work they say.

"Oh, it's lots of fun! Then you never know when the washerwomen or the garment makers may strike. Nothing like being able to do things for yourself, even if you are a woman."

The advanced class in sewing does not have an easy time. Twice a week the girls have to go to the classroom and work at benches for three hours. They have forms to fit after the patterns have been worked out.

Sometimes the dresses are sold, but usually the makers are so proud of their ability that they wear the garments themselves. All of the creations are made to follow the fashions of today.

The girls also have a chance to learn millinery. They first enroll in the class called "textiles and clothing." They are then at liberty to "take" sewing or millinery, or both if they choose. Then comes the real dressmaking work. They also have a chance to learn about house decoration, house sanitation and the principles of nursing.

Oxygen Helmets in Naval Instruction

THE officers of the United States Atlantic fleet below the rank of lieutenant-commander are being sent to the New York Navy Yard in small detachments for instruction in the use of oxygen safety helmets, such as are now used by the attaches of the Federal Bureau of Mines in their rescue work.

The officers are being sent from each of the battleships as well as from the torpedo-boat destroyers and submarines. The principal reason behind the new departure is the introduction of oil as a fuel into the navy, although a knowledge of the use and advantages of the oxygen helmet would also come in handy in the event of submarine accidents, bunker fires and powder explosions in turrets and magazines.

Oil is now the principal fuel on all of the new torpedo-boat destroyers, and the new superdreadnaughts New York, Texas, Oklahoma and Nevada are also fitted with oil-burning apparatus. Within a few years, it is believed, a majority of the vessels of the United States Navy will be oil burners, and it is for the purpose of having the officers and men ready to handle troubles in which the fumes of oil play an important part that Chief Ryan has been sent to New York to teach the officers how they can use the oxygen helmet.

Officers of the navy are also confident that the helmet will prove of great use in the event of accidents in submarines when they are under water. In fighting coal-bunker fires and in steam-filled boiler rooms following boiler explosions the helmet will be just as useful, in the opinion of those in charge of the instruction.

Lieutenant-Commander Taylor, the senior aid at the navy yard, said recently that eventually each ship would have its quota of officers trained in the use of the oxygen helmet.

The officers of the superdreadnaughts Arkansas and Delaware are now under instruction. When they complete their courses officers from the other dreadnaughts will be detailed for the instruction by Rear Admiral C. J. Badger, the new commander in chief of the Atlantic fleet.

Nonagenarian's Rule for Lasting Youth.

"THERE ought to be no such thing as middle age," said Dr. Josiah Oldfield, the great English food and diet specialist, at the Simple Life Exhibition that has been on in Westminster. "If a man lives properly he can carry the spirit of youth to the end of his days. I am on the way toward ninety, but I feel entirely young. The secret is simple. A man must submit himself to mental and physical discipline and eat wisely and not too well.

Dr. Oldfield went on to give this set of rules for avoiding middle age:

Think big thoughts and cling to noble ideals.

Live on the fruits of the highest minds.

Do not waste time over petty things and do not take narrow views.

Eat fruits, vegetables, oils, eggs, butter and bread, drink pure wine and milk. Avoid shoddy, secondhand food of all kinds.

Change underclothing every 24 hours.

Know yourself.

SEE here for the first time all its flights in one-eighteenth of a game. Five runs were made in this half-inning. The game—Highlanders vs. Washington, Polo Grounds, April 17, 1913. Opening game of series.

At a rough estimate the ball covered 5973 feet, or 693 feet more than a mile.

The speed of a baseball in big league play is as follows.

Fast pitcher's average speed, 110 feet per second; outfielder's average throwing speed (at start), 100 feet per second; infielder's average throwing speed, 103 feet per second; catcher's average throwing speed, 105 feet per second.

Greatest measured speed of pitchers: Walter Johnson, Washington, 122 feet per second; Napoleon Rucker, Brooklyn, 1[illegible]3 feet per second.

Speed of a .45 automatic pistol bullet, 300 feet per second; speed of a .35 high-powered rifle bullet, 2000 feet per second.

Americans Worst Customers, Says London Tradesman.

THERE is at least one London tradesman who proclaims that he does not want American custom. E. Dredge, a dealer in antiques, displays a notice in his shop window to the effect that Americans are not wanted there.

"The average American in London is not a buyer," he says. "He or she is an ostentatious talker, who can do little else than talk big. It is a great mistake to regard the average American in London as a liberal spender of money.

"In the course of many years' experience in this country, America, Africa and Australia I have never met worse customers in the retail antique business than the Americans.

"They saunter into my shop in a manner which might suggest to the inexperienced that they were going to buy me up. They talk about anything and everything, and rarely, if ever, omit to refer in a familiar sort of way to the fabulous prices paid on various occasions for particular treasures of art by prominent countrymen of theirs.

"Of course, they give the impression that they are prospective customers, but generally they do not buy anything. They want to price everything in the place, drawl out a hundred and one questions concerning the higher-priced articles of furniture, and barter for hours as with a traveling peddler over some article of comparatively little value.

"I have wasted many valuable hours in this way. The American would-be purchaser of the antique in London is the most tiresome person one could meet."

34 States Adopt Forest Conservation.

AMONG the many hopeful signs that the American public is awakening to the necessity of guarding the forests, where they still remain, and of replenishing them where there has been wide destruction, is the increasing attention which the States are giving to this problem.

The National movement to preserve and restore the forests has been in progress for some time. In but few States were any serious steps taken to reforest the waste places within their own borders until the last five years.

At the present time 34 of the 48 States of the Union, or more than two-thirds, are showing active practical interest in forestry—Alabama, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Carolina, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

All of the so-called eastern States are on the list, doubtless because of the increasing appreciation of need for action in the face of the decreasing timber supply.

Thirteen States own forests, New York leading with a total acreage of 1,644,088, with Pennsylvania second, having 982,337 acres. Wisconsin has one forest, comprising 400,000 acres, and Michigan 53 forests, aggregating 231,350 acres. The other State forests range from 60,000 acres, owned by South Dakota, down to 1,950 acres, owned by Maryland.

The annual appropriations made last year in the 34 States actively engaged in forestry work exceeded $1,157,000.

Chinese Pigtails Defended as Hygienic.

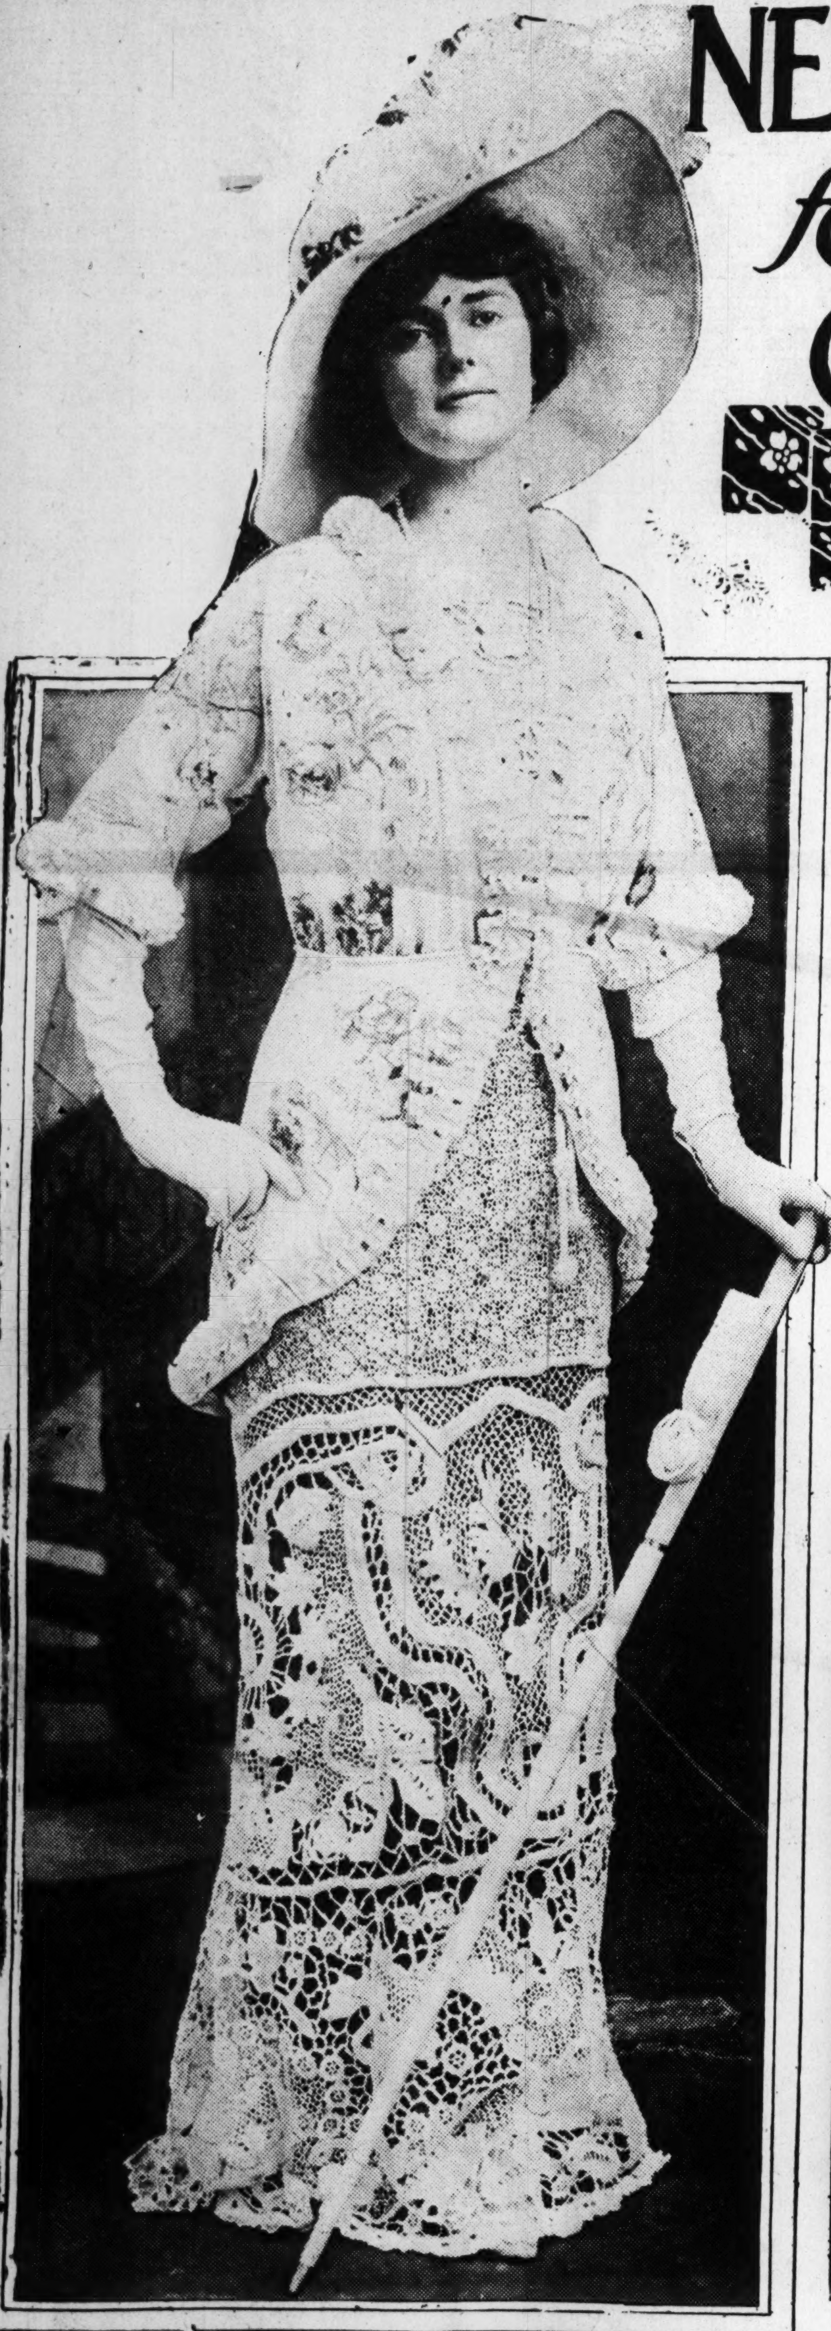
DR. JOHN BUDBERG, an Englishman, has entered a defense of the Chinaman's pigtail. He says the pigtail owed its origin to hygienic motives. According to one authority the effect of the pigtail is a more active circulation of the blood, which benefits the brain. He writes: "The observation we hear now and then that Chinese without pigtails show less intelligence strikes me as not altogether unreasonable, as an active circulation of the blood will not fail to influence the nourishment and development of the brain."

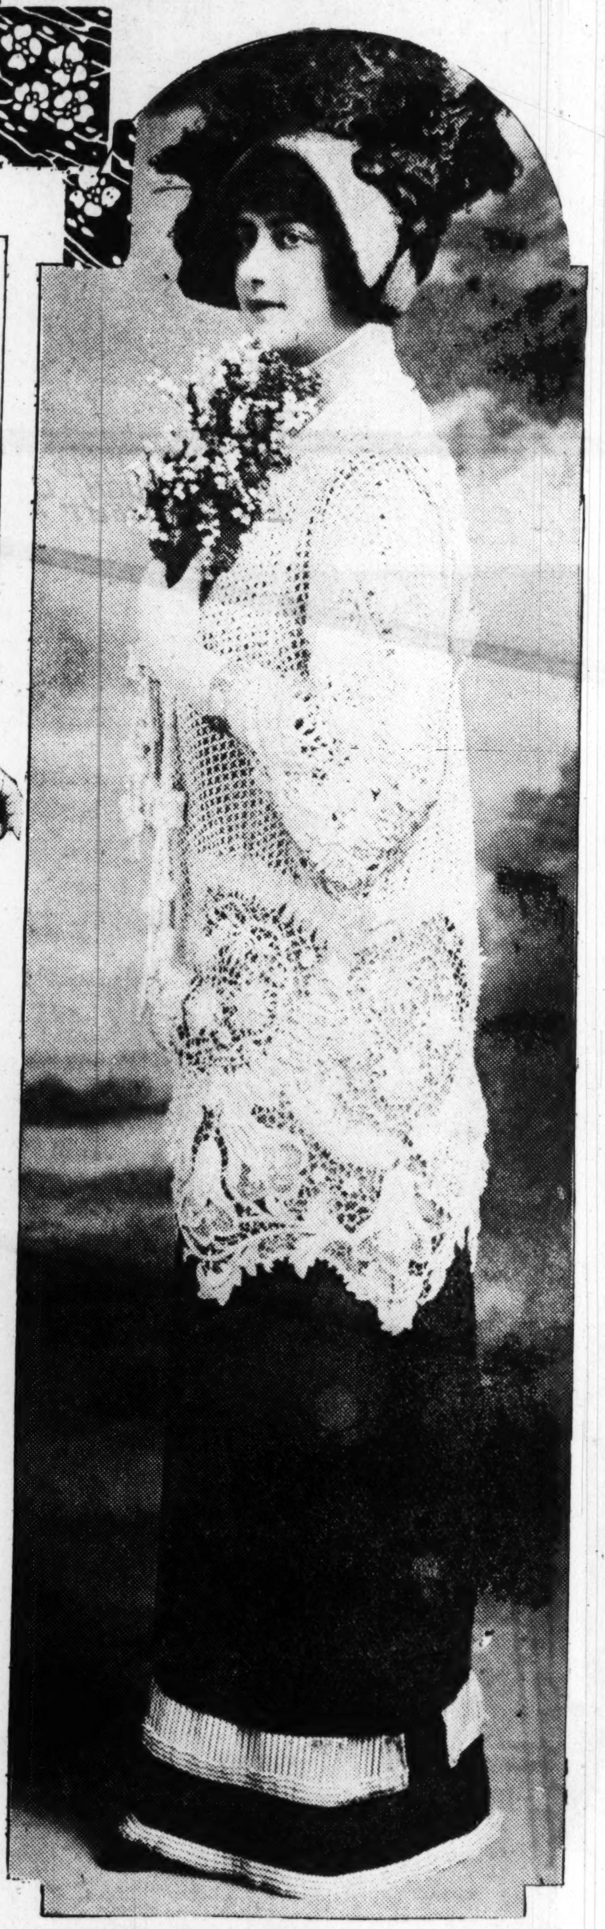
He states that the head of a newly born baby is shaved, and no cloth, cap or soft pillow is allowed to interfere with the circulation of the scalp. When the child grows bigger the hair is tied together in bunches, so as to expose the skin to the air, and thus promote perspiration. Later the hair is grown so as to form a pigtail, and superfluous hair is shaved away. The effect is a high and smooth forehead, and a face free from wrinkles; and hence even old Chinese have smooth faces and a juvenile appearance.

When rolled up on the top of the head the pigtail acts as a substitute for a cap, and protects the head from the glare of the sun and the cold of winter. It is also a neckcloth and a pillow. It is likewise ever at hand to check hemorrhage should a cord be needed for that purpose.

A PAGE FOR WOMEN

NEW COATS for June Costumes





AND now comes the season of the "extra coat." Indispensable to the lingerie frock of summer time is a wrap for wear at the cool seaside or mountain resort and even in the sudden changes of our own unreliable climate.

It must be dressy, this little coat, to do justice to or set off to advantage the lacey gown with which it is worn.

Last season the taffeta silk polonaise found such high favor that this season the same idea is merely modified to suit the new lines.

A coat of pompadour silk heavily brocaded is shown here, on the right. It is high-waisted and cutaway, according to Paris' latest edict regarding coats.

A rose-pleated frill outlining the coat affords an airy, crisp-looking trimming; and with elbow sleeves disclosing long gloves beneath it, fulfills in every way the coolness and freshness required of a summer wrap.

In this instance the silk coat is worn over a handsome gown of crocheted lace, a masterpiece in design and richness by Irish lace makers.

The order is reversed in the opposite picture, and a lace coat worn over a chiffon gown is presented.

Fortunate is the woman who can afford to buy this work of art, for such it is—devised entirely by hand, applying only linen thread and crochet needle.

A while ago these patterns and this mode of making lace were known only to Irish women of ancient lineage, handed down to them by their ancestors through centuries of accumulating skill.

But recently, since its patronage by the ladies of England's royal family has caused Irish lace to become such a coveted object many women with whom needlework is an accomplishment have developed great skill in crocheting Irish lace.

There are several coats in St. Louis which were made by their fashionable owners themselves, as they sat enjoying that fascinating pastime, that solace to tired nerves—crocheting.

The illustration at the left is full of suggestions to the amateur lace maker. The newest adaptations of Irish lace to some of the newest lines, notably the Bulgarian waist line and the belted-in hip effects, are to be observed.

Marvels of Lemon Juice.

LEMON juice will:

Prevent diphtheria.
Cure a sore throat or cough.
Cure a felon.
Drive away a sick headache.
Cure malaria.

For a sore throat, gargle with pure, undiluted, unsweetened lemon juice.

For a cough or cold, mix equal parts of lemon juice and strained honey, and take a tablespoonful every hour.

For a sick headache, mix one part lemon juice and two parts boiling water, and sip a teacupful as hot as possible every two hours.

For malaria, mix the juice of half a lemon with two tablespoonfuls of water and a little sugar, and drink three times a day.

For a felon, cut off the end of a lemon, stick the finger into the hole and bind it on. Let it stay for a day or two, when it will be ready to lance.

For the complexion, mix equal parts of rose water and glycerine and dip or cut lemon into this and rub the face with it. After it dries, rub with cold cream.

For the hair, add the juice of a lemon to the last rinsing water of a shampoo.

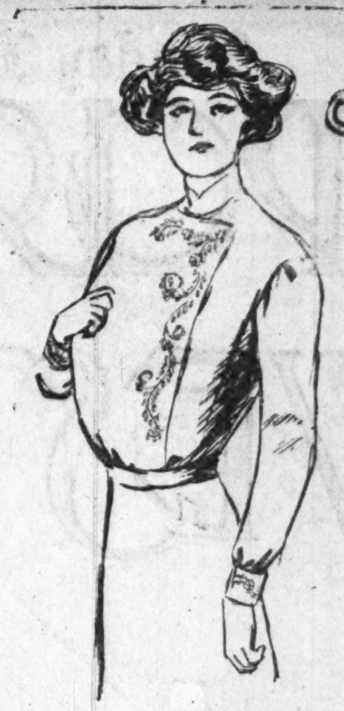
Training the Children's Voices.

VALUABLE hints on the training of boys' and girls' voices are given by an English choirmaster, who points out that though singing is a healthy exercise in itself, singing is an art even for children. He says the voice of the newsboy is "natural" enough, but "all voice-trainers know the damage that frequently results to both the speaking voices and the singing voices of children who are allowed to shout constantly and without restraint."

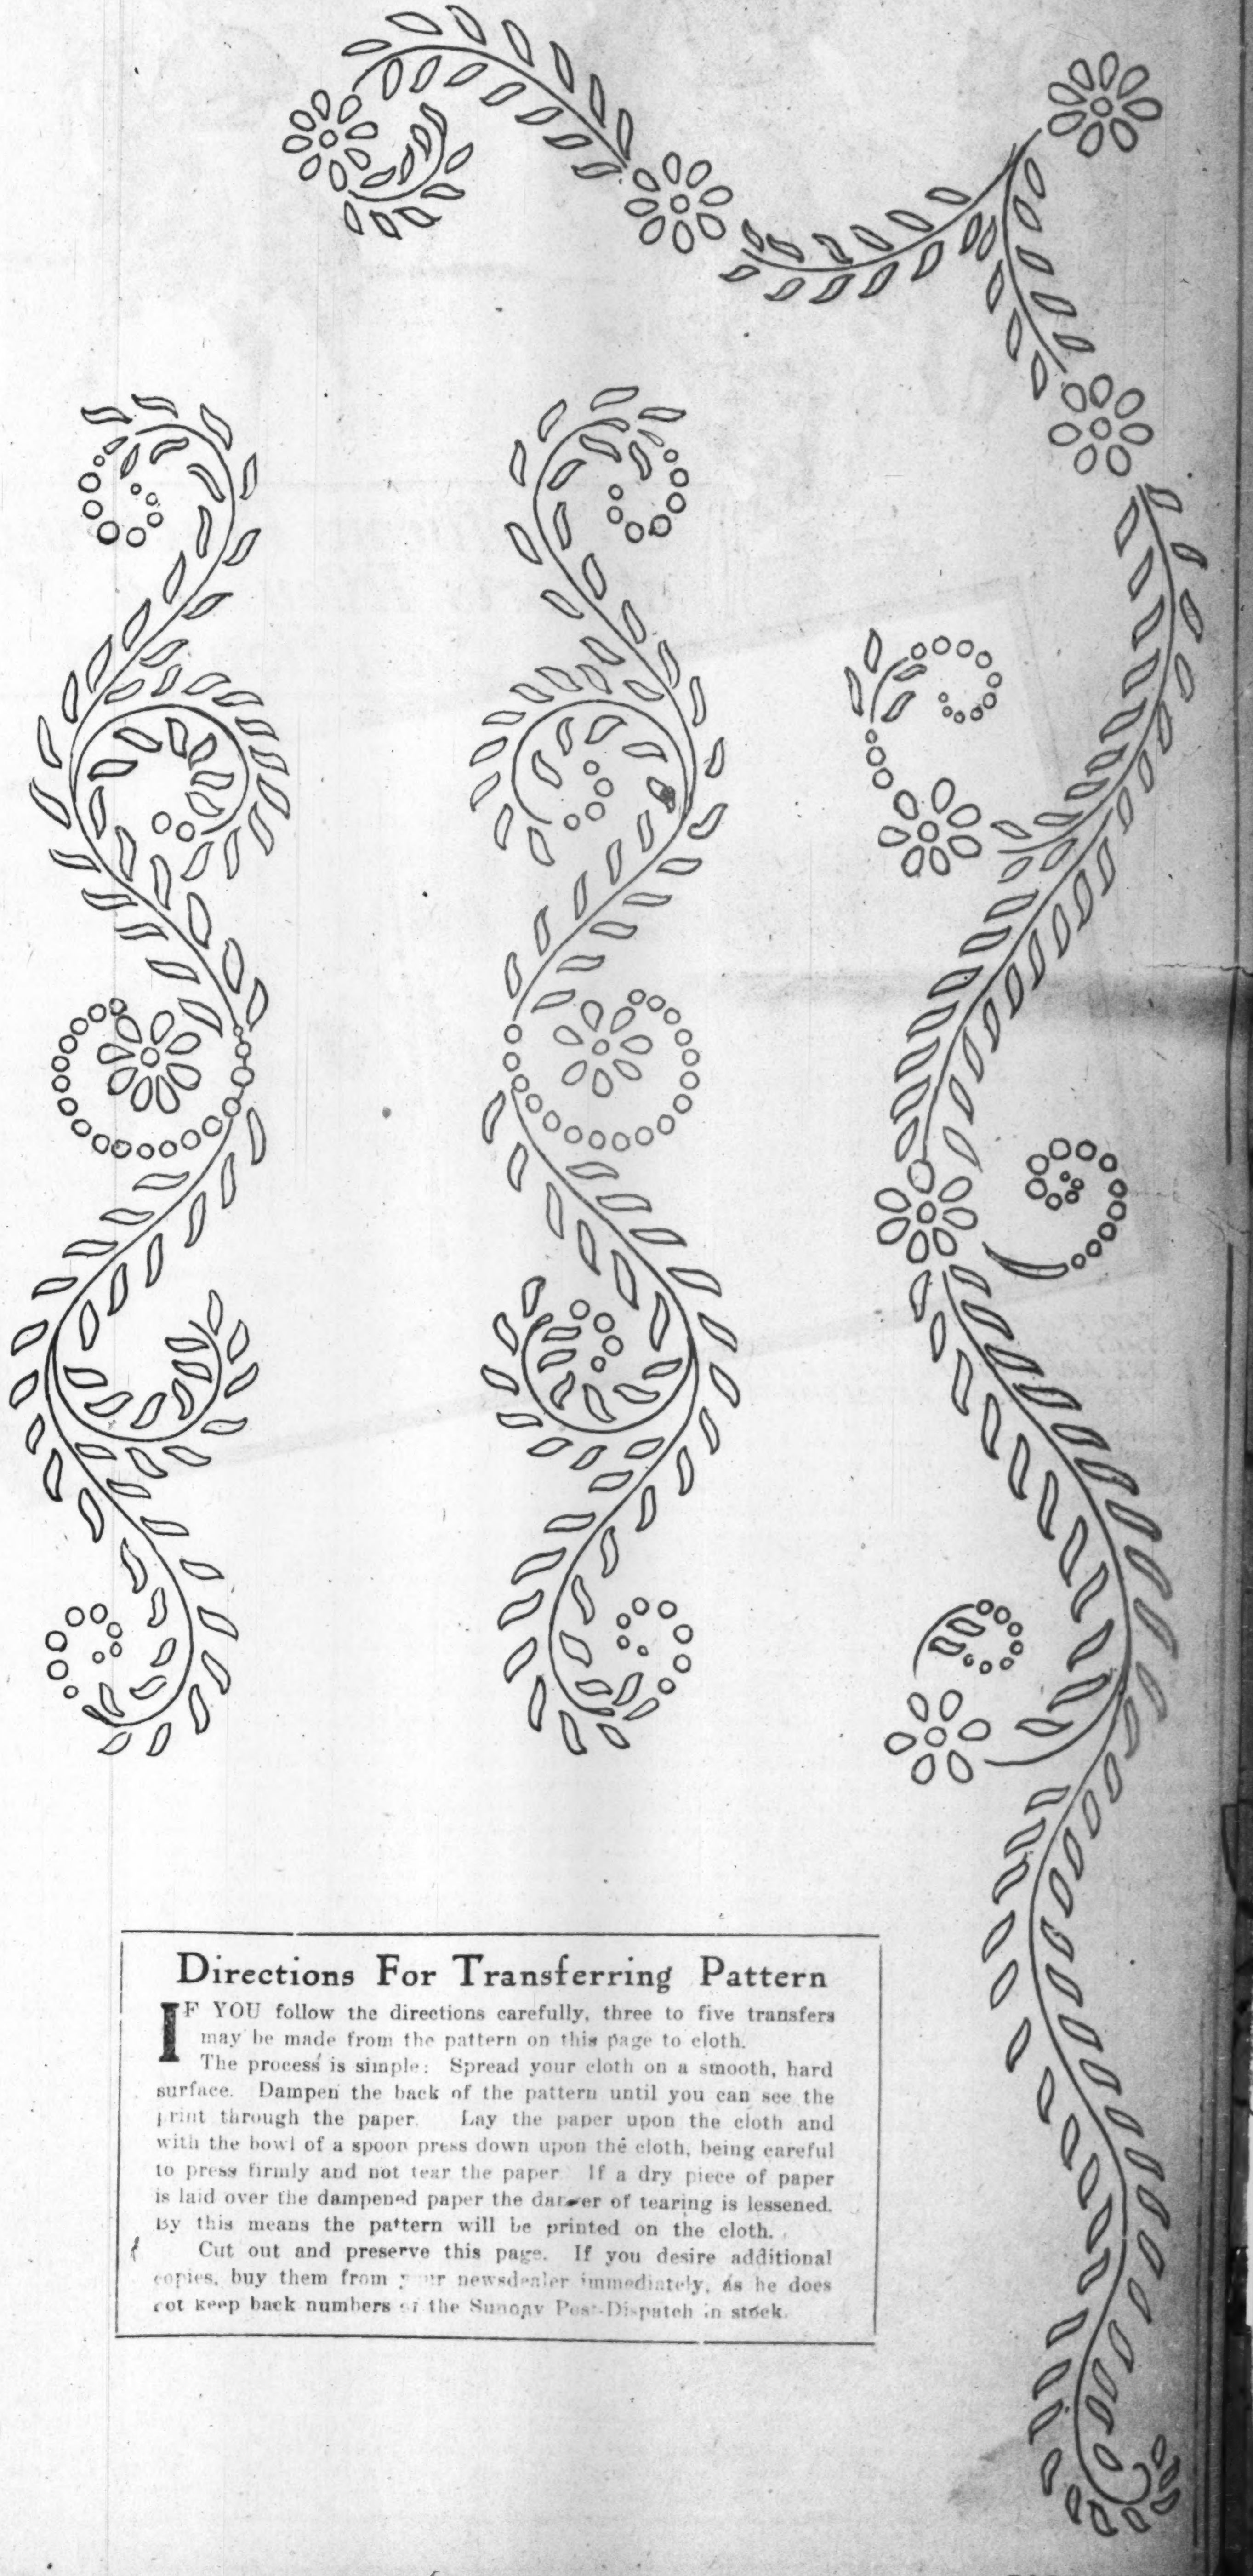
In regard to the time when a boy's voice is changing to a man's, he advises that the boy should at the first signs of breaking cease to sing entirely until his man's voice asserts itself unmistakably.

"The whole change may take a few months or even a year or more," he declares, "but however short or long the period may be, it cannot be too strongly urged that the wisest and the kindest course is to insist on complete rest for the singing voice. The boy's treble voice, at the most, will last eight or nine years; whereas his adult voice has to serve him for the rest of his life."

Atlantic City had 1043 population in 1879. Now it has 50,000 residents and at times has 300,000 visitors.



EMBROIDERY DESIGN FOR SHIRT WAIST



Directions For Transferring Pattern

IF YOU follow the directions carefully, three to five transfers may be made from the pattern on this page to cloth.

The process is simple: Spread your cloth on a smooth, hard surface. Dampen the back of the pattern until you can see the print through the paper. Lay the paper upon the cloth and with the bowl of a spoon press down upon the cloth, being careful to press firmly and not tear the paper. If a dry piece of paper is laid over the dampened paper the danger of tearing is lessened. By this means the pattern will be printed on the cloth.

Cut out and preserve this page. If you desire additional copies, buy them from your newsdealer immediately, as he does not keep back numbers of the Sunday Post-Dispatch in stock.

MILITARY POLO IN THE SOUTHWEST

THE season of army polo has come, and at Fort Riley, Fort Sill and Fort Sam Houston there is bustle and activity among the officers who play the game. Polo grounds are being smoothed and mettlesome ponies, agile and impetuous, are being exercised and put through the routine of the game. Many of these ponies are valued at hundreds of dollars each, and are of almost human intelligence in following the ins and outs of active play. Some of the best ones are native to the Southwest, types of the cow-ponies, noted for strength and endurance, without which the handling of the great cattle herds in range days practically would have been impossible. For polo a dash of thoroughbred blood adds to efficiency.

Army polo is a sport that warms any man's blood. The players are trained athletes whose bone and muscle have been built up at West Point. They are gentlemen and true sportsmen, mindful of the social traditions of the army. There are now about forty polo clubs in the United States Army, in which all the players are commissioned officers

The army officer is seen at his best on the polo field. There his accomplishments in horsemanship, his skill as a player, and his makeup as a man are exhibited in the highest manner. Polo is encouraged by the War Department, not merely because it is clean sport, but because the game develops and strengthens those essentials of horsemanship so necessary when an army is in the field. For a number of years the Government paid the expense of transporting the ponies and their equipment when tournaments were held at the different garrisons.

Notwithstanding the numerous changes in the personnel of the Mounted Service School at Fort Riley last year, more than a dozen good players remain at the post, and a strong aggregation will be put in the field this season. Fort Riley is the premier polo post in the United States Army, for there is stationed the Sixth Field Artillery, and until recently, the Thirteenth Cavalry, whose teams are known wherever polo is played in the United States. Last year the first team of the Sixth Field Artillery played with brilliant success, winning for the third time the army polo championship, at Washington, though matched against the Fifth Field Artillery of Fort Sill, always a dangerous opponent, for the Fifth enjoys the presence and advice of that clever and scientific master of polo, Capt. Beverly Brown.

There is the greatest activity among the Fort Riley polo enthusiasts for the season of 1913. Three fields are in use, and polo was played twice a week last month, and is being played three times a week during May. The Sixth Artillery is represented by two teams, the Mounted School Service by two, and together with the Junction City team this insures two games on each day of play.

During the last week of May a big open tournament will be held at Fort Riley. Teams representing the country clubs of Kansas City, Denver and Fort Worth, St. Louis and Midland, Tex., have been invited, and the result should determine the championship in the southwest. It would be ungracious in writing of the army polo games at Fort Riley to omit reference to the civilian team at Junction City, so capably managed by Dr. F. W. O'Donnell. Fort Riley has been the cradle of polo in the army, and the Junction City team has been largely responsible for the development of army polo by playing regularly throughout the season, and by furnishing opposition in a thoroughgoing, sportsmanlike manner.

The Army championship tournament will take place in Washington this year early in June. This will necessitate an elimination tournament at Fort Riley to determine which team shall have the honor of representing the post in Washington. This elimination tournament will be held shortly after the open tournament during the last week of May. Incidentally, one day at the close of the tournament will be devoted to gym'ana games The Thirteenth Cavalry at present is on duty along the Mexican border, and will put a strong team in the field should it return to Fort Riley.

The Thirteenth Cavalry has long been devoted to polo. The Thirteenth Cavalry Polo Association was formed shortly after the organization of the regiment in February, 1901. A few games were played with the Tenth Cavalry about that time, but the sport was so new that the games were crude. The regiment was divided among several small stations after it left Fort Meade, and polo was impossible until 1909, when the entire regiment came together at Batangas, P. I. Uncommon interest was taken in the game in the Philippines, the Commanding General and the Governor-General of the Philippines exerting themselves to promote it. The team attended 10 or 12 tournaments in Manila and Camp Stotsenburg, and one at Batangas.

During the first year in the Philippines the only available mounts were troop horses, and the regiment regularly met defeat, but upon receiving from Australia a shipment of 12 seven-eighths thoroughbreds and putting them into the game as fast as they were sufficiently trained, the team played much better polo, and won its share of the tournaments. The final tournament—a military tournament—was played in Manila in December, 1910, for the championship of the islands. The Thirteenth Cavalry won and sailed for home in March, 1911, the military champions.

The enlargement of Fort Sill as a military garrison has been helpful in building up polo at that post. There are two beautiful fields for play, and a score of good players. There are four playing teams. Capt. Beverly Brown, lately returned from a European [illegible], is regarded as not only the best player at Fort Sill, but probably the best player as No. 1 in the United States Army. Capt. Brown, now serving with the Fifth Field Artillery at Fort Sill, was formerly with the Sixth, and to his instruction is largely due the supremacy of the Sixth as a championship-winning team.

The first team at Fort Sill is known as the Fifth Field Artillery polo team, and is composed of Capt. Brown, Capt. Churchill, Captain De Armand and Lieut. Pennell. The team is better mounted than it was last season. The team gained a strong player by the addition of Capt. De Armand. There are about 20 other commissioned officers to be found in the Fifth Artillery and at the Artillery School of Fire who are actively playing polo.

Any polo team that goes to Fort Sam Houston will find itself under rapid fire. Playing polo at Fort Sam Houston is just as systematic as eating dinner or going to bed. The game is played with the finest enthusiasm. Col. Charles Treat knows the game from the standpoint of a finished expert, and refereed the army championship game between the teams of the Sixth and the Fifth Field Artillery in Washington last July. Fort Sam Houston at present is the home of the Third Field Artillery, in which polo playing is rampant.

There are two excellent fields at the post, both sown to Bermuda grass, and both level and fast. The play is three afternoons a week—every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons—if the weather is favorable. There is an average attendance of twenty players, drawn from the Third Field Artillery, the Third Cavalry and civilian players from San Antonio.

The most recent tournament—for a silver cup—brought out the teams of the Third Cavalry, the Third Artillery and the Meadowlarks, a civilian team from San Antonio. Both army teams in turn overcame the Meadowlarks, but not without the hardest kind of playing. Thereupon the artillerymen mowed down the cavalrymen.

At historic Fort Leavenworth, perhaps the most picturesque military post in the United States, polo is not regularly maintained, yet among the officers stationed there are a number who love the game and have played it for years. Though a big post, Leavenworth has a small mounted service. Many of its officers are connected with the service schools and they find practically no time for systematic play, without which polo cannot flourish. These school officers are coming and going much of the time.

Two of the best polo players at Leavenworth last year were Capt. R. C. Foy, now of the Third Cavalry at Fort Sam Houston, and Lieut. Eben Swift, Eleventh Cavalry, now at Fort Riley. At Leavenworth are such capable players as Capt. W. G. Sills, First Cavalry; Lieut. Pike, Fifteenth Cavalry; Capt. Jones, Medical Corps, and Lieut. Wood, Seventh Infantry. Despite the perhaps unavoidable situation at Fort Leavenworth, games are sometimes played with pickup teams.

RED EVE

by H. RIDER HAGGARD.

(COPYRIGHT, BY DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO.)

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

MURGH, the mysterious, the doom of the East, starts West.

Eve Clavering and her cousin Hugh de Cressi her sweetheart, and Grey Dick, the archer, in the year 1346, after a conflict with Eve's father and Sir Edmund Acour, who wishes to marry Eve, and the noblemen's fighting men, escape through a Blythburgh marsh fire, set to trap them, and a fight, in which Hugh kills Eve's brother John, and swim the River Blyth, to sanctuary with Father Andrew Arnold in Dunwich. Father Andrew tells Hugh he has discovered that Acour is a spy, seeking to find a safe place to land 50,000 Normans on the Suffolk coast to set the crown of England on Duke John as a vassal to Philip of France. The old priest plans to send Hugh with a letter of warning and a recommendation for a pardon for Hugh and Grey Dick to King Edward in London. He relates to Hugh a visit he once made to far Cathay.

Father Andrew.

"HOW did you get there?" asked Hugh, amazed, for though he knew dimly that Father Arnold had traveled much in his youth, he never dreamed that he had reached the mystic territories of Cathay, or indeed that such a place really was except in fable.

"It would take from now till morning to tell, son, nor even then would you understand the road. It is enough to say that I went on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem, where our blessed Savior died. That was the beginning. Thence I traveled with Arabs to the Red Sea, where wild men made a slave of me, and we were blown across the Indian Ocean to a beauteous island named Ceylon, in which all the folk are black.

"From this place I escaped in a vessel called a junk, that brought me to the town of Singapore. Thence at last, following my star, I came to Cathay after two years of journeyings. There I dwelt in honor for three more years, moving from place to place, since never before had its inhabitants seen a Western man, and they made much of me, always sending me forward to new cities. So at length I reached the greatest of them all, which is called Kambaluc, or Peking, and there was the guest of its Emperor, Timur.

"Then I asked if there was no god that I could see with my eyes, whereon the Emperor laughed at me and said there was such a god, but he counselled me not to visit him. I prayed him to suffer me to do so, since I, who worshipped the only true God, feared no other. Whereon, growing angry, he commanded some of his servants to 'take this fool to the house of Murgh and let him see whether his God could protect him against Murgh.' Having said this he bade me farewell, adding that though every man must meet Murgh once, few met him twice, and therefore he did not think that he should see me again.

"It was not a great place, although the gateway, which was surrounded by two black dragons of stone or iron, was very great, so great that a tall ship could have sailed through it and left its arch untouched.

"I passed into the cold shadow of the gateway, unchallenged by any watchman, and found myself in a courtyard surrounded by a wall also built of black brick, which had doors in it that seemed to be of dark stone or iron. Whither these doors led I do not know, since the wall cut off the sight of any buildings that may have lain beyond. In the center of this courtyard was a pool of still, black water, and at the head of the pool a chair of black marble.

"When I looked up again the chair was no longer empty. Hugh, a man sat in it, of whom I thought at first only one thing—that he must be very strong, though not bigger than other men. Strength seemed to flow from him. I should not have wondered if he had placed his hands upon the massive sides of that stone chair and torn it asunder."

"What was he like, Father? Samson or Goliath?"

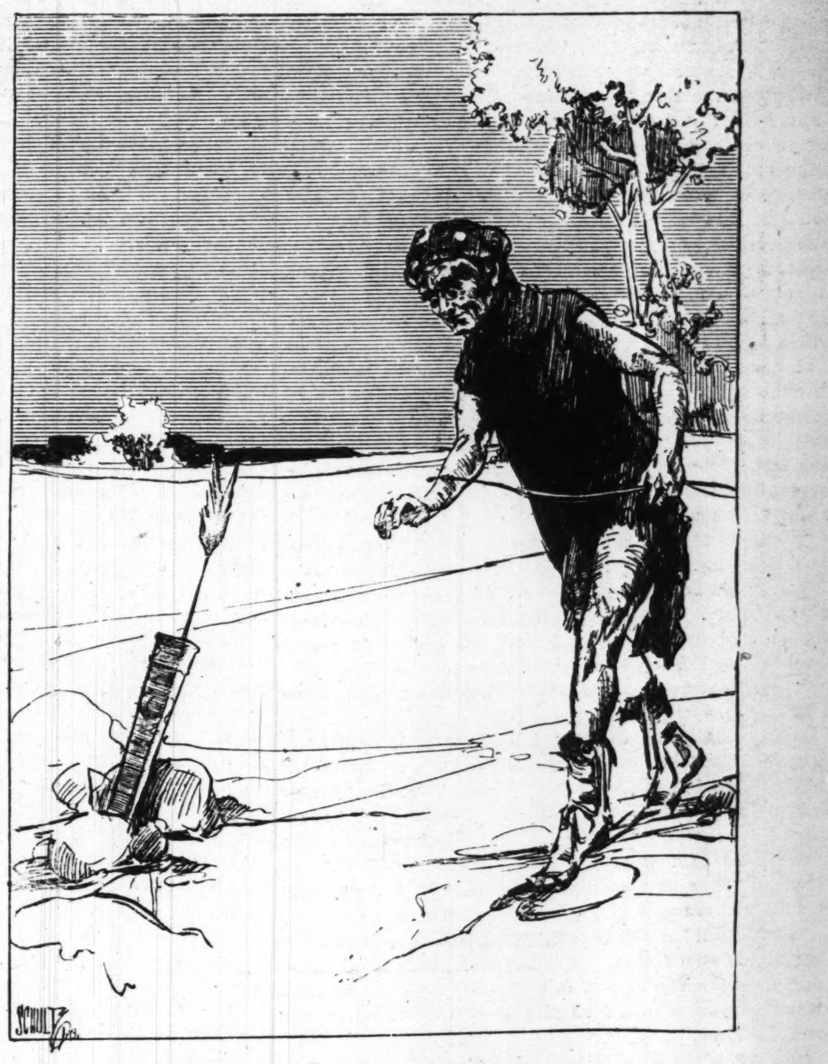
"I never saw either, son, so cannot say. But what was he like? Oh, I cannot say that either, although still I see him in my heart. My mortal lips will not tell the likeness of that man, perhaps because he seemed to be like all men, and yet different from all. He had an iron brow, beneath which shone deep, cold eyes. He was clean-shaven, or perchance his face grew no hair. His lips were thick and still and his features did not change like those of other men. He looked as though he could not change; as though he had been thus for infinite ages, and yet remained neither young nor old. As for his dress, he wore a cloak of flaming red, such a cloak as your Eve loves to wear, and white sandals on his feet. There was no covering on his shaven head, which gleamed like a skull. His breast was naked, but across it hung one row of black jewels. From the sheen of them I think they must have been pearls, which are sometimes found of that color in the East. He had no weapon nor staff, and his hands hung down on either side of the chair.

"For a long while I watched him, but if he saw me he took no note. As I watched I perceived that birds were coming to and leaving him in countless numbers, and thought that it must be their wings which made the constant soughing sound that filled all the still and dreadful air."

"The Story of Red Eve, the Dauntless, and of Murgh, Gateway of the Gods. Whose Dreadful Galley Still Sails from East to West and from West to East, Yes, and Evermore Shall Sail."

THE Sunday Post-Dispatch in this issue of the Fiction Section presents another installment of Part 1 of "Red Eve," one of the most remarkable and intensely absorbing tales which has ever come from the extraordinary pen of that master of the weird, the mystic and the purely imaginary in fiction, H. Rider Haggard.

This unusual treat will run in two parts, one in May and the second in June. The followers of Haggard undoubtedly will find "Red Eve" as entertaining as "She" or "King Solomon's Mines," and as good, if not better, than these famous stories in its higher literary features. No more delightful companion can be found these spring Sundays than dauntless "Red Eve."



Then Dick shot upward but softly.

"What kind of birds were they, Father?"

"I am not sure, but I think doves; at least, their flight was straight and swift like to that of doves. Yet of this I am not sure either, since I saw each of them for but a second. As they reached the man they appeared out of nothingness, and as they left the man they disappeared into nothingness. They were of two colors, snow-white and coal-black. The white appeared upon his right side, the black upon his left. Each bird in those never-ceasing streams hovered for an instant by his head, the white over his right shoulder, the black over his left shoulder, as though they whispered a message to his ear, and having whispered were gone upon their errand."

"What was that errand, Father?"

"How can I know, as no one ever told me? Yet I will hazard a guess that it had to do with the mystery of life and death. Souls that were born into the world, and souls departing from the world, perchance, making report to one of God's great ministers clothed in flesh. But who can say? At least I watched those magic fowls till my eyes grew dizzy, and a sort of slumber began to creep to my brain.

"How long I stayed thus I do not remember, for I had lost all sense of time. In the end, however, I was awakened by a cold, soft voice, the sound of which seemed to flow through my veins like ice, that addressed me in our own rough English tongue, spoken as you and I learned it at our nurses' knees.

"'To what god were you praying just now, Andrew Arnold?'

"'I was praying to Christ,' I faltered, 'the Savior of us all.'

"'A great God, Andrew Arnold, and a pure, though His followers are few in the world as yet. But do you think that He can save you from Me, as you were asking Him to do?'

"'He can save my soul,' I replied, plucking up courage, who would not deny the Lord even in a devil's den.

"'Ah! your soul. Well, I have nothing to do with souls, except to count them as they pass through my dominion, and you are quite right to pray to one of the lords of that into which you go. Now, man, what is your business with me, and why do you visit one of whom you are so much afraid?'

"'O Murgh!' I began, then ceased, for I knew not what to answer.

"'So they have told you my name? Now I will tell you one of its meanings. It is "Gate of the Gods."'

"He waved his arms and the black doves and the white doves ceased to appear and disappear, and the eternal soughing of their wings was silent. He pointed to the water at his feet and I saw, not a picture, but a scene so real that I could have sworn it was alive about me. Yes, those who took part in it stood in front of me as though the pool were solid ground that their feet pressed. You were one of them, son, you were one of them," and the old knight paused, supporting himself against the mantel-shelf as though that recollection overcame him.

"What did you see?" whispered Hugh.

"By God's holy name, son, I saw the Blythburgh Marshes deep in snow that was red, blood-red with the light of sunrise. Oh! I could not be mistook, there ran the wintry river, there the church tower soared, there were the frowning, three-clad banks. There was the rough moorland over which the east wind piped, for the dead bracken bent before it, and not 20 paces from me leaped a hare, disturbed suddenly from its form by a hungry fox, whose red head peeped through the reeds. Yes, yes, I saw the brute's white teeth gleam as it licked its disappointed lips, and I felt that its prey had beaten it! When you look upon that scene, Hugh, as one day you shall, remember the hare and the head of the hungry fox, and by these judge my truth."

"A fox and a hare!" broke in Hugh. "I'd show you such tomorrow; was there no more?"

"Ay, much. For instance, a hollow in the Marsh, an open grave, and an ax; yes, an ax that had delved it where the bog was soft beneath the snow. Grey Dick held the ax in one hand and his black bow in the other, while Red Eve, your Eve, stood at its edge and stared into it like one in a dream. Then at the head of the grave an old, old man clad in mail beneath his priestly robes, and that man myself, Hugh, grown very ancient, but still myself, and no other.

"And at the foot of the grave you, Hugh de Cressi, you and no other, wayworn and fierce, but also clad in mail, and wearing a knight's crest upon your shield. You with drawn sword in hand, and facing you, also with drawn sword, rage and despair on his dark face, a stately, foreign-looking man, whom mine eyes have never seen, but whom I should know again midst a million, a man who, I think, was doomed to fill the grave.

"Lastly, standing on a little mound near to the bank of the swirling river, where jagged sheets of ice ground against each other like the teeth of the wicked in hell, strangely carved and clad in black, his arms crossed upon his breast and a light smile in his cold eyes, he who was called Murgh in Cathay, he who named himself Gateway of the Gods!

"For a moment I saw, then all was gone, and I found myself—I know not why—walking toward the mighty arch whereon sat the iron dragons. In its shadow I turned and looked back. There at the head of the pool the man was seated in his chair, and to right and to left of him came the black doves and the white doves in countless multitudes, all the thousands of them that had been stayed in their flight pouring down upon him at once—or so I thought. They wheeled about his head, they hid his face from me, and I—I departed into the shadow of the arch, and I saw him and them no more."

CHAPTER IV

The Penance.

THE tale was done, and these two stood staring at one another from each side of the glowing hearth, whose red light illumined their faces.

Hugh, who was glad to get back to the things of earth, described Acour as best he could.

"Ah!" said Sir Andrew. "Much such a man as stood face to face with you by the grave while Murgh watched; and you are not likely to be friends, are you? But I forgot. You have determined that it was but a dream and now you are wondering how he who is called Gate of the Gods in Cathay could come to Blythburgh. Well, I think that all the world is his garden, given to him by God, but doubtless that's only another face of my dream whereof we'll speak no more—at present. Now for your troubles, which are no dream. Lie you down to sleep on the skin of that striped beast. I killed it in Cathay—in my day of dreams, and now it shall serve for yours, from which may the dead eyes of John Clavering be absent! I go forth to seek your father and to arrange certain matters. With Grey Dick at the door you'll be safe for a while, I think. If not, here's a cupboard where you may hide." And, drawing aside the arras, he showed him a certain secret place large enough to hold a man, then left the room.

Hugh laid himself down upon the skin of the beast, which had been a tiger, though he did not know it by that name. So weary was he that not all he had gone through that day or even the old warrior-priest's marvelous tale, in which he and Eve played so wonderful a part, could keep his eyes from closing. Presently he was fast asleep, and so remained until, four hours later, something disturbed him, and he awoke to see Sir Andrew at a desk.

"Rise, my son," said the old priest without looking up from his paper. "Early as it is you must be stirring if you would be clear of Dunwich by daybreak and keep a whole skin. I have set a taper in my sleeping-closet yonder, and there you'll find water to wash with and a stool to kneel on for your prayers, neither of which neglect, since you have blood on your hands and great need for Heaven's help."

Seeing folk gathered there as he entered he laid hand on sword, not his own with which he had killed his cousin, but a long and knightly weapon that Sir Andrew had given him with the armour. Drawing it, he advanced boldly, for he thought that his enemies might have found him out, and that his best safety lay in courage. Thus he appeared in the ring of the lamplight clad in gleaming steel and with raised weapon.

"What, son!" asked a testy voice which he knew for that of his own father, "is it not enough to have killed your cousin? Would you fall on your brothers and me also, that you come at us clad in mail and with bare steel in hand?"

Hearing these words Hugh sheathed the sword, and, advancing toward the speaker, a handsome, portly man, who wore a merchant's robe lined with rich fur, sank to his knee before him.

"Your pardon, my father," he said. "Sir Andrew here will have told you the story; also that I am not to blame for this blood-shedding."

Now a tall, slim figure glided up to them. It was Eve, clothed in her own robe again, and beautiful as ever after her short rest.

"Sir, I am to blame," she said in her full, low voice. "My need was sore and I sent a messenger to Hugh biding him to meet me in the Blythburgh Marsh. There we were set on, and there John Clavering, my brother, smote Hugh in the face. Would you, a De Cressi, have had him take the blow and yield me up to the Frenchman?"

"By God and my forefathers, no! least of all from one of your stock—saving your presence," answered the merchant. "In truth, had he done so, dead or living from that day I would have called him no son of mine. Yet, Red Eve, you and he and your love-makings have brought much trouble on me and my House. Look now what it means. A feud to the death between our families of which no man can foresee the end. Moreover, how can you marry, seeing that a brother's blood runs between you?"

"It is on John's head," she answered sadly, "not on Hugh's hand. I warned him, and Hugh spared him once. What more could we do?"

"But there is no time to lose if Hugh's neck is to escape a halter. Speak you, Father Andrew, who are wise and old, and have this matter in hand. Oh! Hugh, Hugh, you were born a fighter, not a merchant like your brethren," and he pointed to three young men who all this while had stood silently behind him looking upon their youngest brother with grave disapproval. "Yes, the old Norman blood comes out in you, and the Norman mail suits you well," he added with a flash of pride, "and so there's an end—or a beginning. Now, Sir Andrew, speak.'

"Master de Cressi," said the old priest, "your son Hugh rides to London on an errand of mine which I think will save his neck from that halter whereof you spoke but now. Are those four mounted men that you promised me ready to companion him?"

"They will be within an hour, Father, but not before, since six good horses cannot be laid hands on in the dead of night, being stabled without the gates. But what is this message of yours, and to whom does Hugh go?"

"To his Grace Edward the King, none less, Goeffrey de Cressi, with that which shall earn pardon for him and Dick the Archer, or so I believe. As for what it is I may not tell you or any man. It has to do with great matters of State that are for the King's ear alone; and I charge you, everyone, on your honor and your safety, to make no mention of this mission without these walls. Do you swear, Goeffrey de Cressi, and you, his sons?"

Then one by one they swore to be secret as the grave; and Eve swore also, though of her he had sought no promise. When this was finished Sir Andrew asked if any of his brothers accompanied Hugh, saying that if so they must arm.

"No," answered Master de Cressi, "one of the family is enough to risk as well as four of our best servants. My sons bide here with me, who may need their help, though they are not trained to arms."

"Perhaps it is as well," said Sir Andrew drily, "though were I their age—well, let that be. Now, son Hugh, before you eat do you and Eve come with me into the church."

They passed down the stairs, followed by Master de Cressi and his other sons, into the entrance hall, where Grey Dick stood watching by the door.

Turning to the right, Sir Andrew led them down steps to a passage underground that joined the Temple to the Church of the Holy Virgin and St. John. It was but short, and at the end of it they found a massive door which he unbolted, and, passing this door, entered the great building, whereof the silence and the icy cold struck them like blows. They had but two lanterns between them, one of which Master de Cressi and his elder sons took with them to the nave of the church. Bearing the other, Sir Andrew departed into the vestry, leaving Hugh and Eve seated together in the darkness of the chancel stalls.

Presently his light reappeared in the confessional, where he sat robed, and thither at his summons went first Hugh and then Eve. When their tales were told, those who watched in the nave of the splendid building—which, reared by the Knights Templar, was already following that great Order to decay and ruin—saw the star of light he bore ascend to the high altar. Here he set it down, and, advancing to the rail, addressed the two shadowy figures that knelt before him.

"Son and daughter," he said, "you have made confession with contrite hearts, and the Church has given you absolution for your sins. Yet penance remains, and because those sins, though grievous in themselves, were not altogether of your own making, it shall be light. Hugh de Cressi and Eve Clavering, who are bound together by lawful love between man and woman and the solemn oath of betrothal which you here renew before God, this is the penance that I lay upon you by virtue of the authority in me vested as a priest of Christ: Because between you runs the blood of John Clavering, the cousin of one of you and the brother of the other, slain by you, Hugh de Cressi, in mortal combat but yester eve, I decree and enjoin that for a full year from this day you shall not be bound together as man and wife in the holy bonds of matrimony, nor converse after the fashion of affianced lovers. If you obey this her command, faithfully, then by my mouth the Church declares that after the year has gone by you may lawfully be wed where and when you will. Moreover, she pronounces her solemn blessing on you both and her dreadful curse upon any and upon all who shall dare to sunder you against your desires, and of this blessing and this curse let all the congregation take notice."

Now Hugh and Eve rose and vanished into the darkness. When they had gone the priest celebrated a short mass, but two or three prayers and a blessing, which done, all of them returned to the Preceptory as they had come.

Here food was waiting for them, prepared by the old Sister Agnes. It was a somewhat silent meal of which no one ate very much except Grey Dick, who remarked aloud that as this might be his last breakfast it should be plentiful, since, shriven or unshriven, it was better to die upon a full stomach.

So they descended to a back entrance, and through it into the courtyard, where the four armed men waited with six good horses, one of them Hugh's own. Here he bade farewell to his brothers, to his father, who kissed him on the brow, and to Sir Andrew, who stretched his hand above his head in blessing. Then he turned to Eve and was about to embrace her even before that company, when Sir Andrew looked at him, and, remembering the penance that had been laid upon him, he but pressed her hand, whispering:

"God be with you, sweetheart!"

Then Hugh swung himself to the saddle of which Grey Dick had already tested the girths and stirrup leathers. In another minute the six of them were clattering over the stones of Middlegate street, while the burgesses of Dunwich peeped from their window places, wondering what knight with armed men rode through their town thus early.

Just as they gray dawn broke they passed the gate, which, there being peace in the land, was already open. Fifteen minutes later they were on the lonely Westleton Heath, where for a while naught was to be heard save the scream of the curlew and the rush of the wings of the wild duck passing landward from the sea. Presently, however, another sound reached their ears, that of horses galloping behind them. Grey Dick pulled rein and listened.

"Seven, I think, not more," he said. "Now, master, do you stand or run, for these will be Clavering horses?"

Hugh thought for a moment. His aim was not to fight, but to get through to London. Yet if he fled the pursuers would raise the country on them as they came, so that in the end they must be taken, since those who followed would find fresh horses.

"It seems best to stand," he said.

"So say I," answered Grey Dick; and led the way to a little hillock by the roadside on which grew some wind-bent firs.

Here they dismounted and gave their horses into the keeping of one man, while Grey Dick and the others drew their bows from the cases and strung them. Scarcely had they done so when the mist, lifting in the morning breeze, showed them their pursuers—seven of them, as Dick had said—headed by one of the French knights, and riding scattered, between two and three hundred yards away. At the same moment a shout told them that they had been seen.

"Hark now all!" said Hugh. "I would shed no more blood if it may be so, who have earned enough of penance. Therefore shoot at the horses, not at the riders, who without them will be helpless. And let no man harm a Clavering unless it be to save his own life."

"Poor sport!" grunted Grey Dick.

Nevertheless, when the Norman knight who led came within 200 yards, shouting to them in French to surrender, Dick lifted his great bow, drew and loosed carelessly, as though he shot at hazard, the others holding their bows till the Claverings were nearer. Yet there was little of hazzard when Grey Dick shot, save to that at which he aimed. Away rushed the arrow, rising high, and, as it seemed, bearing somewhat to the left of the knight. Yet when it drew near to that knight the wind told on it and bent it inward, as he knew it would. Fair and full it struck upon the horse's chest, piercing through to the heart, so that down the poor beast came, throwing its rider to the ground.

Then, as those who remained still came on, urged by the knight who ran behind them, all loosed, and though some arrows went wide, the end of it was that ere they reached the little mound every Clavering horse was dead or sore wounded, while on the heath stood or lay seven helpless men.

The Claverings began to talk together excitedly.

"Throw down your weapons!" commanded Hugh.

Now Hugh spoke a word to his men, who, going to the dead and dying horses, took from them the stirrup-leathers and bridle-reins and therewith bound the Claverings back to back. But the French knight, in acknowledgement of his rank, they trussed up by himself, having first relieved him of his purse by way of fine. As it chanced, however, Hugh turned and saw them in the act.

"God's truth! Would you make common thieves of us?" he said angrily. "Their weapons and harness are ours by right of war, but I'll hunt the man who steals their money out of my company."

So the purse was restored. When it was safe in the knight's pouch again Hugh saluted him, begging his pardon that it would have been touched.

"But how are you named, sir?" he added.

"Sir Pierre de la Roche is my name," replied the knight sadly, and in French.

"Then, Sir Pierre de la Roche," said Hugh, "here you and your people must bide until some come to set you free, which, as this place is lonely and little crossed, may be today or may be tomorrow. When at length you get back to Blythburgh Manor, however, or to Dunwich town, I trust it to your honor to declare that Hugh de Cressi has dealt well with you. For whereas he might have slain you every one, as you would have slain him and his if you could, he has harmed no hair of your heads. As for your horses, these, to his sorrow, he was obliged to kill lest they should be used to ride him down. Will you do this of your courtesy?"

"Ay," answered the knight, "since to your gentleness we owe our lives. But with your leave I will add that we were overcome not by men, but by a devil"—and he nodded toward Grey Dick—"since no one who is only man can have such hellish skill in archery as we saw yesterday, and now again this morning. Moreover," he went on, contemplating Dick's ashen hair and cold eyes set wide apart in the rocky face, like those of a Suffolk horse, "the man's air shows that he is in league with Satan."

"I'll not render your words into our English talk, Sir Pierre," replied Hugh, "lest he of whom you speak should take them amiss and send you where you might learn them false. For know, had he been what you say, the arrow that lies in your horse's heart would have nailed the breastplate to your own. Now take a message from me to your lord, Sir Edmund Acour, the traitor. Tell him that I shall return ere long, and that if he should dare to attempt ill toward the Lady Eve, who is my betrothed, or toward my father and brethren, or any of my House, I promise, in Grey Dick's name and my own, to kill him or those who may aid him as I would kill a forest wolf that had slunk into my sheepfold. Farewell! There is bracken and furze yonder where you may lie warm till some pass your way. Mount, men!"

So they rode forward, bearing all the Clavering weapons with them, which a mile or two further on Grey Dick hid in an empty fox's earth where he knew he could find them again. Only he kept the French knight's beautiful dagger that was made of Spanish steel, inlaid with gold, and used it to his life's end.

Here it may be told that it was not until 36 hours had gone by, as Hugh learned afterward, that a countryman brought this knight and his companions, more dead than alive, to Dunwich in his wain. As he was traveling across Westleton Heath, with a load of corn to be ground at Dunwich mill, it seemed that he heard voices calling feebly, and guided by them found these unhappy men half buried in the snow that had fallen on that day, and so rescued them from death.

But when Sir Edmund Acour knew the story of their overthrow and the message that Hugh had sent to him, he raved at them, and especially at Sir Pierre de la Roche, saying that the worst of young De Cressi's crimes against him was that he had left such cowardly hounds alive upon the earth. So he went on madly till Sir John Clavering checked him, bidding him wait to revile these men until he, and not his horse, had met Grey Dick's arrows and Hugh de Cressi's sword.

"For," he added, "it may happen then that you will fare no better than they have done, or than did John, my son."

On the morning of the third day after they left Dunwich, having been much delayed by foul weather and fouler roads, Hugh de Cressi and his company came at length to London. They had suffered no further adventure on their way for, though the times were rough and they met many evil-looking fellows, none ventured to lift hand against six men so well armed and sturdy. Guided by one of their number who had often been to London on Master de Cressi's business, they rode straight to Westminster. Having stabled their horses at an inn nearby, and cleaned the mire of the road from their mail and garments, they went up to the palace, where Hugh told his errand to an officer whom he found on duty at the gate.

"Then it is a fool's errand,' said the Captain, "seeing that his Grace rode yesterday to his castle at Windsor to hunt and revel, and will be gone eight days at the least.'

"Then to Windsor I must follow," said Hugh.

CHAPTER V.

Grey Dick Shows His Archery.

So sorely did the horses need rest, that Hugh and his people could not ride from London till the following morning, and evening was closing in before they found themselves drawing near the gate of Windsor Castle. In the market-place of the little town they pulled rein, while one of them went to search for a good inn at which they might lie, for the place seemed to be very full of people. Suddenly, as they stood there, wondering at the mighty, new-built keep which towered above them, a trumpet was blown and from round a corner appeared a gay procession of noble-looking men, and with them some ladies, who carried hawk on wrist, all mounted on splendid horses.

Now, the people who had gathered to study the strangers or tout for their custom, took off their bonnets and bent low, saying: "The King! The King! God save him!"

"Which is his Grace?" asked Hugh of one of them, whereon the man pointed to a royal-eyed and bearded knight, still in early middle life, who rode toward him, talking to a gallant youth at his side.

Now a thought came into Hugh's mind that the present time is always the best time to strike. Leaping from his horse, he advanced bowing, and stood in the pathway of the King. Seeing this, two of the fine Court lords spurred their horses and rode straight at him, thinking to drive him back. But he held his ground, for their insolence made him angry, and, catching the bridle of one of the horses, threw it on its haunches so sharply that the knight who rode it rolled from his saddle into the mire, whereupon everyone laughed. In a moment he was on his feet again, and shouting:

"Out of the road, jackanapes, dressed in your grandfather's mail, unless you would stop there in the stocks. Do you know whose path you block?'

"That of His Grace," answered Hugh, "for whom I have a message that he will be glad to hear, and, popinjay, this for yourself: were it not for his presence it is you who would stop upon the road till you were carried thence."

Now, noting this disturbance, the King spoke to the youth at his side, who came forward and said, in a pleasant, courteous voice, addressing Hugh:

"Sir, why do you make trouble in these streets, and tumble the good Sir Ambrouse Lacey from his horse with such scant ceremony?"

"Sir," answered Hugh, "because the good Sir Ambrouse tried to ride his horse over me for no offence save that I would deliver a message to His Grace, which he will wish to hear."

"This is scarcely a time for the giving of messages," replied the young man, "but what is your name, and who sends the message? I am the Prince Edward," he added modestly, "so you may speak to me without fear."

"My name is Hugh de Cressi, Your Highness, and I am sent by the Reverend Father Sir Andrew Arnold of Dunwich, and have followed His Grace from Westminster, whither I and my men rode first."

Now, the Prince went to the King and spoke to him, and, returning presently, said:

"My father says that he knows both the names you give well enough, and holds them dear. He bids that you and your people should follow him to the castle, where you will be entertained, with your horses. Sir Ambrouse," he added, "the King desires that you should forget your choler, since he saw what passed, and deems that this young stranger did well to check your horse. Follow on, Hugh de Cressi, the officers will show you where you and your men may lodge."

So Hugh obeyed and rode with the rest of the train and his folks through the gates of Windsor Castle. Nor did they do so unobserved, since many of the Court had no love for Sir Ambrouse, and were glad to see him tumbled in the mire.

After they had stabled their beasts, as Hugh, followed by Grey Dick, was advancing toward a hall which he was told that he might enter, an officer came up.

"His Grace desires your presence before you sup," he said.

Pointing to Grey Dick, at whom the officer looked doubtfully, Hugh asked that he might accompany him, as he had much to do with the message. After some argument they were led through various passages to a chamber, at the door of which the officer wished to take Dick's bow. But he would not give it up.

"The bow and I do not part," he said, in his croaking voice, "for we are husband and wife, and live and sleep together as the married should."

As Dick spoke the door was opened, and Prince Edward appeared.

"And do you eat together also, good fellow?" he asked, having overheard the talk.

"Ay, sir, we feed full together," replied Dick grimly; "or so thought some on Blythburgh Marsh a few days gone."

"I should like to hear that tale," said the Prince. "Meanwhile, since both my father and I love archers, let him pass with his bow. Only keep his arrows lest it should happen to grow hungry here."

Then they entered the chamber, led by the Prince. It was a fine place, with a vaulted stone roof and windows of colored glass, that looked like the chancel of a church. Only at the head of it, where the altar should have been, was a kind of dais. On this dais were set some high-backed oaken chairs with many lanterns behind them in which burned tapers that, together with a great wood fire, gave light to the chamber.

In one of these chairs sat a gracious lady, who was embroidering something silken in a frame. This was Queen Philippa, and talking to her stood the tall King, clad in a velvet robe lined with fur. Behind, seated at a little table on which lay parchments, was a man in a priest's robe, writing. There was no one else in the room.

Hugh and Dick advanced to the foot of the dais, and stood there bowing.

"Who are these?" asked the King of the Prince. "Oh, I remember, the man who overthrew Sir Ambrouse and said he had a message!"

"Ay, Sire," answered the Prince; "and this dust colored fellow is his servant, who will not part with his bow, which he calls his wife and says he sleeps with."

"I would all Englishmen did the same," broke in the King. "Say, man, can you shoot straight?"

"I know not, Sire," replied Grey Dick, "but perhaps straighter than most, for God, Who withheld all else from me, gave me this gift. At least, if I be not made drunk overnight, I'll match myself against any man at this Court, noble or simple, and stake 20 angles on it."

"Twenty angels! Have you so much, fellow?"

"Nay, Sire, nor more than one; but as I know I shall win, what does that matter?"

"Son," said the King, "see that this man is kept sober tonight, and tomorrow we will have a shooting match. But, sirrah, if you prove yourself to be a boaster you shall be whipped round the walls, for I love not tall words and small deeds. And now, young Master de Cressi, what is this message of yours?"

Hugh thrust his hand into his bosom, and produced a sealed packet which was addressed to "His Grace King Edward of England, sent from Andrew Arnold, priest, by the hand of Hugh de Cressi."

"Can you read?" the King asked of Hugh when he had spelt out this superscription.

"Ay, Sire; at least if the writing be that of Sir Andrew Arnold, for he was my master."

"A learned one and a brave, Hugh de Cressi. Well break seal; we listen."

He obeyed, and read as follows:

"Your Grace:

"Mayhap, Sire, you will remember me, Andrew Arnold, late master of the Templars in this town of Dunwich, in whose house, by your warrant for certain services rendered to your grandsire, your sire, and to yourself, I still dwell on as a priest ordained. Sire, the bearer of this, Hugh de Cressi, my godchild, is the son of Goeffrey de Cressi of this town, the great wool-merchant, with whom your Highness has had dealings"——

"In truth I have!" interrupted the King, with a laugh. "Also I think the account is still open—against myself. Well, it shall be paid some day, when I have conquered France. Forward!"

"Sire, this Hugh is enamoured of Eve Clavering, daughter of Sir John Clavering of Blythburgh, a cousin of his House, a very beauteous maiden, commonly known as Red Eve, and she in turn is enamoured of and betrothed to him"——

Here Queen Philippa suddenly became interested.

"Why is the lady called Red Eve, sir?" she asked in her soft voice. "Because her cheeks are red?"

"No, Madam," answered Hugh, blushing; "because she always loves to wear red garments."

"Ah, then she is dark!"

"That is so, Madam; her eyes and hair are black as ash-buds."

"God's truth! Lady," interrupted King Edward, "is this young man's message of the color of the eyes of his mistress, which, without doubt, being in love, he describes falsely? On with the letter!"

"Out of this matter," continued Hugh, "rose a feud yesterday, during which Hugh de Cressi killed his cousin John, fighting a outrance, and his servant, Richard the Archer, who accompanies him, commonly known as Grey Dick, slew three men with as many arrows, two of them being Normans whose names are unknown to us, and the third a grieve to Sir John Clavering, called Thomas of Kessland. Also, he killed a horse, and when another Frenchman tried to grasp his master, sent a shaft through the palm of his hand."

"By St. George," said the King, "but here is shooting! Were they near to you, Grey Dick?"

"Not so far away, Sire. Only the light was very bad, or I should have had the fourth. I aimed low, Sire, fearing to miss his skull, and he jerked up his horse's head to take the arrow."

"A good trick! I've played it myself. Well, let us have done with the letter, and then we'll come to archery."

"Sire," read on Hugh, "I ask your royal pardon to Hugh de Cressi and Richard the Archer for these slayings, believing that when you have read these letters it will be granted."

"That remains to be seen," muttered the King.

"Sire, Sir Edmund Acour, who has lands here in Suffolk, Count de Noyon in Normandy, and Seigneur of Cattrina in Italy"——

"I know the man," exclaimed Edward to the Queen, "and so do you. A handsome knight and a pleasant, but one of whom I have always misdoubted me."

"——Is also enamoured of Eve Clavering, and with her father's will seeks to make her his wife, though she hates him, and by the charter of Dunwich of which she is a citizen, has the right to wed whom she will."

"It is well there are not many such charters. The old story—brave men done to death for the sake of a woman who is rightly named Red Eve," mused the King.

"My Leige, I pray that you will read the letter herein enclosed. Huge de Cressi will tell you how it came to my hand, since I lack time to write all the story. If it seems good to Your Grace, I pray you scotch this snake while he is in your garden, lest he should live to sting you when you walk abroad. If it please you to give your royal warrant to the bearer of this letter, and to address the same to such of your subjects in Dunwich as you may think good, I doubt not but that men can be found to execute the same. Thus would a great and traitorous plot be brought to nothing, to your own glory and the discomfiture of your foes in France, who hope to lay their murderous hands upon the throne of England. "Your humble servant and subject,

"ANDREW ARNOLD."

"What's this?" exclaimed the King starting from his seat. "To lay hands upon the throne of England! Quick with the other letter, man!"

"I was charged that it is for Your Grace's eye alone," said Hugh as he unfolded the paper. "Is it your pleasure that I read it aloud, if I can, for it is writ in French?"

"Give it me," said the King. "Philippa, come help me with this crabbed stuff."

Then they withdrew to the side of the dais, and, standing under the lantern, spelled out Sir Edmund Acour's letter to the Duke of Normandy, word by word.

The King finished the letter, and, still holding it in his hand, stood for a minute silent. Then his rage broke out.

"'He of England,'" he quoted. 'That's your husband, Edward, Lady, who is to be overthrown and killed 'that Philip's son may take his seat and be crowned King of Westminster,' which God is to bring about before this year is out. Yes; and my cities are to be sacked and my people slain, and this French dog, Edmund Acour, who has sworn fealty to me, is to be rewarded with wide English lands and high English titles. Well, by God's blood I swear that, dead or living, he shall be lifted higher than he hopes, though not by Normandy or my brother of France! Let me think! Let me think! If I send men-at-arms he'll hear of it and slip away. Did not good old Sir Andrew call him a snake? Now, where's this girl, Red Eve?"

"Ah, and she's a great heiress now, for you killed her brother, and Acour, although he has wide possessions in sundry lands, was ever a spendthrift and deep in debt. No, he'll not leave unless he can get the girl; and old Sir Andrew will guard her well with the power of the Church, and his own right arm if need be, for he's still more knight than priest. So there's no Tell me all you know of this story, Hugh de C omitting nothing, however small. Nay, have no fe you can vouch for your fellow there, all of us in chamber are loyal to England. Speak out, man."

So Hugh began and told of the De Cressis and the Claverings and their feud, and of how he and Eve had always loved each other. He told of their meeting in the reeds of Blythburgh Fen, and of the death of John de Clavering at his hand and of the others at the hand of Grey Dick, and of the escape of Acour from the fourth arrow. He told how he and Eve had swum the Blyth in flood though the ice cut them, and hid on the moor while Grey Dick led the Claverings astray, and came at last to sanctuary. He told how Acour's letter had been won from his messenger by Sir Andrew's loyal guide. He told of the penance that Sir Andrew had laid upon them because of the new-shed blood of John Clavering, of the flight from Dunwich and the shooting of the horses of the Clavering men, and of their ride to London and to Windsor. He told everything, save only the tale of what Sir Andrew had seen in the House of Murgh in far Cathay.

When at last he had finished, and though it was long none there grew weary of that story, the King turned to the clerk, and said:

"Brother Peter, make out a full pardon of Hugh de Cressi of Dunwich and Richard Archer his servant for all slayings or other deeds wrought by them contrary to our general peace. Draw it wide, and bring the same to me for execution ere I sleep tonight. Make out a commission also to the Mayor of Dunwich—nay, I'll think that matter over and instruct you further. Hugh de Cressi, you have our thanks, and if you go on as you have begun you shall have more ere long, for I need such men about me. You also, strange and death-like man named Grey Dick, shall not lack our favor if it proves that you can shoot but half as well as you have boasted, and, unless you lie, both of you, as it seems that you have done. And now to supper, though in truth this news does not kindle appetite. Son, see that this gentleman is well served, and that none mock him more about the fashion of his armour, above all Sir Ambrouse, for I'll not suffer it. Plate and damascene do not make a man, and this, it seems, was borrowed from as brave, ay, and as learned, a knight as ever bestrode a horse in war. Come, Lady," and taking the Queen by the hand he left the chamber.

That evening Hugh ate his food seated among the knights of the Household at a high table in the great hall, at the head of which, for the King supped in private, was placed the young Prince Edward. He noted that now none laughed at him about the fashion of his mail or his country ways. Indeed, when after supper Sir Ambrouse Lacey came to him and asked his pardon for the talk that he had used to him in the Windsor street—he was sure that some word had been sent round that his business had brought him favor with the King and that he must be treated with all courtesy. Several of those who sat round him tried to discover what that business was. But of this he would say nothing, parrying their questions with others about the wars in France, and listening with open ears to the tales of great deeds done there.

"Ah, would that I could see such things!" he said.

To which one of them answered:

"Well, why not? There'll be chance enough ere long, and many of us would be glad of a squire built like you."

Now, at lower tables, in that vast hall, Hugh's servants, and with them Grey Dick, sat among the men-at-arms of the King's Guard, who were all chosen for their courage, and skill in archery. These soldiers, noting the strange-faced, ashen-haired fellow who ate with hi bow resting on the bench beside him, inquired about his from the other Dunwich men, and soon heard enough to cause them to open their eyes. When the ale got hold of them they opened their mouths also, and, crowding round Dick, asked if it were true that he could shoot well.

"As well as another," he answered, and would say no more.

Then they looked at his bow, and saw that it was old-fashioned, like his master's mail, and of some foreign make and wood, but a mighty weapon such as few could handle and hold straight. Lastly, they began to challenge him to a match upon the morrow, to which he answered, who also had been drinking ale and was growing angry, that he'd give the best of them five points in 50.

Now they mocked, for among them were some famous archers, and asked at what range.

"At any ye will," answered Grey Dick, "from 12 score yards down to one score yards. Now trouble me no longer, who if I must shoot tomorrow would sleep first and drink no more of your strong ale that breeds bad humors in one reared upon dyke water."

Then, seizing his bow, he glided away in his curious stoat-like fashion to the hole where had been shown that he should sleep.

"A braggart!" said one.

"I am not so sure," answered a grizzled captain of archers, who had fought in many wars. "Braggarts make a noise, but this fellow only spoke when we squeezed him and perhaps what came out of those thin lips was truth. At least, from his look I'd sooner not find him against me bow to bow."

Then they fell to betting which of them would beat Grey Dick by the heaviest points.

Next morning about 9 o'clock the King sent a messenger to Hugh, bidding him and his servant Richard wait upon him. They went with this messenger, who led them to a little chamber, where His Grace sat attended only by the clerk, Brother Peter, and a dark-browed minister, whose name he never learned.

"Hugh de Cressi and Richard Archer," said Edward, motioning to the minister to hand Hugh a parchment to which hung a great seal, "here is the pardon which I promised you. No need to stay to read it, since it is as wide as Windsor Keep, and woe betide him who lifts hand against either of you for aught you may have done or left undone in the past contrary to the laws of our realm. Yet remember well that this grace runs not to your future. Now that matter is ended, and we come to one that is greater. Because of the faith put in you by our loyal and beloved subject, Sir Andrew Arnold, your godsire, and because we like the fashion of you, Hugh de Cressi, and hold you brave and honest, it has pleased us to give you a commission under which we direct the Mayor of Dunwich and all true and lawful men of that town and hundred to aid you in the taking of, if need be, in the slaying of our subject, Sir Edmund Acour, Count of Noyon and Seigneur of Cattrina. We command you to bring this man before us alive or dead, that his cause may be judged of by our courts and the truth of the matter alleged against him by the Reverend Father Sir Andrew Arnold therein determined. Nevertheless, we command you not to wound or kill the said knight unless he resists the authority of us by you conveyed and you cannot otherwise hold him safe from escaping from out this our realm. This commision you will presently go forth to execute, keeping its tenor and your aim secret until the moment comes to strike, and, as you perform your duty, of which you will return and make report to us, so shall we judge and reward you. Do you understand?"

"Sire," answered Hugh, bowing, "I understand, and I will obey to my last breath."

"Good! When the parchments are engrossed my officer here will read them to you and explain aught that may need it. Meanwhile, we have an hour or two during which your horses can eat, for there are no fresh beasts here to give you, and it is best, to avoid doubts, that you should return as you came, only showing your powers if any should attempt to arrest you. So let us have done with these heavy matters, and disport us for a while. This servant of yours has made a common boast that he will outshoot any of our picked archers, and now we are ready to go forth and put him to the proof of the butts. Let him know, however, that, notwithstanding our words of yesterday, we shall not hold him to blame if he fails, since many a man of higher degree promises more at night than he can perform in the morning."

"Sire, I'll do my best. I can do no more," said Grey Dick. "Only I pray that none may be suffered to hang about or pester me at the butts, since I am a lonely man who love not company when I use my art."

"That shall be so," said the King. "And now to the sport."

"The sport!" grumbled Grey Dick, when he and Hugh were alone together. "Why, it is other sport we should be seeking, with Acour and his knaves for targets. Go to the King, master, and show him that while we linger here the Frenchman may slip away, or work more and worse treasons."

"I cannot, Dick; the parchments are not written out, and His Grace is bent upon this pleasure match. Moreover, man, all these archers here—yes, and their betters also—would say that you had fled because you were an empty boaster who dared not face the trial."

"They'd say that, would they?" snarled Grey Dick. "Yes, they'd say that, which would be bitter hearing for you and me. Well, they shall not say it. Yet I tell you, master," he added in a burst of words, "although I know not why, I'd rather bear their scorn and be away on the road to Dunwich."

"It may not be, Dick," replied Hugh, shaking his head doubtfully. "See, here they come to fetch us."

In a glade of the forest of Windsor situate near to the castle and measuring some 25 score yards of open level ground, stood Grey Dick, a strange uncouth figure, at whom the archers of the guard laughed, nudging each other. In his bony hand, however, he held that at which they did not laugh, namely, the great black bow, six feet six inches long, which he said had come to him "from the sea," and was fashioned, not of yew, but of some heavy, close-grained wood, grown perhaps in Southern or even in far Eastern lands. Still, one of them, who had tried to draw this bow to his ear and could not, said aloud that " the Suffolk man would do naught with that clumsy pole." Whereat, Grey Dick, who heard him, grinned, showing his white teeth like an angry dog.

Near by, on horseback and on foot, were the King, the young Prince Edward, and many knights and ladies; while on the other side stood scores of soldiers and other folk from the castle, who came to see this ugly fellow well beaten at his own game.

"Dick," whispered Hugh, "shoot now as you never shot before. Teach them a lesson for the honor of Suffolk."

"Let me be, master," he grumbled. "I told you I would do my best."

Then he sat himself down on the grass and began to examine his arrows one by one, to all appearance taking no heed of anything else.

Presently came the first test. At a distance of five score yards was set a little "clout," or target, of white wood, not more than two feet square. This clout had a red mark, or eye, three inches across, painted in its center, and stood not very high above the sward.

"Now, Richard," said the King, "three of the best archers that we have about us have been chosen to shoot against you and each other by their fellows. Say, will you draw first or last?"

"Last, Sire," he answered, "that I may know their mettle."

Then a man stepped forward, a strong and gallant looking fellow, and loosed his three arrows. The first missed the clout, the second pierced the white wood, and the third hit the red eye.

The clout having been changed, and the old one brought to the King with the arrows in it, the second man took his turn. This time all three of the arrows hit the mark, one of them being in the red. Again it was changed, and forth came the great archer of the guard, a tall and clear-eyed man who was known as Jack Green, and whom, it was said, none had ever beaten. He drew, and the arrow went home in the red on its left edge. He drew again, and the arrow went home in the red on its right edge. He drew a third time, and the arrow went home straight in the very center of the red, where was a little black spot.

Now a great laugh went up, since clearly the Suffolk man was beaten ere ever he began.

"Your Dick may do as well; he can do no better," said the King, when the target was brought to him.

Grey Dick looked at it.

"A boon, Your Grace," said Dick. "Grant that this clout may be set up again with the arrows fast. Any may know them from mine since they are gray, whereas those I make are black, for I am a fletcher in my spare hours, and love my own handiwork."

"So be it," said the King, wondering; and the clout was replaced upon its stand.

Now Grey Dick stretched himself, looked at the clout, looked at his bow, and set a black-winged arrow on the string. Then he drew, it seemed but lightly and carelessly, as though he thought the distance small. Away flew the shaft, and sank into the red a good inch within the leftmost arrow of Jack Green.

"Ah!" said the onlookers, "a lucky shot indeed!"

Again he drew, and again the arrow sank into the red, a good inch within the rightmost shot of Jack Green.

"Oh!" said the onlookers, "this man is an archer; but Jack's last he cannot best, let the devil help him how he will."

"In the devil's name, then, be silent!" wheezed Grey Dick, with a flash of his half-opened eye.

"Ay, be silent—be silent!" said the King. "We do not see such shooting every day."

Now Dick set his feet apart and, arrow on string, thrice he lifted the bow and thrice let it sink again, perhaps because he felt some breath of wind stir the still air. A fourth time he lifted, and drew, not as he had before, but straight to the ear, then loosed at once.

Away rushed the yard-long shaft, and folk noted that it scarcely seemed to rise as arrows do, or at least not half so high. It rushed, it smote, and there was silence, for none could see exactly what had happened. Then he who stood near the target to mark ran forward, and screamed out:

"By God's name, he has shattered Jack Green's center arrow, and shot clean through the clout!"

Then from all sides rose the old archer cry, "He, He! He, He!" while the young Prince threw his cap on high, and the King said:

"Would that there were more such men as this in England! Jack Green, it seems that you are beaten."

"Nay," said Grey Dick, seating himself again upon the grass, "there is naught to choose between us in this round. What next, Your Grace?"

Only Hugh, who watched him, saw the big veins swell beneath the pale skin of his forehead, as they ever did when he was moved.

"The war game," said the King; "that is, if you will, for here rough knocks may be going. Set it out, one of you."

Then a captain of the archers explained this sport. In short it was that man should stand against man clad in leather jerkens, and wearing a vizor to protect the face, and shoot at each other with blunt arrows rubbed with chalk, he who first took what would have been a mortal wound to be held worsted.

"I like not blunted arrows," said Grey Dick; "or, for the matter of that, any other arrows save my own. Against how many must I play? The three?"

The captain nodded.

"Then, by your leave, I will take them all at once."

Now some said that this was not fair, but in the end Dick won his point, and those archers whom he had beaten, among them Jack Green, were placed against him, standing five yards apart, and blunted arrows served out to all. Dick set one of them on the string, and laid the two others in front of them. Then a knight rode halfway between them, but a little to one side, and shouted: "Loose!"

As the word struck his ear Dick shot with wonderful swiftness, and almost as the arrow left the bow flung himself down, grasping as he fell. Next instant, three shafts whistled over where he had stood. But his found its mark on the body of him at whom he had aimed, causing the man to stagger backward and throw down his bow, as he was bound to do, if hit.

Next instant Dick was up again and his second arrow flew, striking full and fair before ever he at whom it was aimed had drawn.

Now there remained Jack Green alone, and, as Dick set the third arrow, but before he could draw, Jack Green shot.

"Beat!" said Dick, and stood quite still.

At him rushed the swift shaft, and passed over his shoulder within a hairbredth of his ear. Then came Dick's turn. On Jack Green's cap was an archer's plume.

"Mark the plume, lords," he said, and lo! the feather leapt from that cap.

Now there was silence. No one spoke, but Dick drew three more arrows.

'Tell me, captain," he said, "is your ground marked out in scores; and what is the farthest that anyone of you has sent a flighting shot?"

"Ay," answered the officer, "and 20 score and one yard is the farthest, nor has that been done for many a day."

Dick steadied himself, and seemed to fill his lungs with air. Then, stretching his long arms to the full, he drew the great bow till the horns looked as though they came quite close together, and loosed. High and far flew that shaft; men's eyes could scarcely follow it, and all must wait long before a man came running to say where it had fallen.

"Twenty score and two yards!" he cried.

Then, while the silence still reigned, he set the second arrow on the string, and waited, as though he knew not what to do. Presently, about 50 paces from him, a wood dove flew from out a tree and, as such birds do at the first breath of spring, for the day was mild and sunny, hovered a moment in the air ere it dipped toward a great fir where doubtless it had built for years. Never, poor fowl, was it destined to build again, for as it turned its beak downward Dick's shaft pierced it through and through and bore it onward to the earth.

Still in the midst of a great silence, Dick took up his quiver and emptied it on the ground, then gave it to the captain of the archers, saying:

"And you will, step 60, nay, 70 paces, and set this mouth upward in the grass where a man may see it well."

The captain did so, propping the quiver straight with stones and a bit of wood. Then, having studied all things with his eyes, Dick shot upward, but softly. Making a gentle curve, the arrow turned in the air as it drew near the quiver, and fell into its mouth, striking it flat.

"Ill done," grumbled Dick; "had I shot well, it should have been pinned to earth. Well, yon shadow faulked me, and it might have been worse."

Then the King pushed his horse through the throng, and all fell back before His Grace.

"Richard Archer," he said, "never has such marksmanship as yours been seen in England since we sat upon the throne, nor shall it go unrewarded. The 20 angels you said you would stake last night shall be paid to you by the treasurer of our household. Moreover, here is a gift from Edward of England, the friend of archers, that you may be pleased to wear," and taking his velvet cap from off his head, the King unpinned from it a golden arrow of which the barbed head was cut from a ruby, and gave it to him.

"I thank you, Sire,'" said Dick, his pale skin flushing with pride and pleasure. "I'll wear it while I live, and may the sight of it mean death to many of your enemies."

"Without doubt it will, and that ere long, Richard, for know you that soon we sail again for France, whence the tempest held us back, and it is my pleasure that you sail with us. Therefore I name you one of our fletchers, with place about our person in our bodyguard of archers. Jack Green will show you your quarters, and instruct you in your duties, and soon you shall match your skill against his again, but next time with Frenchmen for your targets."

"Sire," said Dick, very slowly, "take back your arrow, for I cannot do as you will."

"Why, man? Are you a Frenchman?" asked the King, angrily, for he was not wont to have his favors thus refused.

"My mother never told me so, Sire, although I don't know for certain who my father may have been. Still, I think not, since I hate the sight of that breed as a farmer's dog hates rats. But, Sire, I have a good master, and do not wish to change him for one who, saving your presence, may prove a worse, since King's favor on Monday has been known to mean King's halter on Tuesday. Did you not promise to whip me round your walls last night unless I shot as well as I thought I could, and now do you not change your face and give me golden arrows?"

At these bold words a roar of laughter went up from all who heard them, in which the King himself joined heartily enough.

"By St. George!" exclaimed Edward, "I think that I should make you councillor as well as fletcher, since without doubt, man, you have a bitter wit, and, what is more rare, do not fear to speak the truth as you see it. Moreover, in this matter, you see it well. Go with Hugh de Cressi on the business which I have given him to do, and, when it is finished, should both or either of you live, neglect not our command to rejoin us here, or—if we have crossed the sea—in France. Edward of England needs the service of such a sword and such a bow."
